LT. WILLIAM CALLEY SENTENCED TO LIFE AT HARD LABOR

LT. WILLIAM L. CALLEY JR. was sentenced to life at hard labor Wednesday for the premeditated murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, but the sentence likely will be taken to the nation's highest courts and perhaps the President himself. The six-officer jury panel which heard the longest court-martial in U.S. military history had only two choices — life imprisonment or death — and it chose the least harsh of the two. Under the life sentence, Calley is eligible for parole after 10 years. Standing at attention before the court president, Col. Clifford H. Ford, the ash-faced but unblinking 27-year-old defendant listened as Ford read the sentence. Calley's case now goes to a reviewing officer, who has the power to lessen the sentence, or throw it out altogether. The only thing the reviewer cannot do is increase the penalty. Still later the case will be checked for judicial error, and then referred to the Military Court of Appeals. It could end in the U.S. Supreme Court, if jurisdiction is transferred from the military, and also could go to President Nixon, since he serves as commander-in-chief. Calley has been housed in the Ft. Benning, Ga., stockade since his conviction, and officials said there were no plans to move him.

JIMMY HOFFA LOSES SECOND BID TO OBTAIN PAROLE

TEAMSTER President James R. Hoffa lost his second bid for parole from federal prison Wednesday, meaning he faces at least another 14 months behind bars as well as a formal challenge this summer as head of the nation's largest union. After a private, 75-minute hearing the U.S. parole board in Washington denied pleas from Hoffa's lawyers and children for his release from Lewisburg, Pa., penitentiary where he has served a little more than four years of a 13-year sentence for mail fraud and jury tampering. The seven-member board said further consideration of a parole request would be deferred until June, 1972. As usual, the board gave no reasons for its decision, nor did it say how its members voted.

STEWARDESS TALKS BOY, 14, OUT OF HIJACKING AIRLINER

AN EASTERN AIRLINES jetliner with 82 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba Wednesday, but in Birmingham, Ala., a 14-year-old boy was talked out of a hijacking by a stewardess who invited him to spend the summer with her family. The FAA said the Eastern DC8 was over the Atlantic on the flight from New York to San Juan, P.R., when it was ordered to Havana. It was Eastern's flight 939, the fifth domestic airliner hijacked to Cuba this year. There was no marshal aboard either plane — a fact which relieved the stewardess in Birmingham. "They are usually kids just out of Vietnam and gunhappy. I don't like marshals," she said after she and a ground supervisor talked the schoolboy out of hijacking their jet. The youth, John Mathews, finally walked off the plane as it sat on the ground at Birmingham airport — still carrying his nickel-plated .25 caliber pistol — and went to ground supervisor G. P. Busenlehner's office to surrender.

VIET CONG KILL OR WOUND NEARLY 200 VILLAGERS

MILITARY SOURCES in Saigon disclosed Wednesday that Viet Cong guerrillas stormed into a South Vietnamese village in the early morning darkness Monday, killing or wounding nearly 200 civilians in the worst such assault since the 1968 Tet offensive. The report came as more than 300 elite South Vietnamese troops airlifted by American helicopters raided a North Vietnamese base area inside Laos Wednesday. It was one week since the end of the massive 45-day South Vietnamese drive to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos. Military sources identified the targeted village of Hoang Dieu in Quang Nam province as the target of the Communist assault. They said more than 1,000 structures were also destroyed in the raid. The Communist swarmed into the village after a mortar barrage sent men, women and children screaming from their homes, the sources said. They said 100 civilians were killed and 96 were wounded in the attack which one officer described as a "completely senseless attack against helpless people."

DEMOCRATS FAVOR INDOCHINA PULLOUT BY '72

HOUSE DEMOCRATS voted 138 to 62 Wednesday to support ending U.S. military involvement in Indochina by the end of 1972. It was the first time the House Democrats caucus had endorsed a pullout deadline and their resolution was even stronger than a similar decision by Senate Democrats in February. Wednesday's vote came as the House debated a bill to extend the Selective Service Act for two years. The bill is likely to become a test of strength for antiwar House members who want to impose restrictive amendments — including one to prevent use of draftees in Vietnam. The resolutions passed by the Democrats caucuses in the House and Senate have no binding effect on the party's war policy, but the House vote was a sharp departure from the original course of Democratic leaders there who had opposed placing a specific deadline for U.S. troop withdrawals.

QUINN CRITICIZES HUB POLICE FOR RIOT ACTIONS

ATTORNEY GENERAL Robert H. Quinn Wednesday criticized Boston police for overreacting and unprofessional conduct in quelling a civil disturbance last May 9-10 on Hemenway Street near Northeastern University. "There can be no doubt that some of those individuals assembled in the area provoked police by verbal and physical assault, both before and after the order to disperse was given," Quinn said in the 10-page report on police action in breaking up noisy block parties last spring. Residents later complained of police brutality and said their homes were entered and damaged by police. "These provocateurs were clearly in violation of the law, and while this might mitigate subsequent police actions, or make them more humanly understandable, this can in no way justify the fact that a number of police officers discharged their duties in an unprofessional manner inasmuch as they overreacted to the physical and vocal abuse directed at them by losing their self control and using unnecessary force to disperse the crowd," he said.

INCENDIARY FIRE CLAIMS 7 LIVES IN HUB COMPLEX

A FAST-MOVING FIRE, believed to be deliberately set, claimed seven lives Wednesday as it ripped through an apartment complex in Boston, filled with college students and elderly. "This fire was of incendiary origin," said Fire Chief George Paul as he surveyed the shell of the five-story building, a short distance from Fenway Park. A dozen persons were treated at City Hospital for burns and injuries. Several firemen collapsed from smoke inhalation. The dead were not immediately identified. Officials said more than 150 persons lived in the L-shaped structure at Peterboro and Jersey Streets.

Bartlett, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Newton Center, and formerly for 10 years president of Colgate Rochester Divinity School, will be the featured speaker at the 142nd annual meeting of the Massachusetts Conference of Baptist Ministers, Friday, April 23, at the South Congregational Church, Pittsfield.

Newton Rector Made Vicar Of Boston Church

Rt. Rev. John Melville Burgess DD., Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts has announced the appointment of Rector Robert W. Gollidge of the Church of the Messiah in Auburndale to succeed the Rev. Howard P. Kellett as Vicar of Christ Church in Boston, better known as Old North Church. Rev. Kellett retired last month.

Born in Springfield, the Rev. Mr. Gollidge graduated from Trinity College in Hartford and received his S.P.D. from the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge.

Durkin To Be MTA Delegate To Colorado

Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) President, Newton resident and teacher at the Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton, Richard J. Durkin has won election to serve as a delegate to the National Education Association (NEA) Constitutional Convention, which will convene in July at Ft. Collins, Colorado.

A Latin and French teacher at Chatham High School from 1950-61, Durkin has taught these subjects in Newton since 1962. He was elected President of the MTA in 1970 and will serve until July, 1971.

Dr. William H. Hebert, executive secretary of the 45,000-member MTA, the Massachusetts affiliate of the NEA, is vice chairman of the NEA Constitutional Convention Drafting Committee.

DeMolay Holds Events To Set National Week

The Newton Chapter of DeMolay observed the annual DeMolay Week from March 13th to 20th with two special events — the semi-annual public installation of officers with an impressive ceremony and a worship service at a local church chosen by the group. This year's worship was held in the Second Church in Newton.

The Newton group of DeMolay is very active, made up of young men in the area between the ages of 14 and 21 who conduct activities planned for the benefit of the community.

As part of an ecology program they will be sponsoring the recycling of paper in a paper drive and will conduct several car washes along with other civic projects.

Final Tax Rate Figure Yet To Be Determined

Operating Budget Of City Up Nearly $3-Million Over 1970

A 1971 operating budget of $46,652,812.25 for the city of Newton has been approved by the Board of Aldermen. It is up nearly $3 million over last year.

Three aldermen voted against passage of the record city budget —

Richard Bullwinkle, Thomas Concannon and Peter Harrington. Aldermen Joseph McDonnell opposed certain sections of the document.

Of the total amount approved by the city fathers at the end of two all day Saturday sessions, $23,453,500.83 covers the municipal government portion of the spending and $22,818,035 is for the school budget, which cannot, by law, be altered by the Mayor or the aldermen.

The municipal portion shows a rise of $1,149,178.61 over 1970 and the school budget reflects an increase of $1,669,226 over last year.

The aldermen, in their lengthy meetings, cut several minor items from the budget including the $10,000 a year position of Civil Defense Director as of July 1.

However, Finance Committee Chairman Edward C. Uehlein who expressed concern about the drastic method in which this cutback was achieved, said he will recommend to Mayor Monte G. Basbas the phasing out of the Civil Defense Dept. from a full time to a part time operation, and in the meantime the preservation of the director's position until a plan for him can be arranged.

The aldermen also cut the Police Department's request for $2500 for drug investigation to $100 since only $861 had been expended for that purpose in 1970.

However, the net result of the aldermen's deliberations was the restoration of $19,586.74 to the $330,276 cut by the Finance Committee from the Mayor's recommended budget.

The major restoration to the budget included funds to pay five additional firefighters.

As the figures stand the final budget would mean about an $8.25 increase in Newton's tax rate which stood at $113 in 1970.

However, the budget does not include raises for the majority of municipal personnel, including teachers, city hall employees, police and firefighters which are still being negotiated.

In addition, cherry sheet figures showing state distribution of funds to cities and towns will also have an as yet unknown effect on the 1971 rate.

The aldermen went along with several budget cuts BUDGET—(See Page 30)

Pros-Cons On Charter Change

100 Give Opinions At Public Hearing

More than 100 Newton residents expressed divided opinions at a public hearing on Monday night on several petitions for amendments to the city charter.

Four petitions dealt with proposed changes in the composition of the School Committee and the method of electing members. Though they varied, in each case the petitions called for more ward representation on the Committee. The fifth petition would adopt simpler initiative and referendum procedures than those recommended by the Charter Commission.

The Charter Commission elected by Newton voters in 1969, has proposed several changes in the current city charter. However, the Commission recommended no change in the method of electing School Committee members. The proposals must be accepted or rejected in total by the voters in this year's November election.

Petitions for charter amendments were presented on Monday night by people who disagreed with some of the Charter Commission's recommendations. The proposed amendments would have to be approved by two-thirds of the members of the Board of Aldermen in order to be placed on the ballot this fall.

New Welfare Fraud Revealed As Residency Law Is Sought

Some persons build up a rather substantial income by traveling from office to office collecting public welfare checks.

Nobody has directly charged that this flagrant and fraudulent abuse of the welfare system is perpetrated at the expense of the taxpaying public, but Senator Robert L. Cawley of West Roxbury indirectly confirmed that it does exist.

Senator Cawley has introduced a proposal in the State Legislature that persons be required to live in Massachusetts a year before becoming eligible to collect general relief in the Commonwealth.

In commenting on his measure, Cawley expressed the conviction that it "would prevent general relief recipients from traveling from one office to another collecting checks."

600 Honor Retired High School Coach

By BOB WORDEN

A gathering of nearly 600 people honored recently retired Newton High baseball coach Howard L. Ferguson at the plush Marriott Hotel in Auburndale last Thursday evening.

For coaches, friends, former ball players, associates and admirers of Howie Ferguson not only was it a chance to honor such a great man but, it was an opportunity to renew old acquaintances.

"Fergie" is a diminutive figure who's tough, gruff, stern and radiant intensity leaves him with the image of a glowing monument.

Wendall Bauckman, president of the board of Aldermen, paid perhaps the finest tribute to Fergie when he said "I never thought I would see the day when someone would be placed in the same category as Alfred Dickinson but, Howard Ferguson is in the same league with Dickinson. And that's the finest compliment I could pay."

Bauckman also presented Ferguson the key to the city of Newton (subbing for absent Mayor Basbas who was getting funds from the State) and also a proclamation declaring March 26, 1971 Howard L. Ferguson Day.

Superintendent Fink, lauded Ferguson for being "an outstanding coach, an outstanding human being and a builder of men."

Newton High Principal Richard Mechem in a short message described and defined the word superior and felt Ferguson had met these standards. "Your work has been surpassingly good and far above in comparison."

Guest speakers will be Father John Boles, newly appointed pro secretary of the Archdiocesan Department of Education and Father James McCarthy, head of the Quincy Catholic Education Association.

Newton Girl Takes Up Life In Israel

"I told everyone in the States I was going to Israel to live," recalls blue-eyed, 24-year-old Carol Kaplan of Newton and adds, "I knew nothing about it and I wasn't going to bother thinking about it. But when I got there, it was going to be forever."

At present, Carol is doing graduate work in English linguistics at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Reasons for going to Israel are as varied as overseas students themselves, but Carol's story is still unusual, for she had no Zionist or Jewish background before coming.

"I had a lot of black friends," explains Carol, "and I worked with blacks as the director of a tutoring project in a Mt. Vernon ghetto. They were all learning about their roots and I wanted to learn about my roots and my culture."

Carol, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Kaplan of 38 Hyde St., Newton Highlands, first arrived in Israel in December 1969.

She spent seven months on Kibbutz Hatzor (collective agricultural settlement), near Rehovot, where she studied Hebrew and worked in the fields.

On the whole, Carol was not enthusiastic about her stay, because of the language barrier and the problem of finding friends.

After kibbutz, Carol moved to Jerusalem and continued her Hebrew lessons at the local ulpan (intensive

Cong. Drinan Urges Contract 'Watchdog'

"The need for a watchdog over government contracts is becoming more and more evident," so declared Congressman Robert F. Drinan as he called for support of a House bill seeking to provide for annual reports to Congress by the Comptroller General concerning certain price increases in government contracts and certain failures to meet government contract completion dates.

In joining with his colleagues in co-sponsoring this legislation, Congressman Drinan is seeking close scrutiny and criticism, where necessary, of contracts of all executive agencies. The Government Accounting Office, under the proposal, would be charged with the overseeing of individual contracts for services and research, construction, alteration or repair of any kind requested by the government. It also would be the "watchdog" in the manufacture or furnishing of materials for which the government has contracted. In all cases, specific reports would be issued at specific intervals.

"The TFX plane, the C-5A transport and the Cheyenne helicopter are just three glaring examples of the failures that the American taxpayer has subsidized in silence. The government has willingly poured money into these areas and as we all know, overrunning in defense work are more costly than in any other areas," Congressman Drinan said.

People interested in painting with acrylics should read his book, The Art of Polymer Painting.

The talented Mr. Hayes will work in acrylics. All members and guests are cordially invited.

Sherbrooke Road was ransacked as well. Entry was made by breaking glass in the back door and it was not immediately known what was stolen.

There seemed to be nothing taken from the Woolworth's at 1199 Centre Street, Newton Centre, following the scaring-off of an intruder by police late Thursday.

Patrolman Francis Burokas, after noticing that the store's door had been forced open, investigated and, upon hearing noises on the premises, radioed for help.

The intruder who left a walkie-talkie at the scene, hurried out a rear door before police could catch up with him, however.

Piggybanks Fall Prey To Thieves

Among the four house-breaks reported to Newton police last Thursday was the incident that took place at the home of Martin Phillips, at 41 Avalon Road, in which the bedrooms were ransacked and the cash from several piggybanks taken by thieves who apparently had gained entry to the house by forcing a rear cellar door.

A diamond pin and a silver service for eight were reported missing from the 41 Concolor Street home of Mabel J. Finnell. A clipped lock was discovered on the front door.

Also on Thursday, an unlocked back door allowed thieves to enter the home of Marilyn Bates of 143 Upland Road. The house was ransacked and it has not yet been determined what was taken.

Door-to-Door Rackets

This is the time of year when the door-to-door rackets begin.

A pleasant-mannered "hustler" rings your doorbell.

As he was passing by, he happened to notice that your chimney is in urgent need of repair, or that your trees need surgery, or that your driveway should have some blacktop, or that your lawn could stand some loam.

Some of them are legitimate and will do an honest job for the price they quote. Too many are not. When they get your chimney dismantled, they'll find it is a bigger job than they thought, and the price goes up.

If you have these passers-by do any work, keep in mind there is a possibility you will be over-charged, that poor quality materials will be used and that the workmanship will be sloppy.

You do not have the same recourse as you do with an established merchant in your community who cannot afford to take advantage of you.

If you take a chance with a hit-and-run vendor, there is a strong likelihood you will be victimized.

Something's Wrong

Following World War I, the textile industry on which much of New England's economic well-being was based through the late 19th and early 20th centuries, began to encounter rough going. Slowly at first and then at a steadily increasing pace, cities like Manchester, N.H., Lowell, Lawrence, New Bedford and Fall River began to feel the squeeze.

From the South came a siren's lure of generous tax concessions and low wages. At first it wasn't a case of instant prosperity below the Mason-Dixon line. A plant in Roanoke, Ala., was paying as low as $9 for a 60-hour week for some of its unskilled hands. In 1920 the same mill was obliged to close down for a long period.

It came back to know a long stretch of prosperity. Now those southern textile centers are coming to experience some of the worries New England "mill towns" knew several decades back. Since 1969, 50 southern textile plants have been obliged to shut down. In 1970 alone the Department of Labor estimates that 27,200 textile workers lost their jobs.

Blamed for the downturn in their fortunes are bad market conditions, higher prices, high interest rates but above all—competition from abroad. Japan has provided most of the foreign competition but one major plant attributes its down-slide to West German manufacturers. Even imports from India have seriously hurt.

One of the most touchy of all American political issues in the United States for years has been that of foreign trade regulation. There's no reason to believe a satisfactory answer is on the horizon despite House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills' recent surprising dickerings with Japan on textiles.

Japan's major manufacturing centers were bomb-crushed when she came to the surrender table on the deck of the U.S.S. Missouri. Today she is one of the world's top industrial nations. West Germany's big cities appeared to have been rendered impotent for decades. She offers a show case of manufacturing efficiency today. American wheat serves to help keep starving India alive.

New England reluctantly accepts the loss of her textiles. She can't be blamed if she's unhappy about the threatened complete loss of her shoe and fishing industries. Her clipper ships were forerunners in the establishment of world commerce.

The region has reason to ask — "Are we as a nation failing to preserve our proper place in the world market?"

Red Tape Costs

By June 30, 18 New York City public hospitals will face financial disaster unless heroic measures are taken to raise millions of dollars for them in the meantime.

Part of the fiscal problems have risen from the failure over a long period of time to collect from so-called third parties, Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance firms, a rightful share of contract payments for patient services.

Delays and failures to make proper claims within specified time periods, it is alleged, cost the hospitals over $2 million within a year. The reasons for the failures and delays appear to be weak.

Those reasons are focused on a lack of trained help to handle billings. Secondary causes are linked to the massive red tape concerned, particularly in the matter of Medicare and Medicaid.

Bureaucracies and red tape go together. The larger the bureaucracy becomes the faster its penchant for red tape increases. The taxpayer who must meet the bill has every reason to demand a full accounting of expenditures whether his dollar goes for road building or hospitalization.

In the complex world of major bureaus, protection of that dollar seems to call for reams of triplicate and quadruplicate forms, signatures of many different persons and varied channels for the dispatch of different forms.

Add to the forms, instructions written in the gobbledygook only a bureau can command. Those New York hospitals should have collected every penny due them from third parties. It might have been easier, however, if some of that red tape could have been eliminated.

-Political Highlights-

While declining to elaborate on his remarks, Cawley indicated that the interim report of the Welfare Investigating Committee "will provide relevant figures on the extent of this type of abuse."

Cawley is chairman of the Special Welfare Investigating Committee and consequently in a position to know about the frauds and abuses it has uncovered.

After observing that "the crisis in the state's general relief program is beyond belief, Cawley declared that he offered his proposal to the Legislature after investigators for his committee discovered that a large number of people getting general relief in Massachusetts have resided in the State only a short period of time.

"People from outside the country are collecting payments from the program," Cawley disclosed. He observed that the cost of the general relief program in the Bay State has tripled in the last few years.

"The general relief program provides funds for individuals and families who do not qualify under any other state or federal welfare program," Cawley pointed out. As such, he said, "it has become a haven for people unwilling to help themselves and has acted to attract potential welfare clients to the State."

While opposition to Cawley's measure undoubtedly will develop, his proposal seems to be a worthwhile one.

Tempers wore thin and nerves became frayed during the long hearing at the State House on proposals for revising and relaxing the laws which now outlaw abortions in Massachusetts.

The lines were tightly drawn on the issue, with sharply opposing factions, each of which showed little courtesy to the other.

William Baird, loud and undiplomatic advocate of legalized abortion, undoubtedly was responsible for some of the bitterness among both his supporters and opponents.

But feeling would have run high at the hearing even if Baird was not involved.

The proceedings had religious overtones, and there was no meeting ground on which a compromise could be reached.

On the Sunday before the hearings statements from the Bishops in Massachusetts, opposing any relaxation in the statutes forbidding abortion, had been read from the altars in Catholic churches across the Commonwealth.

This, of course, had an impact upon Catholic lawmakers, and, as Massachusetts is a Catholic state, so are a majority of the members of the Legislature Catholics.

This is one of the reasons the abortion bills are given little chance of passage on Beacon Hill this year.

The Boston Globe reported on the morning after the abortion hearing that a poll showed Massachusetts residents favor "reforms in the laws governing abortion and divorce in the state."

"Despite the Catholic Church's stand on these issues, a majority of Catholics favor easing birth control laws and allowing divorce on the basis of incompatibility. Forty-five per cent of the Catholics favor abortion reform," declared the Globe which published poll returns to back up its findings.

Despite these assertions, the average law-maker approached the issue gingerly, and most Catholic legislators indicated they were standing with the hierarchy of the Catholic Church in the controversy.

State Senator Jack H. Backman of Brookline, chairman of the legislative social welfare committee which conducted the hearing, is Jewish and has filed a bill to change the abortion law. But he came in for abuse from both sides and from some of his own committee members.

Birth control laws eventually will be eased in Massachusetts, but probably not this year and certainly not in an emotion-charged atmosphere such as prevailed at the abortion hearings.

A columnist for a Boston daily newspaper went pretty far in declaring that the hearing on the abortion bills "brought out the worst side of many legislators, whose emotionalism and religiosity degraded an important legislative issue—and degraded them."

"Let's take religion out of the abortion law issue in Massachusetts," the columnist declared.

"The piety and sanctimony of many legislators opposing modification of the state's abortion laws this week had the overbearing ring of unctuous moralism and church doctrine," she asserted.

Those remarks presumably were directed at the Catholic Church since it, not the legislators, has put religion into the issue.

The Catholic Church could take religion out of the issue by dropping its opposition to abortion, something it obviously has no intention of doing in the immediate future.

Comments and observations by some of the lawmakers were open to question. At the same time a Catholic legislator has as much right to maintain that an abortion is morally wrong as Mr. Baird has to shout that it is needed in Massachusetts.

Mr. Baird's proposals are out of line with the present temper and conviction of a majority of the legislators, most of whom are not actually as bad as they're pictured in some columns.

Dems May Kill Each Other In Battle to Get at Nixon

Virtually all the polls indicate that President Nixon's popularity is dropping and that he would be defeated by Maine's Senator Edmund Muskie if an election were held today.

Paradoxically, the fact that Nixon's political stock is slumping might react to his advantage in the end if the Democratic Presidential contenders begin to kill each other off.

Regardless of which poll you study or what set of figures you analyze, the fact is that the tide of public opinion appears quite definitely to be running against President Nixon.

As that becomes increasingly clear, the Democratic nomination for President becomes more coveted, and the likelihood becomes greater that the Democrats may cut each other up.

Political observers are virtually agreed that the man selected as the Democratic nominee for President next year must demonstrate his vote-pulling ability by winning some of the Presidential Primaries. That means political in-fighting.

Senator Muskie is considered to be well out in front in the race for the Presidential nomination,

NO APRIL FOOLIN'

but he, too, must still win in the 1972 primaries in order to tie up the nomination.

One advantage Muskie will have is that he should do extremely well in the first-in-the-nation Presidential Primary in neighboring New Hampshire next March.

Muskie certainly should be stronger in New Hampshire than Senator George McGovern of South Dakota. Senator Hughes or any of the other darkhorse contenders.

Collins, Donahue, Graham Big Success in Panel Debut

Former Boston Mayor John F. Collins and his two fellow panelists, former Senate President Maurice A. Donahue and former Republican State Senate Leader Philip A. Graham, were so good in their debut on Channel 7 that it is unfortunate they do not have a spot when they might draw the watching and listening audience they deserve.

Collins heads one of the best panel shows of its kind this writer has seen. But if it remains at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoons, it will be competing with Red Sox baseball later in the spring as well as the attraction of the outdoors.

Their choice of welfare as their initial topic was a timely one, and if Commissioner Minter appears with them this Sunday, some answers may be provided to a problem that is troubling countless thousands of taxpayers.

But it is a show which deserves prime time on a weekday night.

As the professional politicians see it, Muskie is the only Democratic Presidential aspirant who at the present time has the money, organization and general acceptance to make a successful run for the nomination.

They think a big victory for Muskie in New Hampshire might give him impetus which would aid him in Wisconsin, Oregon, and other states on which the spotlight of public attention will be focused when the Presidential Primaries are held next year.

Next to Muskie, the political experts rate Senator Edward M. Kennedy. They expect that Ted Kennedy will not enter any Presidential Primaries and will withdraw from any where he is entered by other people.

But they believe the Democratic party might turn to Ted if Muskie falters and it appears he cannot defeat President Nixon.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota is not considered to have any chance of being tapped by his party unless he defeats Muskie in some of the primaries.

Senators Jackson, Hughes and Birch Bayh are all darkhorse candidates who are believed to be trying to set themselves up so they might be chosen as the nominee for Vice President.

No Democratic Candidates Yet to Run Against Brooke

So far there has been no indication that anyone of prominence in the Democratic party in Massachusetts is interested in standing against Senator Edward W. Brooke next year.

A volunteer or two might step forward if the trend continues to develop against President Nixon, not so much because of the possibility of defeating Brooke, as in the likelihood of being rewarded by a Democratic President if one is elected.

At the moment, however, there appears to be a total lack of interest on the part of prominent Democrats in challenging Brooke.

Former Boston Mayor John F. Collins, highly successful in his academic role as professor at M.I.T. and as a consultant in the municipal world, is not interested in returning to politics as an active combatant.

Ex-Governor Endicott Peabody is not disposed to interrupt the law practice in which he is busily engaged in Washington for a return match with Brooke who defeated Peabody in 1966.

Almost everyone else you could mention—House Speaker David Bartley, Senator President Kevin Harrington, his cousin Congressman Michael Harrington—would be obliged to surrender the offices they hold if they undertook the long shot gamble of beating Brooke.

Attorney General Robert Quinn would be a logical

Newton, County Urged to Block Courthouse Aid

Newton and other Middlesex County municipalities were asked recently to officially oppose passage of further bond issues for the construction of the new Middlesex County Courthouse until the completion of a study which will look into reducing the final cost of the structure.

The State House of Representatives' Assistant Republican Whip, William G. Robinson of Melrose, sent a letter to the official governing board of each city and town, requesting that a recorded vote in support of an order he submitted to the General Court on February 8 be sent to the House.

In that order, Robinson asked for a study to investigate and recommend ways and means of completing the building at the lowest possible cost. The order has been tied up in committee procedure, and no action has been taken.

Robinson noted that: "I have taken this action because I have no confidence that the Middlesex County Commissioners can properly handle the financing and construction of this building."

He recommended that "cities and towns use this opportunity to express their feelings on the courthouse to their local Representatives and Senators. This will be a legitimate lobbying effort, undeniably in the public interest," he concluded.

candidate, but he's waiting for a 1974 run for the Governorship.

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White is a possibility, but he first would have to win reelection next November.

A factor in White's favor is that he is the only person who ever defeated Brooke in a state-wide election. He turned the trick in 1960 when they were opponents for the office of Secretary of State.

Militating against White would be the fact that it would be the third hard fight in three years for him.

Some political observers are beginning to suspect that the Democratic party may have to turn in the end to Professor John Kenneth Galbraith. They think Galbraith might be willing to test his vote-pulling ability in a contest with Brooke.

Law-Makers Trying to Ban Display of Viet Cong Flag

Two members of the Massachusetts Legislature have been the target for what seems to be some unduly harsh criticism for seeking to ban the display of the Viet Cong flag in this State.

The bill, which some legal experts say is unconstitutional, has been passed by the House of Representatives and is now awaiting action by the State Senate.

But is it all that bad to try to outlaw the display of an enemy flag?

To tell you the truth, we think the demonstrators and pickets who carry the Viet Cong flag are unpatriotic, display poor taste and come pretty close to committing treason.

We're for getting our troops out of Vietnam and extricating ourselves from the war in Indo-China before we're involved in one with Red China.

But we're not in favor of pinning any medals on the Viet Cong for killing American boys.

We can understand why the Veterans of Foreign Wars had Representative William I. Kitterman of Pittsfield file a bill prohibiting the display of any flag of any country engaged in a hostile action with the United States.

Representative William F. Hogan of Everett had the measure revised so that the ban applied only to the Viet Cong flag.

It must be rather galling for a man who has fought for his country to watch so-called peace demonstrators march past carrying the enemy flag of the Viet Cong.

Chas. McCarthy To Run As Independent Against Brooke

Attorney Charles C. McCarthy of Newton will announce this coming Sunday that he will be a candidate for the U.S. Senate next year.

This is not likely to cause any panic at the offices of Senator Edward W. Brooke even though McCarthy is a bright, energetic, 30-year-old graduate of the University of Notre Dame and Boston College Law School.

Mr. McCarthy intends to run as an independent candidate, and Massachusetts, of course, is still basically a two-party state.

He outlines some intriguing ideas and declares that one-half of the contributions he gets will be used to feed people who are hungry and clothe and shelter people who are enduring a misfortune.

His candidacy points up the fact that the Democratic party has a dearth of political hopefuls who would like to carry their party's banner against Senator Brooke.

Predict A Volunteer Army, Only Standby Draft By 1973

Some Washington observers predict that only a standby draft will be in operation in 1973.

They express the conviction that service in the armed forces will be made sufficiently attractive that it will be possible to recruit a volunteer army by '73.

In that event, the draft would be utilized only if the President declares a national emergency. Otherwise, the nation would rely on a volunteer army, navy and air force.

Aronson Named Chairman Of Walk Group in Newton

At an initial organization meeting March 9, the Wellesley Walk Committee for Project Concern appointed Mrs. Robert C. Morrow and Mrs. James B. Tofas as co-chairman of the May 2 Project Concern Walk for Mankind. The Walk Committee is composed of members of the Wellesley Hills Junior Women's Club and members of Newton and Wellesley youth groups.

At this meeting, Steve Aronson was appointed chairman of the Non-Wellesley Walkers committee. Steve is currently a senior at Newton South High School where the Newton drive will be centered. All interested Newtonites are urged to call Steve at 969-3960, or write to him at 65 Longfellow Rd., Newton 02162.

Project Concern, an international, non-profit medical service organization was founded in 1962 by James Turpin, a Southern California MD, who, to paraphrase John Donne, was interested in becoming "Involved in Mankind."

Today, Project Concern maintains five medical clinics in Hong Kong, two hospitals in the Central Highlands of Vietnam, a maternity and pediatric hospital in Tijuana, Mexico, clinics in Bisti, New Mexico and North Central Tennessee.

In joining with his colleagues in co-sponsoring this legislation, Congressman Drinan is seeking close scrutiny and criticism, where necessary, of contracts of all executive agencies. The Government Accounting Office, under the proposal, would be charged with the overseeing of individual contracts for services and research, construction, alteration or repair of any kind requested by the government. It also would be the "watchdog" in the manufacture or furnishing of materials for which the government has contracted. In all cases, specific reports would be issued at specific intervals.

Cong. Drinan Urges Contract 'Watchdog'

"The need for a watchdog over government contracts is becoming more and more evident," so declared Congressman Robert F. Drinan as he called for support of a House bill seeking to provide for annual reports to Congress by the Comptroller General concerning certain price increases in government contracts and certain failures to meet government contract completion dates.

In joining with his colleagues in co-sponsoring this legislation, Congressman Drinan is seeking close scrutiny and criticism, where necessary, of contracts of all executive agencies. The Government Accounting Office, under the proposal, would be charged with the overseeing of individual contracts for services and research, construction, alteration or repair of any kind requested by the government. It also would be the "watchdog" in the manufacture or furnishing of materials for which the government has contracted. In all cases, specific reports would be issued at specific intervals.

"The TFX plane, the C-5A transport and the Cheyenne helicopter are just three glaring examples of the failures that the American taxpayer has subsidized in silence. The government has willingly poured money into these areas and as we all know, overrunning in defense work are more costly than in any other areas," Congressman Drinan said.

Sherbrooke Road was ransacked as well. Entry was made by breaking glass in the back door and it was not immediately known what was stolen.

There seemed to be nothing taken from the Woolworth's at 1199 Centre Street, Newton Centre, following the scaring-off of an intruder by police late Thursday.

Patrolman Francis Burokas, after noticing that the store's door had been forced open, investigated and, upon hearing noises on the premises, radioed for help.

The intruder who left a walkie-talkie at the scene, hurried out a rear door before police could catch up with him, however.

Piggybanks Fall Prey To Thieves

Among the four housebreaks reported to Newton police last Thursday was the incident that took place at the home of Martin Phillips, at 41 Avalon Road, in which the bedrooms were ransacked and the cash from several piggybanks taken by thieves who apparently had gained entry to the house by forcing a rear cellar door.

A diamond pin and a silver service for eight were reported missing from the 41 Concolor Street home of Mabel J. Finnell. A clipped lock was discovered on the front door.

Also on Thursday, an unlocked back door allowed thieves to enter the home of Marilyn Bates of 143 Upland Road. The house was ransacked and it has not yet been determined what was taken.

Door-to-Door Rackets

This is the time of year when the door-to-door rackets begin.

A pleasant-mannered "hustler" rings your doorbell.

As he was passing by, he happened to notice that your chimney is in urgent need of repair, or that your trees need surgery, or that your driveway should have some blacktop, or that your lawn could stand some loam.

Some of them are legitimate and will do an honest job for the price they quote. Too many are not. When they get your chimney dismantled, they'll find it is a bigger job than they thought, and the price goes up.

If you have these passers-by do any work, keep in mind there is a possibility you will be over-charged, that poor quality materials will be used and that the workmanship will be sloppy.

You do not have the same recourse as you do with an established merchant in your community who cannot afford to take advantage of you.

If you take a chance with a hit-and-run vendor, there is a strong likelihood you will be victimized.

Something's Wrong

Following World War I, the textile industry on which much of New England's economic well-being was based through the late 19th and early 20th centuries, began to encounter rough going. Slowly at first and then at a steadily increasing pace, cities like Manchester, N.H., Lowell, Lawrence, New Bedford and Fall River began to feel the squeeze.

From the South came a siren's lure of generous tax concessions and low wages. At first it wasn't a case of instant prosperity below the Mason-Dixon line. A plant in Roanoke, Ala., was paying as low as $9 for a 60-hour week for some of its unskilled hands. In 1920 the same mill was obliged to close down for a long period.

It came back to know a long stretch of prosperity. Now those southern textile centers are coming to experience some of the worries New England "mill towns" knew several decades back. Since 1969, 50 southern textile plants have been obliged to shut down. In 1970 alone the Department of Labor estimates that 27,200 textile workers lost their jobs.

Blamed for the downturn in their fortunes are bad market conditions, higher prices, high interest rates but above all—competition from abroad. Japan has provided most of the foreign competition but one major plant attributes its down-slide to West German manufacturers. Even imports from India have seriously hurt.

One of the most touchy of all American political issues in the United States for years has been that of foreign trade regulation. There's no reason to believe a satisfactory answer is on the horizon despite House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills' recent surprising dickerings with Japan on textiles.

Japan's major manufacturing centers were bomb-crushed when she came to the surrender table on the deck of the U.S.S. Missouri. Today she is one of the world's top industrial nations. West Germany's big cities appeared to have been rendered impotent for decades. She offers a show case of manufacturing efficiency today. American wheat serves to help keep starving India alive.

New England reluctantly accepts the loss of her textiles. She can't be blamed if she's unhappy about the threatened complete loss of her shoe and fishing industries. Her clipper ships were forerunners in the establishment of world commerce.

The region has reason to ask — "Are we as a nation failing to preserve our proper place in the world market?"

Red Tape Costs

By June 30, 18 New York City public hospitals will face financial disaster unless heroic measures are taken to raise millions of dollars for them in the meantime.

Part of the fiscal problems have risen from the failure over a long period of time to collect from so-called third parties, Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance firms, a rightful share of contract payments for patient services.

Delays and failures to make proper claims within specified time periods, it is alleged, cost the hospitals over $2 million within a year. The reasons for the failures and delays appear to be weak.

Those reasons are focused on a lack of trained help to handle billings. Secondary causes are linked to the massive red tape concerned, particularly in the matter of Medicare and Medicaid.

Bureaucracies and red tape go together. The larger the bureaucracy becomes the faster its penchant for red tape increases. The taxpayer who must meet the bill has every reason to demand a full accounting of expenditures whether his dollar goes for road building or hospitalization.

In the complex world of major bureaus, protection of that dollar seems to call for reams of triplicate and quadruplicate forms, signatures of many different persons and varied channels for the dispatch of different forms.

Add to the forms, instructions written in the gobbledygook only a bureau can command. Those New York hospitals should have collected every penny due them from third parties. It might have been easier, however, if some of that red tape could have been eliminated.

-Political Highlights-

While declining to elaborate on his remarks, Cawley indicated that the interim report of the Welfare Investigating Committee "will provide relevant figures on the extent of this type of abuse."

Cawley is chairman of the Special Welfare Investigating Committee and consequently in a position to know about the frauds and abuses it has uncovered.

After observing that "the crisis in the state's general relief program is beyond belief, Cawley declared that he offered his proposal to the Legislature after investigators for his committee discovered that a large number of people getting general relief in Massachusetts have resided in the State only a short period of time.

"People from outside the country are collecting payments from the program," Cawley disclosed. He observed that the cost of the general relief program in the Bay State has tripled in the last few years.

"The general relief program provides funds for individuals and families who do not qualify under any other state or federal welfare program," Cawley pointed out. As such, he said, "it has become a haven for people unwilling to help themselves and has acted to attract potential welfare clients to the State."

While opposition to Cawley's measure undoubtedly will develop, his proposal seems to be a worthwhile one.

Tempers wore thin and nerves became frayed during the long hearing at the State House on proposals for revising and relaxing the laws which now outlaw abortions in Massachusetts.

The lines were tightly drawn on the issue, with sharply opposing factions, each of which showed little courtesy to the other.

William Baird, loud and undiplomatic advocate of legalized abortion, undoubtedly was responsible for some of the bitterness among both his supporters and opponents.

But feeling would have run high at the hearing even if Baird was not involved.

The proceedings had religious overtones, and there was no meeting ground on which a compromise could be reached.

On the Sunday before the hearings statements from the Bishops in Massachusetts, opposing any relaxation in the statutes forbidding abortion, had been read from the altars in Catholic churches across the Commonwealth.

This, of course, had an impact upon Catholic lawmakers, and, as Massachusetts is a Catholic state, so are a majority of the members of the Legislature Catholics.

This is one of the reasons the abortion bills are given little chance of passage on Beacon Hill this year. The Boston Globe reported on the morning after the abortion hearing that a poll showed Massachusetts residents favor "reforms in the laws governing abortion and divorce in the state."

"Despite the Catholic Church's stand on these issues, a majority of Catholics favor easing birth control laws and allowing divorce on the basis of incompatibility. Forty-five per cent of the Catholics favor abortion reform," declared the Globe which published poll returns to back up its findings.

Despite these assertions, the average law-maker approached the issue gingerly, and most Catholic legislators indicated they were standing with the hierarchy of the Catholic Church in the controversy.

State Senator Jack H. Backman of Brookline, chairman of the legislative social welfare committee which conducted the hearing, is Jewish and has filed a bill to change the abortion law. But he came in for abuse from both sides and from some of his own committee members.

Birth control laws eventually will be eased in Massachusetts, but probably not this year and certainly not in an emotion-charged atmosphere such as prevailed at the abortion hearings.

A columnist for a Boston daily newspaper went pretty far in declaring that the hearing on the abortion bills "brought out the worst side of many legislators, whose emotionalism and religiosity degraded an important legislative issue—and degraded them."

"Let's take religion out of the abortion law issue in Massachusetts," the columnist declared.

"The piety and sanctimony of many legislators opposing modification of the state's abortion laws this week had the overbearing ring of unctuous moralism and church doctrine," she asserted.

Those remarks presumably were directed at the Catholic Church since it, not the legislators, has put religion into the issue.

The Catholic Church could take religion out of the issue by dropping its opposition to abortion, something it obviously has no intention of doing in the immediate future.

Comments and observations by some of the lawmakers were open to question. At the same time a Catholic legislator has as much right to maintain that an abortion is morally wrong as Mr. Baird has to shout that it is needed in Massachusetts.

Mr. Baird's proposals are out of line with the present temper and conviction of a majority of the legislators, most of whom are not actually as bad as they're pictured in some columns.

Dems May Kill Each Other In Battle to Get at Nixon

Virtually all the polls indicate that President Nixon's popularity is dropping and that he would be defeated by Maine's Senator Edmund Muskie if an election were held today.

Paradoxically, the fact that Nixon's political stock is slumping might react to his advantage in the end if the Democratic Presidential contenders begin to kill each other off.

Regardless of which poll you study or what set of figures you analyze, the fact is that the tide of public opinion appears quite definitely to be running against President Nixon.

As that becomes increasingly clear, the Democratic nomination for President becomes more coveted, and the likelihood becomes greater that the Democrats may cut each other up.

Political observers are virtually agreed that the man selected as the Democratic nominee for President next year must demonstrate his vote-pulling ability by winning some of the Presidential Primaries. That means political infighting.

Senator Muskie is considered to be well out in front in the race for the Presidential nomination,

NO APRIL FOOLIN'

but he, too, must still win in the 1972 primaries in order to tie up the nomination.

One advantage Muskie will have is that he should do extremely well in the first-in-the-nation Presidential Primary in neighboring New Hampshire next March.

Muskie certainly should be stronger in New Hampshire than Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, Senator Hughes or any of the other darkhorse contenders.

Collins, Donahue, Graham Big Success in Panel Debut

Former Boston Mayor John F. Collins and his two fellow panelists, former Senate President Maurice A. Donahue and former Republican State Senate Leader Philip A. Graham, were so good in their debut on Channel 7 that it is unfortunate they do not have a spot when they might draw the watching and listening audience they deserve.

Collins heads one of the best panel show of its kind this writer has seen. But if it remains at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoons, it will be competing with Red Sox baseball later in the spring as well as the attraction of the outdoors.

Their choice of welfare as their initial topic was a timely one, and if Commissioner Minter appears with them this Sunday, some answers may be provided to a problem that is troubling countless thousands of taxpayers.

But it is a show which deserves prime time on a weekday night.

As the professional politicians see it, Muskie is the only Democratic Presidential aspirant who at the present time has the money, organization and general acceptance to make a successful run for the nomination.

They think a big victory for Muskie in New Hampshire might give him impetus which would aid him in Wisconsin, Oregon, and other states on which the spotlight of public attention will be focused when the Presidential Primaries are held next year.

Next to Muskie, the political experts rate Senator Edward M. Kennedy. They expect that Ted Kennedy will not enter any Presidential Primaries and will withdraw from any where he is entered by other people.

But they believe the Democratic party might turn to Ted if Muskie falters and it appears he cannot defeat President Nixon.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota is not considered to have any chance of being tapped by his party unless he defeats Muskie in some of the primaries.

Sensors Jackson, Hughes and Birch Bayh are all darkhorse candidates who are believed to be trying to set themselves up so they might be chosen as the nominee for Vice President.

No Democratic Candidates Yet to Run Against Brooke

So far there has been no indication that anyone of prominence in the Democratic party in Massachusetts is interested in standing against Senator Edward W. Brooke next year.

A volunteer or two might step forward if the trend continues to develop against President Nixon, not so much because of the possibility of defeating Brooke, as in the likelihood of being rewarded by a Democratic President if one is elected.

At the moment, however, there appears to be a total lack of interest on the part of prominent Democrats in challenging Brooke.

Former Boston Mayor John F. Collins, highly successful in his academic role as professor at M.I.T. and as a consultant in the municipal world, is not interested in returning to politics as an active combatant.

Ex-Governor Endicott Peabody is not disposed to interrupt the law practise in which he is busily engaged in Washington for a return match with Brooke who defeated Peabody in 1966.

Almost everyone else you could mention—House Speaker David Bartley, Senate President Kevin Harrington, his cousin Congressman Michael Harrington—would be obliged to surrender the offices they hold if they undertook the long shot gamble of beating Brooke.

Attorney General Robert Quinn would be a logical

Newton, County Urged to Block Courthouse Aid

Newton and other Middlesex County municipalities were asked recently to officially oppose passage of further bond issues for the construction of the new Middlesex County Courthouse until the completion of a study which will look into reducing the final cost of the structure.

The State House of Representatives' Assistant Republican Whip, William G. Robinson of Melrose, sent a letter to the official governing board of each city and town, requesting that a recorded vote in support of an order he submitted to the General Court on February 8 be sent to the House.

In that order, Robinson asked for a study to investigate and recommend ways and means of completing the building at the lowest possible cost. The order has been tied up in committee procedure, and no action has been taken.

Robinson noted that: "I have taken this action because I have no confidence that the Middlesex County Commissioners can properly handle the financing and construction of this building."

He recommended that "cities and towns use this opportunity to express their feelings on the courthouse to their local Representatives and Senators. This will be a legitimate lobbying effort, undeniably in the public interest," he concluded.

candidate, but he's waiting for a 1974 run for the Governorship.

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White is a possibility, but he first would have to win reelection next November.

A factor in White's favor is that he is the only person who ever defeated Brooke in a state-wide election. He turned the trick in 1960 when they were opponents for the office of Secretary of State.

Militating against White would be the fact that it would be the third hard fight in three years for him.

Some political observers are beginning to suspect that the Democratic party may have to turn in the end to Professor John Kenneth Galbraith. They think Galbraith might be willing to test his vote-pulling ability in a contest with Brooke.

Law-Makers Trying to Ban Display of Viet Cong Flag

Two members of the Massachusetts Legislature have been the target for what seems to be some unduly harsh criticism for seeking to ban the display of the Viet Cong Flag in this State.

The bill, which some legal experts say is unconstitutional, has been passed by the House of Representatives and is now awaiting action by the State Senate.

But is it all that bad to try to outlaw the display of an enemy flag?

To tell you the truth, we think the demonstrators and pickets who carry the Viet Cong Flag are unpatriotic, display poor taste and come pretty close to committing treason.

We're for getting our troops out of Vietnam and extricating ourselves from the war in Indo-China before we're involved in one with Red China.

But we're not in favor of pinning any medals on the Viet Cong for killing American boys.

We can understand why the Veterans of Foreign Wars had Representative William L. Kitterman of Pittsfield file a bill prohibiting the display of any flag of any country engaged in a hostile action with the United States.

Representative William F. Hogan of Everett had the measure revised so that the ban applied only to the Viet Cong Flag.

It must be rather galling for a man who has fought for his country to watch so-called peace demonstrators march past carrying the enemy flag of the Viet Cong.

Chas. McCarthy To Run As Independent Against Brooke

Attorney Charles C. McCarthy of Newton will announce this coming Sunday that he will be a candidate for the U.S. Senate next year.

This is not likely to cause any panic at the offices of Senator Edward W. Brooke even though McCarthy is a bright, energetic, 30-year-old graduate of the University of Notre Dame and Boston College Law School.

Mr. McCarthy intends to run as an independent candidate, and Massachusetts, of course, is still basically a two-party state.

He outlines some intriguing ideas and declares that one-half of the contributions he gets will be used to feed people who are hungry and clothe and shelter people who are enduring a misfortune.

His candidacy points up the fact that the Democratic party has a dearth of political hopefuls who would like to carry their party's banner against Senator Brooke.

Predict A Volunteer Army, Only Standby Draft By 1973

Some Washington observers predict that only a standby draft will be in operation in 1973.

They express the conviction that service in the armed forces will be made sufficiently attractive that it will be possible to recruit a volunteer army by '73.

In that event, the draft would be utilized only if the President declares a national emergency. Otherwise, the nation would rely on a volunteer army, navy and air force.

Church Women United Workshop Due Friday

The April Workshop of Church Women United in Newton will be held tomorrow Friday, April 2, at Union Church in Waban, 14 Collins Road, Waban, at 10 a.m. with Mrs. Robert F. Bradley, Sr., of Auburndale as Chairman of the Day.

A program celebrating both the Easter and Passover seasons will be presented through an illustrated talk given by Mrs. J. Robert Nelson on "Easter in Rome" and a talk by Mrs. Murray I. Rothman on "The Passover" with accompanying songs and music.

She has traveled extensively around the world with her theologian husband who has been a leader in the World Council of Churches and in the movement toward church unity.

Mrs. Nelson has written numerous articles in the field of health and attended the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health. Two years ago the Nelsons lived in Rome where Rev. Nelson was the first Protestant theologian to teach at the prestigious Catholic Gregorian University and was received by the Pope four times while Mrs. Nelson had two such audiences. Mrs. Rothman, a native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, was graduated from Ohio State University with a B.S. in Occupational Therapy. In 1954 she and her husband, Rabbi Murray I. Rothman, moved to Newton where they now live with their two daughters. Mrs. Rothman has been active in interfaith discussion groups through the years. She and her family have presented a variety of interreligious programs to the community at large. Last year during the Passover season, such a program was presented to 300 teaching nuns at Cardinal Cushing College.

Assisting Mrs. Bradley will be Mrs. Ralph Schoonmaker, who will play for community singing, together with Mrs. William B. Deborah Megrian Involved in Off Campus Project

The "ivory tower" is being evacuated at Ottawa University in Ottawa, Kansas, where Deborah Megrian of Newton is a student. Mrs. Megrian is a junior and the daughter of Louis Jones of Burlington.

Through group and individual projects, students move off-campus to point all over the world for study and research. So the old belief that the university is a sheltered hall removed from realities of life, no longer is valid.

During the junior year, each student is involved in a 14-week off-campus study program in this or some other country. At other times, students leave the campus for group or individual study projects.

The off-campus emphasis is one facet of an innovative program initiated by the 105-year-old Kansas university last fall.

Women's Group Plans Dessert, Bridge Party

Startled by Editorial

Editor of the Graphic:

I was startled at your editorial, "Those Sob Stories," The Newton Graphic, March 11, 1971. Your selection of the hi-jacker as typical of the large number of conscientious objectors in Canada, Cuba or Sweden seems no more sensible than the selection of the My Lai principals as typical of the large number of draftees and volunteers who have served their country when they were called.

For as long as men have used combat to solve differences, there have been large numbers of men who did not elect to fight, both in and out of uniform. Regardless of the reasons which prompt a man to refuse to kill other men, the stigma of the label, "coward", has always been a handy and successful lever for the leaders who are responsible for winning wars. So successful has it been, in fact, that many who have refused to fight may have avoided death-dealing, but have endured their own physical or psychological destruction at the hands of friends rather than from enemies.

I believe that to be a part of the Viet Nam conflict, as soldier or voter, is wrong. Many of us are protected by sex or age or both from having actively to choose between participating or refusing to participate in the war. I believe that we have more important things to do than to generalize about the motives of the men who make either decision. We might, among other things, do all we can to call a halt to the conflict. Young men from all combatant countries could then make decisions among alternatives more constructive than fight, flight or jail. Peace!

School Need Duplicators

Editor of the Graphic:

A recent shortage in school supplies at Newton South High typifies a dilemma that is costing the taxpayers of Newton a great deal of money every year. This particular problem, like others similar to it, is an abiding one which can be readily solved.

Last week teachers at Newton South were informed that there is a shortage of spirit duplicator paper. As any high school student readily knows, teachers use vast quantities of duplicating paper for writing out homework assignments, quizzes, essays, exams, or any other pieces of curriculum material which students need in writing and which do not appear in text books. Indeed, many teachers depend on these mimeographed papers in their teaching. Gone are the days, thank goodness, when a teacher dictates to a class ten questions for a history examination, for example, and then permits the students to proceed to answer the questions. With the coming of the duplicator machine we are now able to get right to the heart of the matter, which is not copying down the questions, but answering them.

I have taught at Newton South for five years, and for many of those years have made use of the duplicating machines that we have. I would estimate that 15 to 20 per cent of the paper used is wasted. The fault lies mostly in the duplicating machines available at the high school. There are available to teachers three machines to serve a faculty of 103 and a student body of about 1550. These machines function so poorly that they frequently produce blurred, mangled, or otherwise useless pieces of paper. The useless paper is thrown in the waste basket. Even when these machines are operating at their very best, they produce work of very inferior quality. If the school system were prudent enough to invest in three heavy duty duplicating machines for the high school, I dare say they would pay for themselves in terms of paper saved within a month.

There are a great many procedural and mechanical inefficiencies present at the high school which no business organization to make a profit would tolerate for a minute. The solutions to many of these problems are obvious and inexpensive. As a teacher, I find it somewhat ironic that the mayor and other city officials have expressed tremendous anxiety about rising city costs, and yet take no action, year in, year out, on the multitude of expensive little inefficiencies which hinder education and waste money. I submit that a management consultant firm could be employed to write up procedures which will eliminate this annoying waste. Certainly there are among the residents of Newton a great many extremely qualified business men who could cooperate in this effort, thus reducing the cost connected with developing these procedures. An inefficiently run business costs the owner of that business his profits, and inefficiently operated city government costs money for every resident in town.

False Rumor

Editor of The Graphic:

May I be granted the privilege of your Letters column to correct a widespread and false rumor that I or the Registry of Motor Vehicles is seeking legislation to rule "Drivers over 65 off the road."

This is both absurd and erroneous. We have tens of thousands of safe, competent drivers in their 40's, 50's and even into the 90's in some cases. What counts is not

Alderman Writes To Library Trustees

Mr. John B. B. Palan,
President
Board of Trustees
Newton Free Library
414 Centre Street
Newton, Mass. 02158
Dear Mr. Palan:

I respond to your letter dated 11 March 1971, to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen referring to docket item 102-70 and 50-71, and requesting assistance in obtaining $5000 for a library consultant to define the requirements of a new main library. I would like to assist you, but regret that I cannot, and must oppose your request.

I share with you, the Trustees and many others a great deal of frustration in the delay in obtaining a modern, flexible and better located main library. In these concerns I share your views, an wish to move them forward. However, the Trustees obtained a report from Humphrey and McNiff which calls for the restructuring of the library system and complete dismemberment and abandonment of the present branch library system. They would substitute two sub - main libraries which would be inaccessible to the youngest and oldest members of our citizenry. In this regard I feel Humphrey and McNiff were completely wrong.

They took a standard prototype recommended by a professional librarians association, and attempted to superimpose it on an historically village - neighborhood societal structure; and in so doing they have recommended a complete misfit.

Unfortunately, the Trustees several years ago adopted those aspects of the report dealing with branch libraries as their official guiding policy. I judge that this is still the policy of the Trustees, since you state in your letter and I quote

"Because of the complex nature of the library branch system, and because of the political considerations involved in any written time-table of a phasing - out program of branches, the Board of Trustees would be pleased to discuss such particulars at any time with the Finance and Public Buildings Committees, remembering always of course, its goal of implementing the Humphrey - McNiff Report and of effecting all possible economies to make a new main library economically justifiable for the city."

The pseudo - branch library program which the Trustees are still trying to foist upon the city is structured to benefit the library organization to the detriment of library users, by making the branch libraries inaccessible for browsing and recreational reading in situ to those segments of our population that most require these benefits.

I cannot condone it. Until the Trustees of the Newton Free Library rescind their former policy vote, and adopt a new policy of seeking a new better located main library while maintaining the existing branch library system, I must oppose their present course. I wish it were not so, since I merely chronologocal age but, rather, physical and mental competence. We have sound, alert and capable drivers of great age.

Equally, we have substantially impaired men and women in their middle years — even in the 40's or younger. What I have asked for is a law which would require physicians to report to the Commissioner of Public Health those individuals who, in the professional judgment, appear incompetent or unsafe to operate motor vehicles, regardless of age.

Physicians now report drug addiction, gunshot wounds, communicable disease and abortion. Why not report the most dangerous category of all — drivers who should not be driving? Persons with epilepsy, heart conditions, hypertension, glaucoma, etc. I should welcome your readers' opinions on these points.

Laos Leaves Many Questions On Future of South Vietnam

While there have been some brave and bright statements as to what the South Vietnamese accomplished in Laos, some cynical observers believe the principal thing they showed is that they are not a match for the North Vietnamese on the battlefield.

That poses a burning question as to the success of the so-called Vietnamization program and what will happen if and when the United States combat forces are totally withdrawn from Vietnam.

We have been lead to believe that the South Vietnamese have improved as fighting forces to the point where they would be competent to defend themselves and their homeland when the American pullout is completed.

The outcome of the fighting in Laos and the obvious defeat suffered by the South Vietnamese would dispute any such belief.

Statements by some administration spokesmen would indicate that the South and North Vietnamese were engaged in a race to see who could get out of Laos first and that the South Viets won.

Unfortunately, that was not the way it was.

What will happen in South Vietnam later this year or next year, when American combat troops are withdrawn, is a question which troubles many thinking persons.

Virtually everyone wants our troops out of Vietnam. But the danger of what will happen when they are taken out is not a pleasant thing to contemplate on the basis of the experience in Laos.

State Treas. Crane Is Good Choice By Democratic Heads

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane is an excellent choice to be the new chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

Crane is a highly capable administrator, has demonstrated organizational ability, gets along well with people and should be able to pull together all the factions in the Bay State's Democratic party about as well as anyone could.

After a great deal of maneuvering, it came down to a choice between Treasurer Crane and Representative George E. Sacco of Medford, vice chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Either would have been a good man for the job.

Representative John Buckley of Abington at one time was mentioned as a leading contender for the Democratic State Chairmanship.

But Buckley, who stood with the Republicans and against the Democratic leaders last year in the fight over a proposal for reducing the size of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, was not acceptable to some party chieftains.

At that point there was a disposition to turn to Sacco, but Crane agreed to accept the job for a year without pay, and all the Democratic bigwigs finally compromised on him.

Crane has no political ambitions which will conflict with those of anyone else. He declares that he is not interested in any position other than the one he holds as State Treasurer. If Crane can't restore the fallen fortunes of the Democratic party, the party is in deep trouble.

would dearly wish to be working with the Trustees on the matter of the main library. However I am convinced of the essential need to retain the branch library system in School Committee.

Mr. Mandell then requested a full report on how $762,000 for maintenance and repairs in the 1970 budget had been used. How much of that money was actually used by the School Committee not for normal maintenance and repairs as appropriated but for educational philosophy, such as moving walls, converting auditoriums, etc.

Very truly yours,
David W. Jackson

On School Funds

Editor of The Graphic:

If the complaining Newton taxpayer would like to see how his tax money flows, he need only attend a meeting of a governing body.

For instance, at the School Committee meeting of March 22nd a School Principal made an eloquent plea for badly needed repairs in numerous schools. These requests included for leaking roof, flaking paint, doubtful wiring, woefully insufficient and cramped space and toilet facilities, etc.

A number of these items had been brought to the Committee's attention several years, he said, but with no results. (Amazing, considering that last year's budget was 21 million dollars, plus additional funds from the city administration for maintenance and repairs).

Committeeman Mandell then produced a document showing a number of these items had been provided for in the 1970 budget, and the money

"She found the Israelis in the city. A lot more spontaneous than those on kibbutz, because they have to handle a lot of different situations every day." Adds Carol, "The image of the Israelis is the sabra (cactus) - bitter on the outside and sweet on the inside - but they're all sweet and sensitive, and really nice to me."

At the Hebrew University, Carol is one of an overseas contingent of almost 4,000 - an impressive figure, as it represents a record-breaking 400 percent increase in enrollment since the Six Day War, while the University's total student body shows a 33 percent gain during the same period. Founded in 1918, the Hebrew University is at present expanding considerably with the rebuilding of its original home on Mount Scopus, to which access was regained in June 1967, after having been cut off since 1948.

Since last year, all law and first year science students, a total of 2,000 have been studying on the Mount Scopus campus.

In the United States, says Carol, "young students feel they're drifting - they lack roots. Here, they feel strong roots: they have a very close family, close friends they've grown up with, or friends from the army, and these friends act like the spokes of a wheel that surround them and give them focus. They're not floating."

Carol, at any rate, has found a "spoke" for she is engaged to be married in April to an Israeli who is presently serving in the army. As further proof of Carol's "Israelification" - she and her fiancé speak only Hebrew to each other.

Consumer Credit Life Insurance Rate Lowered

Senator Irving Fishman (D-Newton-Watertown) said yesterday that the Massachusetts Legislature has acted to close a loophole in the area of consumer credit life insurance. House Bill No. 44 which would limit charges for credit life insurance written in connection with insurance premium loans, has been passed by both the House and Senate and sent to the Governor for this action.

Passage of the bill culminates five years of work by the Joint Legislative Committee on Banks and Banking. Senator Fishman, chairman of the Banks and Banking Committee, steered the bill through the Senate.

Prior to this legislation, insurance premiums were written with term credit life insurance at a rate of $2 per

Pembroke Club Meets April 14

Two Newton women will take an active part when the Pembroke College Club holds a special meeting on Wednesday, April 14, at the home of Club President Mrs. Harris D. Lang in Concord.

They are Mrs. Milton B. Paul of Waban, vice president; and Mrs. Martin L. Feldman of Newton Centre, recording secretary.

The featured speaker will be Stuart D. Chase, director of public relations for the Morgan Memorial Goodwill Centers. This organization provides jobs and rehabilitation to more than 750 handicapped people each day. They clean and refurbish clothing, furniture and other things which are sold in Goodwill Thrift Stores. Proceeds from the stores pay the wages of the handicapped workers.

Despite the fact that Morgan Memorial is 86 percent self-supporting, currently it is facing a deficit because of inflation and the increasing costs of materials.

Plans also will be discussed for one of the Pembroke College Club's major events of the year, the annual rummage sale in May to raise funds for scholarships.

Jackson Home Booklet Will Feature Old Newton Houses

The Jackson Homestead, Newton's city-owned museum, will soon issue the first of a series, "Taking a Look at Old Newton," bringing up to date the record of interesting old homes still standing in the city.

More than forty homes, dating to 1855, have already been located in Auburndale, according to Mrs. E. Graham Bates, who told of her Committee's work in searching records and interviewing residents.

She spoke at the Annual Dinner meeting of the Board of Directors of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead Tuesday evening at the Pillar House.

Assisted by Mrs. William H. Cannard, director-curator of the Jackson Homestead, and Mrs. Ruth W. Bassett, its Secretary, Mrs. Bates has been directing a group of some twenty volunteers in what she calls a "fascinating adventure," searching old documents, maps, and public files, and wandering through the city in the effort to locate Newton's older homes.

Mrs. Bates anticipates that a booklet on Waban where seventeen old houses have been found will soon go to press, complete with descriptive text and photographs. Other sections will follow as the work is completed with all the Village Series later being combined in book form.

The information being gathered, Mrs. Bates feels, is of educational value, "giving us a sense of our ties with the past, and contributing to our study of the various types of architecture found in our community."

"Furthermore, Mrs. Bates notes, "Our work contributes to the pride of ownership of those now living in these fine old homes and encourages their retention, restoration where needed, and the maintenance of these interesting old dwellings which might otherwise be lost to our community."

Completion of the entire series can be speeded up according to Mrs. Bates with the help of additional volunteers. She invites all those wishing to join in "this fascinating adventure" to do so by calling the Jackson Homestead at 332-3920.

Local Children Perform In The Sleeping Beauty

Several Newton youngsters are members of the cast of the Boston Children's Theatre highly successful 1970-71 season, The Sleeping Beauty, which will present its final production. It will be held at New England Life Hall, April 21, 22 and 23 (weekdays during school vacation) and Saturdays April 24, May 1 and May 8. All performances are at 2 o'clock with an added 10:30 a.m. show on May 8.

Local youngsters in the cast include Cheryl Kaplan, Sara Conley and Elizabeth Yoffey all of Newton.

The Sleeping Beauty is one of the best known and most loved of all fairy tales.

Cursed in her cradle by an evil fairy who was not invited to the christening, the Princess falls asleep on her 16th birthday after pricking her finger on a spindle. One hundred years later she is awakened by a kiss from the Prince; the evil spell is broken and all live happily ever after.

NRA Hurries Steps To Relocate Five Families

The Project Area Committee (PAC) was advised last week that the relocation efforts of the Newton Redevelopment Authority will be hurried with the purpose of getting the federally-aided portion of the project in operation by June.

PAC is concerned about the five Lower Falls families who must be relocated before the initial phase of the federally-aided part of the program can be started.

The information about the relocation efforts came at a special night meeting arranged by the Authority to be able to answer questions of residents. Attending the meeting were Chairman Mario DiCarlo and Msgr. John M. Quirk.

Chairman DiCarlo emphasized the Authority's principle of undertaking the federal portion of the project on a phased basis—that is construction will begin in small segments allowing persons to move from dwellings they occupy at present, to new housing already completed by the Authority.

The main trouble area in this type of program is finding other homes for the persons whose property lies in the initial phase, and who have no replacement housing which they could move into within the project.

PAC Chairman Joel C. Leighton said that improved dialogue between PAC and the Authority was indicated at the three-hour meeting.

The five families which have to be relocated reside along Washington street, between Route 128 access road and Hamilton street.

It was pointed out that the Authority will have to gain the approval of the Board of Aldermen for zoning changes before the project can be initiated.

'Headstart' Begins Its Fall Recruitment Drive

Frank Mitchell, Director of Communities United, applicant agency for the Regional Headstart Program, announces the beginning of recruitment of children from Newton, Waltham, Brookline, Watertown, and Arlington for the coming fall.

In commenting on the program, Mr. Mitchell stated that Headstart is a program designed to serve low income families by providing a beginning socialization experience for children three years old to school age. The federally subsidized activity is conducted in child development centers located in each of the communities listed above.

Each Center operates five days per week during the hours of 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. following the school calendar for the respective city or town. Transportation is provided and a snack and lunch are served daily, he added.

There are two classrooms at each center staffed by teachers, aides, and a large number of dedicated volunteers. The program also offers health, educational, and social services, not only to the preschool child, but to the entire family. Parents are involved in planning and carrying out of the program.

For additional information or applications, contact Communities United at 969-2598 or Ginger Denham at 969-7928.

Auxiliary Hears About High Cost Of Shoplifting

Shoplifting, which some have estimated costs the nation's merchants $3 billion annually, was the subject of a talk given by Stanley Colten, president of Rom-Mar Service Systems, when he addressed the annual guest meeting of the Newton Auxiliary of the Frances E. Willard Homes in Fellowship Hall of Newton's Elliot Church recently.

Colten related startling facts regarding the increasing numbers of shoplifters which include young as well as middle-aged persons. He noted that women appear to be the greatest offenders and that, for the most part, they come from the middle-income class. He cited many examples of how the culprits are caught and spoke of what happens to them afterwards. He presented a documentary film showing instances of the kind of theft which occurs in all types of stores.

Among the 100 guests assembled to enjoy the traditional seafood luncheon and subsequent program were members of the Arlington Auxiliary; Mrs. Mary Tingos, executive secretary of the Willard Homes; Mrs. Harriet Grush, director of Llewellyn Lodge, the retirement home in Bedford; and Mrs. Elsie Lewis, director of Ross-Worthing, the nursing home in Waltham. Citizens For Education Hold Kindergarten Panel

Parents of Newton kindergarten and nursery school pupils exchanged views on early childhood education with school administrators and teachers at the Second Church in Newton on Wednesday, March 24.

250 people attended the meeting arranged by Newton Citizens for Education. A panel was made up of Henry Atkins, district program coordinator of Newton schools; Dr. Freda Rebecky, child psychologist, Dan Sweetland, kindergarten teacher, Eleanor Rosenblum, school committee member, and Jody Young, parent. Dorothy Reichard was moderator. Among those in attendance were Supt. of Schools Aaron Fink and Herbert F. Regal, school committee member.

Some of the goals for Newton Kindergartens expressed at the meeting were: more parent-teacher communication to prevent later problems; more individualization to meet variations in children's needs; a team approach to the kindergarten, coordinated with the rest of the school; better arrangement of hours for working mothers; lessening the burden on teachers of double sessions. Longer and possibly single kindergarten sessions appeared necessary to achieve the goals.

Such changes, it was said, would require more staff and space, reorganization of time and space, and a greater commitment to early education. There were spirited differences as to which must come first.

By the Fall of 1973, state law will require minimum 2½ hour sessions. Other types of changes are left to principals and teachers' judgements.

At a time of staff cut-backs, rising costs, economic downturn, and undependable physical plants, the problem remains not "whether" to expand hours and program, but "how."

Repeated mention was made of the role of tax reform to better meet school needs than at present. Newton Citizens for Education, sponsors of the meeting, is a city-wide organization of students, parents, and other citizens interested in educational issues. For further information on membership call Ms. Paul Mann, 244-5560.

Newton Doctors Receive Instructors' Positions

A pair of Newton physicians recently received appointments for the current year as instructors at teaching hospitals affiliated with the Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Chaim Rosenberg of Chestnut Hill was appointed instructor in psychiatry at the Boston City Hospital. A citizen of Australia, he received the M.D. degree from the University of Witwatersrand in 1966 and the Ph.D. degree in 1970 from the University of South Wales. He is associated with the Department of Psychiatry at the Boston City Hospital.

Dr. Charles B. Woodbury of Newton Highlands received an appointment as instructor in psychology in the Department of Psychiatry at the Children's Hospital. He was awarded the Ph.D. degree in 1948 from Yale University. Dr. Woodbury is associated with the Children's Hospital.

Their appointments were announced last week by the Dean of Harvard's Faculty of Medicine, Dr. Robert H. Ebert.

Twin Boys

Robert, David, James, Jeanne and Lynne Hurley have twin brothers, Kevin and Keith, born recently at the Glover Memorial Hospital in Needham. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Hurley of 159 Oak street, Newton, Upper Falls.

Mrs. Frank Hurley, also of Newton Upper Falls, is the proud grandmother.

To Hold Art and Hobby Exhibit At Waban Woman's Club April 5

The Art and Hobby Exhibition by the members of the Waban Woman's Club will be shown and demonstrated on Monday (April 5) at the Waban Neighborhood Club under the direction of Mrs. Edwin L. Prien, Art Committee Chairman; Mrs. Robert Brandt, her assistant; and their committee.

Coffee will be served at 10:30 a.m. by Mrs. H. Edward Schluntz, Social Chairman, assisted by pourers Mrs. John J. Flood and Mrs. Aldrich D. Prouty. Exhibitors and guests (including husbands) will be greeted by Mrs. Don Fawcett, President, and Mrs. John J. Long, Hospitality Chairman, assisted by Mrs. Richard G. Huber, Mrs. Henry S. Kendall, and Mrs. Joseph V. Morog.

Great enthusiasm has been shown by the members for this unusual program. Among the interesting categories for demonstration are stained glass, liquid embroidery, weaving, candle making, decorating egg shells, flower arranging, printing, and dressmaking.

The Art Show will include oil and watercolor paintings, antique Russian ikons, pressed flower plaques, crewel, embroidery, needlepoint, and a diorama.

There will be collections on view of antique valentines, ceramics, clocks, jewelry, bottles, and oriental fans. Among the family treasures will be quilts, rugs, stamps, china, butter chips, cups commemorate of royalty, and mementoes of world-wide travels.

Mrs. William H. Harney, Jr., ticket chairman, will be taking reservations for the Diamond Jubilee Luncheon on Monday (April 26) at the Holiday Inn. This will be the last meeting at which tickets will be available. The program will include a fashion show by Waban Casuals and excerpts from Club activities over the past 75 years.

Scholarship winners and their mothers will be introduced at this meeting. Mrs. Aldrich D. Prouty, Veterans Service chairman, reports a very good response to the appeal for the filling of Veterans' bags, afghans, and knitted toe socks to be distributed to the wounded veterans in hospitals.

Quote of the Week

The penchant of human beings toward folly is undiminished so far as I can determine from what it was 2000 or 5000 years ago. . . I see that the foolish will outnumber the wise 'til the end of time.

It made me glad to be getting some education, it being like a big window opening.—Mary Webb.

Paul D. Slater Heads Jr. Achievement Drive

Named to head the 1971 fund campaign for Junior Achievement of Eastern Massachusetts is Paul D. Slater of 33 Oak Vale road, Waban, according to an announcement by Edward L. King, President of the five-county J.A. organization.

"We are fortunate in having a man of Paul Slater's financial ability to head our fund drive," Mr. King said. "Further, he has a double incentive to spearhead a successful campaign. His late father, founder of Albert M. Slater & Son, Realtors, was a long time supporter of the Junior Achievement movement. Paul believes that the business community has a particular obligation to support J.A.'s learn-by-doing business training program for high school students."

Mr. Slater points out that J.A. gives young people an understanding of the private enterprise system and provides a constructive outlet for youth energy and enthusiasm. "And contribution to the fund drive builds a base for better business youth understanding," he adds.

Mr. Slater is President of the firm founded by his late father and President also of the Slater Management Company and Investco Mortgage Associates. His other activities include directorships in the Rental Housing Association, the Barclay Bank & Trust Co., Temple Reyn in Newton, and Brandeis University Associates. He is a member of the Boston Real Estate Board and of the Realty Lodge, B'nai B'rith. He holds offices in the Men's Association of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged and Combined Jewish Philanthropies and is a member of the Prime Minister's Committee on Housing and City Development for the State of Israel.

In addition to his fund-raising activities on behalf of Junior Achievement, Mr. Slater has an outstanding two-year record as Chairman of the

One of the petitions presented on Monday night called for School Committee members to be elected strictly on a ward basis; one recommended that 10 members be elected to the committee — eight to be chosen by wards and two at-large.

A third petition recommended election of 12 members with eight chosen at-large and four from districts composed of two contiguous wards. The final plan proposed called for four members to be elected at-large and four from the suggested districts.

Newton's present system has eight School Committee members elected city wide but with the requirement that each member live in a different ward.

Proponents of the changes argued that more ward representation would bring government and particularly the School Committee closer to the people and would make members more responsive and accessible.

The amendments would also make it easier and less expensive to run for office and therefore encourage more candidates, proponents maintained.

Mrs. Martin Saklad, who submitted the petition calling for election of School Committees by wards, also contended that the system she proposed would reduce the constituency of each member, allow for easier communication between him and the people in his ward, and make him more accountable to the people for his actions.

The amendments would also cause incumbents to be less firmly entrenched in their posts, proponents said. Opponents of the proposed changes argued that Newton's present system does take care of the ward needs by requiring that one member live in each of the city's wards, but also prevents a parochial point of view by the citywide method of election.

The system has worked well as evidenced by Newton's well reputed, fine school system and should not be tampered with by cumbersome, complicated and possible unwelcome changes with unknown results, opponents maintained.

Several present School Committee members including Chairman Manuel Beckwith spoke in favor of retention of the present system as did Mrs. Margaret Smith, president of the Newton League of Women Voters and Mrs. Aida Press, president of Newton Citizens for Education. Several individuals also expressed opinions both pro and con on the proposed amendments.

Mrs. Press contended that the problems of education are city wide and should be considered on a city wide basis. If members are elected by wards they will tend to be responsive to the pressures of the ward to the detriment of educational needs of the entire city.

In addition, Mrs. Press said, if the amendments were approved the citizens would lose his present power to influence eight School Committee members and be left with voting power over only one.

Ronald L. Nuttall, speaking as a citizen, said the proposed amendments represent a fundamental issue which the voters should be allowed to decide, and therefore he favored action by the aldermen which would place proposals on the ballot.

Open to any couple, regardless of the hospital they will use, the classes meet on consecutive Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. in the hospital's Usen Auditorium. The hospital and the Dy-Dee Service Company combine to sponsor the course as a public service. Enrollment in the series of classes, held three times annually, averages nearly 200 expectant parents.

More than 50,000 babies have been born at the 286-bed teaching hospital, which is affiliated with Tufts University School of Medicine.

Wallace Yaffe Chosen Medical Center Trustee

Wallace Yaffe of 39 Beethoven Ave., Waban, recently was elected a trustee of Boston's Parker Hill Medical Center.

A graduate of Ohio State University, Yaffe has been active in real estate for 20 years, specializing in the development of industrial and commercial properties. He is a member of the State Advisory Council on Hospital Licensing, Hospital Surveys and Construction Planning, and belongs to the Greater Boston and Newton-Needham Chambers of Commerce.

Parker Hill Medical Center, located at 53 Parker Hill Ave., in Roxbury, is a fully accredited community hospital which enjoys an excellent reputation for providing skilled professional medical and surgical service and personalized nursing care.

Construction on a proposed $3,300,000 addition to the 80-year-old hospital, is expected to begin in early May.

Land Association, said the Board of Directors of that group supports the amendment calling for election by wards.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell also spoke in favor of the ward method of election.

Mrs. Florence Rubin, chairman of the Charter Commission, said voters should be given an opportunity to consider the Charter Commission's recommendations this year since they chose this method of charter change overwhelmingly in an election. They should not be confused with side issues at this time. Amendments can be presented at any future election if the voters so desire, she pointed out.

Budget-

Recommended by the Finance Committee. Major among these was the $100,000 cut from the Street Department budget.
Director of Public Works Willard Pratt told the board that the money represents about 15 jobs—approximately the number of men anticipated to retire or leave the department for some other reason this year. If this figure is high, however, Pratt said he will have to start firing people.

Pratt further complained that the budget was cut back by the mayor by $200,000 for over time and $200,000 for snow removal.
Uehlein expressed the opinion that the board would appropriate additional money later in the year, rather than see any city worker laid off.

Cut from the Police Department budget were funds for five new patrolmen, which would have cost $34,000 this year. Half of the new cars requested were also disallowed at a saving of $25,000.
A motion by Alderman Joseph McDonnell to cut by five per cent many areas of the budget that had not been reduced by the Finance Committee was defeated by the board. The total amount of the decreases sought by McDonnell was $180,000.

In voting against the budget Harrington said he didn't feel "it is a fiscally responsible one in an austerity year." He maintained that some money given for department head raises, etc. could be used for equipment for the street and recreation departments.

Alderman Bullwinkel said he opposed it for some of the same reasons, but added that there are inadequate recreation facilities in the city, and that the budget had no provisions to help the schools on the north side of the city. He also said there should be a different procedure for the aldermen to check the budget.

"We get into all kinds of difficulties here because of lack of knowledge," he declared.
Uehlein reminded the aldermen that 77 per cent of the increase in the budget is due to salaries which are determined in collective bargaining. Twenty three per cent of the increase is in fixed items, he said. "This is probably the most austere budget the city has ever passed," he argued.

In addition, Uehlein stated, "there are no department head salary increases in this budget, only those negotiated last year. If anything the budget is cut too much in certain respects."

In opposing a vote by the aldermen on the school budget, Alderman Michael Lipof said, "I cannot, in good conscience, vote to approve the School Department budget, especially when I have no control over it."

"In 1960 the School Department expended approximately $8 million for 17,500 pupils. Ten years later in 1970 our total enrollment has increased to about 17,600 pupils, an increase of only 100, but the professional staff has increased by 324 people."

"The budget has increased almost two and a half times to $21,148,000. Something is wrong," Lipof declared.
"There are 358 people in the School Department who earn in excess of the median income in Newton—above $13,000 annually. There are 34 individuals who earn over $20,000 per year. These salaries are classified. There are six people in the administration division who earn an aggregate income of over $170,000 per year, plus a combined expense allowance of over $5000 annually. These facts do not include special summer assignments and other fringes," Lipof contended.

He maintained these facts showed a "disregard of fiscal responsibility."

"My main quarrel is with the School Department administration. From what I am able to see there seems to be much fat that could be cut from this area. I must emphasize that I do not wish to simply reduce costs at the expense of the child's education or the special attention that is required by many Newton school children," Lipof said.

"What seems to be in order is accountability and better internal management," he concluded.
In reply to Lipof's remarks, Alderman Louis I. Egelson said, "When the Finance Committee met with the School Committee they made it clear that many things in the school budget were not as austere as hoped for or as had been achieved with the city budget."

But, Egelson added, "we were pleased by two actions the School Committee took which indicated an awareness and a trend. After 10 years of adding 300 staff positions, this year budgeted positions were reduced by 12. The School Committee also reversed another trend. Roughly $400,000 in each of the last five years has been turned back to the city from the School Department. This was done because the School Committee does not have complete autonomy, in reality. They do up until February 15, but then their budget becomes frozen. Then they must come to the Board of Aldermen for budget transfers or supplemental appropriations. Therefore, they felt compelled to prepare for every contingency they put no real ceiling upon themselves. This is the first year that the anticipated turnback of $300,000 was taken out of the budget."

Egelson argued that the aldermen should approve the school budget in recognition of the "start that they've made."

"The taxpayers will benefit if the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee work together," he said.

Representing the many friends of Howard Ferguson was Vic Knapman. He presented Fergie and his wife with a color TV and notebooks with letters from those who were unable to attend.

A job well done by the Testimonial Committee including co-chairmen Reggie Smith and Ed Fraktman. Also serving were Jim Ronayne, ticket chairman; Bob Galley, treasurer; and Vic Knapman, gifts chairman.

One very warm note in the evenings festivities came when former faculty manager at N.H.S. Ralph Sanborn, received a standing ovation on the announcement of his 81st birthday.

Ferguson, in a 20 minute speech, thanked the many people who aided him through the years. A moment of silence was observed for six men who have played for Fergie and have died since—Waldo Jones, Phil Jepson, Fred Dauten, Gerry Flagg, 4 time all-scholastic Billy Hammel and Bill Boucher.

Fergie thanked his mother, 92, who attended. He quoted from a poem that his mother "is as good as goodness is," this was the most emotional part of his speech.

In concluding he said "totals were not how many wins for us or our opponents. Instead the final box score read 'so many men out of so many boys.'"

Under the mentorship of Coach Ferguson, Newton High established a 23-year baseball record of 334 wins, 117 losses and 7 ties. This record includes 12 Suburban League titles; 4 Eastern Mass. championships, and the 1955 State Championship.

Mann Commends MBTA For Local Commuter Service

Representative Theodore D. Mann today commended the MBTA on its inauguration of new commuter express service between Riverside Station, Auburndale, via the Massachusetts Turnpike to Boston.

"The service is being instituted on a trial basis," Mann noted, "and I feel certain that it will receive acceptance from the riding public and become a permanent route. It is an encouraging step in the direction of increasing the availability of convenient, economical mass transportation. Besides encouraging general public use, the new service will help diminish traffic congestion, and promote safety on our highways by reducing the number of private vehicles normally used by those who will now be passengers on express buses."

Mann who has been involved in efforts to improve public transportation service for Newton also noted that: "This latest expansion of MBTA service is a significant improvement and I view it as a demonstration of the willingness of transit officials to experiment with new routes, something that should be carried on constantly in order to assure flexibility in our approaches to the general transportation problem."

"We hope," Rep. Mann concluded, "that in the near future the MBTA will undertake expansion of its service to include pick up stations near Route 128 in the Oak Hill and Waban areas, also. MBTA officials merit our commendation and support as they demonstrate a capacity to serve our needs."

Guzzi Opposed To Limit Of School Board Powers

A number of bills designed to limit the fiscal autonomy of local school committees were heard by the joint committee on education at the State House. Similar bills and been heard earlier this month by the committee on local affairs.

Representative Paul Guzzi (D-Newton) spoke at both hearings to oppose this legislation. Guzzi noted that crucial problems do exist in the public school system throughout the state: the need to revitalize the curriculum; the failure to equally educate all students regardless of intellectual ability, racial background, or geographic residence; the problems of attracting and retaining quality teachers and administrators; and the necessity for educators to establish "accountability" in public understanding and confidence.

Guzzi stated that the solutions to these and other problems would not be enhanced by transferring responsibility from the school committees, whose only responsibility is in the field of education, to other political bodies, which are now already burdened with a variety of other problems. He urged the committee to address itself to the legitimate educational needs of students as opposed to the political compromise suggested by the proposed legislation.

Guzzi concluded by acknowledging the heavy burden which education has placed on local property owners. He suggested that levels of government must share in the financing of public education, and that spending priorities must be reassessed to meet the educational needs of our society.

More than 200 high school principals and counselors will attend the informal panel discussions on careers which will be available in this decade in both business and industry. Coffee and registration will be in Wolfe Hall from 9 to 9:30 a.m., following which the panel discussions will begin.

Miss Pat Collins of WBZ-TV, Channel Four, will moderate the panel discussions. Panelists will include Miss Barbara Bancroft, Office Manager of B.B. D. & O., Boston; Mrs. Margaret Dezotell, Vice Treasurer of

"Man of Year" Breakfast April 25

The Brotherhood Temple Mishkan Tefila will hold its "Man of the Year" Breakfast on Sunday, April 25, 1971, at 9:15 a.m. in the Social Hall, 300 Hammond Pond Parkway, Chestnut Hill, Mass.

This event features the Seventh Annual Jack Wilson Memorial Lecture and the noted Author and Lecturer, Ira Hirschmann, will discuss the Russian Drive to capture the Middle East. Mr. Hirschmann has developed a special series of lectures based on his newly published book "Red Star Over Bethlehem."

Mr. Hirschmann was formerly President Roosevelt's envoy to Turkey and is an emissary for the State Department and the United Nations in the Middle East area and speaks with unusual insight about the future of this most turbulent region.

Mr. Hirschmann is most recently a lecturer with the New School for Social Research in New York, and is the author of several other books and numerous magazine articles.

He is a member of the Board of the Hebrew University and in 1962 was projected as a candidate for Democratic nomination for Governor of New York to run against Governor Rockefeller.

Residents Fight Edinboro Street As School Access

The Newton School Committee has voted to endorse a petition to accept Edinboro street in Newtonville as a public way, but several residents of the now private way, dead end street, have requested that the city refuse to allow it as an added access road to the new Day Junior High School.

The only access at present is by way of Minot place off Crafts street. Edinboro is a narrow road from Watertown street, opposite the end of Walker street, and dead ends at the school site. There is no way for a vehicle to turn around except to back into a private driveway.

The residents pointed out that in addition to turning around on private property, cars delivering and picking up children would create both a nuisance and a safety hazard. They requested that the area be fenced off to prevent access "by children and others."

The School Department wants to install steps from the end of Edinboro street down to the level of the school site, and to have Edinboro accepted as a public way to prove access to students south of the site.

However, the School Committee did vote to endorse the request for acceptance of Edinboro as a public way, but scheduled a hearing with the intention of devising some traffic pattern with the residents, such as limiting traffic of vehicles to residents only.

Also the School Committee voted to install a pathway from the teachers' parking area on Albemarle street across the playground to the F.A. Day School.

Dr. Brooks To Speak To Women At Church Here

Dr. Henry C. Brooks, professor of Psychology and Clinical Studies at Andover Newton Theological School will be the guest speaker at the supper meeting of the Women's Union of the First Baptist Church of Newton Center on Tuesday April 6th at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Brooks is well known for his series of lectures on Child Psychology which he gave at the church a few years ago. He is a former pastor of St. John's Baptist church in Woburn, and a former chaplain at Boston City Hospital.

Mrs. Richard Wittrup, and Miss Elinor Berkeley will be in charge of hospitality. Mrs. Lewis Foster and Mrs. Gene Bartlett will be in charge of Transportation, and Deborah and Lydia Cycles will be in charge of the supper. Mrs. John Brush, chairman of the Program committee, will introduce the speaker.

Opposes Present System ... Resident Urges Election of School Board By Wards

A well-conceived and plausible argument in favor of electing the Newton School Committee by ward instead of the present at-large system, was presented by Mrs. Martin J. Saklad of Newton Centre, at a public hearing Monday evening held by the Board of Aldermen.

Speakers in favor of this proposal urged the Aldermen to allow the question to be put to the voters at the November election.

"The issue of changing the method of election, I believe," Mrs. Saklad said, "is an answer to the frustrations the voters feel in relation to the fiscal autonomy of the schools, what is happening to education today, and their lack of representation."

Under Mrs. Saklad's proposal the mayor would continue to serve ex officio, and the School Committee would remain at nine members.

"Perhaps the basic issue is that the present at-large Committee actually discourages citizens from participation in the democratic process and in education generally," Mrs. Saklad stated.

"It is sad to think that our schools teach involvement to our youngsters, yet our at-large School Committee system denies meaningful participation to their elders."

"The basic foundation of a democracy depends upon the majority of the people deciding among issues and candidates."

"Three conditions must exist if a person is to take part intelligently in his government. First, he must be informed. Second he must act on his ledge by working for candidates or running for office. Third, he must remain active between elections. Democratic laws and institutions do not guarantee that a democracy will succeed. People must work constantly for democratic freedom."

"With this in mind, let me specify why our at-large School Committee elections are basically undemocratic, and why I believe that ward elections will bring government closer to the people so that they may in reality participate."

Mrs. Saklad's statement continued:

1. POPULATION OF NEWTON

"Each School Committee member by virtue of being elected citywide has a constituency of 91,000 (Federal Census figures). This is far more than our State Representatives who represent approximately 20,064 (Election Commission figures)."

"Population in Newton has tripled since the Charter was written in 1897. (In 1895, it was 27,590). What was suitable then in terms of representation is unrealistic now."

"A Ward School Committee member would represent approximately 12,000 people. By way of comparison, this is the population of many small towns in the Commonwealth. This number of people could be considered a reasonable constituency, given the nature of the School Committee duties itself."

"2. COMMUNICATION IN NEWTON:

"Communicating with citizens in Newton has always presented difficulties. We have 14 villages, no central meeting place, autonomous schools and no daily Newton newspaper that services the entire city. (The local papers which do serve the area have limited circulations: The Newton Graphic is 9,418. The News Tribune, published in Waltham, and serving both Newton and Waltham is 15,506 (the newspaper itself says between 6-7000 are reached in Newton, and the Newton Villager is not listed in the "Ayer Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals 1969.")

HOUSE MEMBERS TO BUG OWN PHONES FOR WIRETAPS

THE HOUSE, embroiled in a controversy over charges the FBI had kept its members under surveillance, will install an electronic service that will detect telephone wire taps, it was announced Wednesday. Both a defender and a critic of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover agreed meantime that Congress ought to investigate charges by House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs that Hoover's agents had maintained surveillance over legislators and tapped their telephones. Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Administration Committee, announced plans to install the electronic service after he conferred with Speaker Carl Albert. Hays said his committee would sign a contract with an electronics firm that will check all congressmen's telephones in the next few days to see if any listening devices were attached. Deputy Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, saying Boggs must have been "either sick or . . . not in possession of his faculties" when he made the charges, said an investigation was needed to prove Boggs wrong and end fears his allegations have aroused in Congress. Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., a critic of the FBI and its 76-year-old director, introduced a bill meantime to have the House Judiciary Committee investigate Boggs' charge.

NIXON CONFERS WITH ADVISERS BEFORE ADDRESS

PRESIDENT NIXON conferred with his senior defense and foreign policy advisers Wednesday a few hours before disclosing to the American public his plans for speeding up U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam. Confronted with eroding public support in the polls for his Indochina policies, the President also summoned Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress to the White House for a briefing just before his nationally broadcast address to the nation. Late word from Saigon indicated that U.S. troop strength in Southeast Asia had dropped below 300,000 men in the past week, in keeping with Nixon's goal of reducing the total to about 50,000 or less by mid-1972. The address was viewed primarily as a bid to gain more public patience with the course of gradual disengagement, which Nixon has been following for the past 22 months. Administration officials say the President is convinced that the Laotian and Cambodian operations have deprived Hanoi of the capability of launching a major offensive for 18 months. The White House said Nixon has spoken several times by telephone with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. troop commander in Saigon.

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS HIT CALLEY INTERVENTION

INFLUENTIAL Democratic senators criticized President Nixon's intervention in the Calley case Wednesday. One of them accused him of playing politics with the issue and said he should "keep his mouth shut." The debate over the first degree murder conviction of Lt. William L. Calley for killing 22 South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai intensified after disclosure that the young army captain who prosecuted the case had written Nixon opposing his intervention. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., considered a likely Democratic presidential contender, said: "Reluctantly, I have concluded that the President is determined to play politics with the Calley decision and the entire My Lai tragedy. I realize the gravity of such charges. I do not make them lightly, but only after the most serious consideration." Bayh, asked what Nixon could do now said: "He can keep his mouth shut until the final review."

MEANY HURLS 'SCAPEGOAT' CHARGES AT PRESIDENT

AFL-CIO President George Meany accused the Nixon administration Wednesday of trying to make labor the "scapegoat for the economic woes" it had created. In his first public statement since President Nixon set up machinery intended to control labor costs and prices in the construction industry, Meany denied a White House claim that labor had voluntarily acquiesced to the establishment of controls. They were "forced" on labor, he said. Meany testified before the Senate subcommittee on financial institutions. He endorsed a House-passed bill to extend for two years the President's authority to impose controls on prices, wages and salaries at levels not less than those that prevailed May 25, 1970.

KENNEDY CRITICIZES 'GADGETRY' IN HEALTH CARE

SEN EDWARD M. KENNEDY, D-Mass., charged Wednesday health care has become a "70 billion cottage industry" that was subordinating primary treatment to hospital "gadgetry." Kennedy's health subcommittee completed hearings into rising costs of medical and hospital services, with testimony from three big city mayors who warned that their hospitals were going broke while pricing health services out of the range of ordinary pocketbooks. "The health industry is America's fastest growing failing business," Kennedy said. "It is a $70 billion cottage industry which has grown like Topsy. And the bill is being paid by the American people." Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia said "sweetheart contracts" between Blue Cross and the nation's hospitals were partly responsible for the steep increases in insurance rates. He said Blue Cross makes no effort to control health prices but simply sweeps whatever costs the hospitals wish to charge among its insured.

MAINE WOMAN, MOTHER SLAIN; HUSBAND ARRESTED

AN EAST LOVELL woman and her 73-year-old mother were shot to death Wednesday in a car in Fryeburg, Maine. Police charged the husband of the younger woman with double homicide. Harold Hill, 54, was arrested without incident at his home about noon, two and a half hours after the shootings. Police said Mrs. Emma Hill, 56, and her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Cain, 73, of Concord, Mass., were riding on Route 5 in a car driven by Mrs. Lois Beaudin when Hill allegedly pulled alongside and forced the car to the side of the road. Hill got out, walked to the woman's car and shot his wife and her mother. Assistant Attorney General Richard J. Cohen said, Mrs. Beaudin was not injured, authorities said. State police said Mrs. Beaudin was driving Mrs. Hill to a doctor's appointment at the time.

COMMUNISTS HALT 2,000 SOUTH VIETNAMESE FORCES

MORE THAN 2,000 fresh South Vietnamese troops tried to fight their way to the beleaguered hilltop Fire Base 6 in South Vietnam's Central Highlands Wednesday night, but were stopped less than half a mile away by heavy Communist gunfire. U.S. and South Vietnamese helicopters succeeded in flying through heavy anti-aircraft fire to get badly-needed food and ammunition to the more than 1,000 South Vietnamese defenders on the hill. It was the eighth day of fighting around Fire Base 6, which was once overrun and then retaken.

New Schedule Of Fines For Parking OK'd

A new, higher schedule of fines for parking violations in the city of Newton was approved by the Board of Aldermen on Monday night.

Alderman Elliot K. Cohen, chairman of the Legislation and Rules Committee, said the fines will go into effect in about six months because there are still about 30,000 tickets indicating the present fines in existence.

The new schedule, which was recommended by a 3-0 vote of the Legislation and Rules Committee, is designed as an aid to enforcement of parking regulations, according to the original petition for the increases proposed by Alderman Ernest Dietz.

According to the new ordinance, the following penalties are established: Fine $15.00, parking upon

Contrary to previous announcements and plans, Newton public schools will be closed on Good Friday.

According to a statement this week by Supt. All schools will be closed, therefore on this day."

Third Term Alderman Announces Candidacy

City Problems Spur Carmen To Seek Mayor's Post Here

Emphasizing the need for more efficient service from Newton's present tax dollar, Alderman William Carmen Wednesday night announced his candidacy for Mayor at the Newton Community Center's Pomroy House. The municipal election will be held next November 2.

Alderman Carmen declared that he sees a need for immediate innovative steps to solve Newton's fiscal and social problems.

"I am deeply troubled by the constantly rising tax rate and realize that the next mayor must have successful business management experience in order to help stop the upward tax spiral."

"I care deeply that many homeowners are finding it increasingly difficult to meet their real estate tax obligations. I care that the real estate tax in 1971 will be, in many cases, greater than the combined mortgage and tax payments of just a few years ago.

Carmen, in his announcement, made it clear that as mayor he would "care about the people and problems facing our city," declaring he is against "any more procrastinating, in sweeping problems under the rug or putting off until some future year things which should have been done in the past."

"This kind of poor planning has been, in part, responsible for recent expenditures at a time when costs are the highest in the history of our country," he stated.

Carmen cited the new High School as a prime example of a than half the present cost of twenty million dollars.

Serving his third term as Alderman from Ward 7, Mr. Carmen was an unpaid member of the Newton Housing Authority from its creation in 1959 until 1967. During the seven years that Mr. Carmen was chairman, all of Newton's four developments for the elderly were either initiated or completed.

They are Jackson Gardens, at Kennedy Circle, Newton Corner; Horace Mann Apartments on Watertown Street, Newtonville; Parker House on Parker Street, Newton Centre; and Norumbega Gardens on Ash Street, Auburndale.

Long a civic and charitable leader, the alderman listed more than 35 local, state and national affiliations. He was a member of President Kennedy's People to People Committee and has served on the Board of Directors of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for 15 years.

Saying Newton's drug problem is in a critical stage, Alderman Carmen who is chairman of the Aldermanic Drug Committee, vowed that as mayor he would give it priority in order to see it through "until we help all who have a drug problem, to have a chance to be rehabilitated." Mr. Carmen in this campaign in addition is stressing:

"Essential city services, such as rubbish and snow removal and general housekeeping be improved dramatically through new methodology."

Day Of Worship, Hope

Easter Calm Comes To Troubled World

Easter . . . Day of the Resurrection . . . Day of Joy . . . Day of Eternal Hope . . .

In church and home next Sunday the words, "He Hath Risen," will be echoed in hearts and song. From deep-throated organs and surpliced choirs of Catholic and Protestant Churches man will join man in offering to the heavens a re-birth of the joy which came to earth 2000 years ago.

In spirit they will join Mary and Magdalen as a great boulder rolled back from a cold and barren tomb and He who had died on a cross three days before stood before them.

Easter, 1971, comes to an uneasy world . . . to a world beset by war and threats of more war . . . to a world in which man's greed and lack of understanding have dimmed his achievements in wrestling for his physical benefits the secrets of the unknown . . . to a world of man-created barriers to the love He preached during His 33 years on earth. . .

Because of Easter and all it symbolizes, man will hungrily grasp once more for the eternal truths which have remained unchanged since the days of creation.

He'll find in Easter a refurbishing of a hope that never dies . . . the hope He brought to earth following the deep sorrow that was Gethsemane . . . the end which His executioners believed they were achieving when their hammers nailed him to a cross.

Police Help Easter Seal Coffee Drive

Chief William F. Quinn, Newton Police Department, and Chief Joseph P. Kelly of the Watertown Police Department, along with many other police departments, are cooperating with the Massachusetts Restaurant Association and independent restaurant owners and the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society to raise funds through the Coffee Day promotion.

Restaurants throughout the Commonwealth are selling identification buttons which allow the purchaser to have free coffee at any participating restaurant or coffee shop.

Assisting Chief Kelley in Watertown is Patrolman William G. Coutts, and assisting Chief Quinn is Sergeant Charles E. Feeley in Newton.

Still No Action By Mayor on DiCarlo

Sergeant Charles E. Feeley, right, of Newton Police, holds a tray of luscious muffins which were extra added attraction to one local "Coffee Day" sale. Patrolman William G. Coutts, left, of Watertown Police, holds Brad Goodwin, of Framingham, Easter Seal Poster child, about to sample the pastry.

No action has been taken yet by Mayor Monte G. Basbas on his announced plan of last week to seek the resignation of Newton Redevelopment Authority Chairman Mario DiCarlo.

The two men have not been able to meet with each other but DiCarlo has indicated that it is not the mayor, but the members of the authority, who choose the chairman and he added that he would do "whatever the authority wants me to do."

DiCarlo, a West Newton contractor, has been in disagreement with several members of the Aldermanic Land Use Committee concerning various aspects of the Lower Falls Urban Renewal project. As a result the program has not been proceeding as quickly as it could.

The current discord was one reason cited by Basbas for seeking the resignation, as the mayor stated: "The program has got to move."

Although the mayor explained last week that

Legislature Ignores Poor Climate For Jobs In State

It's a sad thing to hear a legislator sob and weep at the number of persons unemployed in Massachusetts. It pulls at the very heartstrings. The only thing more tragic is to sit and listen to the same law-maker vote cheerily to pile more taxes onto business and industry.

Back in the early part of 1969, Governor Francis W. Sargent, a short time after taking over the gubernatorial reins, submitted a tax plan to the Legislature to raise money to pay the bills he had inherited from his predecessor, John A. Volpe.

It was an honest tax plan which had no gimmicks. The trouble was it was too honest and straightforward for the Democratic liberals who were sprinkled here and there in the House of Representatives.

Area Chamber of Commerce Hears Of Cabinet Woes

Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight informed the Newton - Needham Chamber of Commerce last week that the proposed new state cabinet system may be unable to be instituted by the April 30 date originally set for it.

The featured speaker of a luncheon meeting at Valle's in Chestnut Hill, Dwight noted that, although recruitment of staff personnel for the 10 planned cabinet departments has been proceeding since November, the $420,000 deficiency budget needed to finance the project has not yet been acted on by the House Ways and Means Subcommittee.

According to Dwight, members of the subcommittee have expressed some doubt in regard to the 81 staff positions to be established when the reorganization becomes effective and the $22,000 to $38,000 cabinet secretaries' salary range provided for in the plan.

The reorganization measure, adopted in 1969 by the legislature calls for all existing state agencies to be regrouped into 10 departments.

Guzzi Serves On Sub. Comm. For Election Costs

A special sub-committee has been established by the legislative committee on election laws to review the area of political campaign expenditures.

A number of bills have been filed which attempt to place controls on contributions and expenditures, as well as to establish an independent agency to enforce these regulations. There are also proposals calling for governmental subsidies of political campaign expenses.

Serving on this sub-committee, with three other legislators, will be Newton Representative Paul Guzzi. In commenting on the subject, Guzzi noted that "those seeking public office are literally forced to spend excessive sums of money on their campaigns. This practice is clearly not in the public interest, nor is it an intelligent or socially beneficial way to use our resources. To allow this system to continue will effectively place elected office beyond the reach of capable citizens with limited finances, and perpetuate the wasting of money."

The sub-committee will hold public hearings on April 15 and 22. It is expected that a number of prominent political figures, from all levels of government, will appear to testify.

Attempts to establish similar controls on the federal level have been unsuccessful during the past year. Rep. Guzzi is hopeful that Massachusetts can assume national leadership in this area.

Newton Women Named To Radcliffe Institute

Four Newton women are among the 25 appointed recently to the Radcliffe Institute in Cambridge for the 1971-72 academic year.

The Newton residents, who have been named Institute Scholars and will be able to pursue projects in their special fields at Radcliffe and Harvard, are Mrs. Phyllis Janowitz of Newton Centre; Poetry; Mrs. Jane Martin of Auburndale; Philosophy; Mrs. Lillian Shiman of Newton Highlands; English history; and Mrs. Myrna Weiss of Newton; Psychiatry.

Each will receive a part-time fellowship ranging from $300 to $3,000 to defray child care and household costs, as well as other expenses entailed in undertaking scholarly and creative work along with domestic responsibilities.

Mrs. Janowitz' poetry has been published in various literary magazines and at the Institute she will be preparing a collection of poems for publication. She holds the B.A. degree from Queens College and the M.F.A. degree from the University of Massachusetts. For the past year she has been a member of the English faculty of Massachusetts Bay Community College. She is the mother of two children.

Mrs. Martin's field is the philosophy of education. She will devote this year to developing a way of analyzing and evaluating normative curriculum theory, using two currently popular normative theories as case studies. A graduate of Radcliffe, Mrs. Martin holds the Ed. M. degree from Harvard and the Ph.D. degree from Radcliffe. From 1965-1970 she was a lecturer at the Harvard Graduate School of Education and is presently Visiting Associate Professor in the Philosophy Department at Boston University. Her husband, Michael Martin, is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Boston University. They are the parents of two young children.

Now in its eleventh year, the Institute has thus far awarded 536 fellowships since it began in 1960. The total includes 76 fellowships in a special program for women physicians and 111 grants awarded under the Institute's program for graduate degree candidates who are able to study less than full time.

According to Alice K. Smith, Acting Dean of the Institute, "Ten years' experience has amply demonstrated how valuable a little financial assistance, supplemented by institutional support and professional recognition, can be in releasing the energies of trained and talented women for constructive use. At this critical juncture it is vitally important that these experimental programs for women should not be curtailed for lack of the relatively modest financial support that they require."

"The School Committee had scheduled classes on Good Friday in response to the recommendation of the central staff, the elementary and secondary school principals and the Newton Teachers' Association that the Jewish High Holidays and Good Friday be treated similarly.

"As in years past, schools were open during Jewish holidays. The Committee will review this policy prior to setting a calendar for 1971-72," Supt. Fink said.

Health Dept. Stresses Glass Door Precautions

With the increase in glass door installation there is a similar increase in accidents caused by persons walking or falling into glass doors and panels. The Newton Health Department advises increased awareness of these hazards on the part of area residents.

It has been estimated that each year about 100,000 people, one third of whom are between 5 and 14 years old, are injured or killed in accidents involving glass. More often than one might think, these people simply have walked into a glass patio door, storm door, other glass panel, or fallen through the glass of a bath tub enclosure.

The Health Department stated that the United States Public Health Service requests that state and local building authorities increase the use of safety glass in private homes as well as commercial structures. Your Health Department supports this recommendation.

Safety glass being used today is mainly of three types: laminated, wired, and tempered. In laminated and wired glass, two pieces of regular glass are joined to a center layer of either plastic or wire so that should the glass be broken, pieces will be held by the plastic or wire layer.

Tempered glass, on the other hand, shatters when broken, but does so into small pieces, without sharp edges.

It was also pointed out that tempered glass is several times as strong as regular glass and usually costs less than the other two kinds of safety glass.

Some degree of safety may be obtained by using metal grills or guards or by placing decals on the glass, however, most children who are victims of cuts and lacerations from glass accidents receive their injuries while at play.

These children are chased into or thrown against the glass, and decals would not afford much visibility under those circumstances.

Metal guards, to be effective, would need to be on both sides of glass panels and for the full length. Even then they may not be able to withstand a heavy blow.

For new installations and whenever storm doors or other glass panels need replacing, consideration should be given to using safety glass for the protection of all.

DiCarlo has not done anything "morally, legally or ethically wrong," pressure from several aldermen for the removal of the Redevelopment Authority head has been increasing recently.

It is in large part a reaction towards what they feel was the irregular way in which a contract — ultimately nullified because the aldermen would not rezone the property — was awarded last year to a realty firm for work on a segment of the Lower Falls project.

Newtonite Quits Draft Board In Calley Protest

Writing that, "I could never, in good conscience, knowingly send a young man into such a situation," Dr. Edward J. Sawyer of Newton Corner last weekend submitted a letter of resignation to his Newton draft board in response to what he sees as potentially "intolerable" effects of the court-martial conviction of Lt. William L. Calley, Jr.

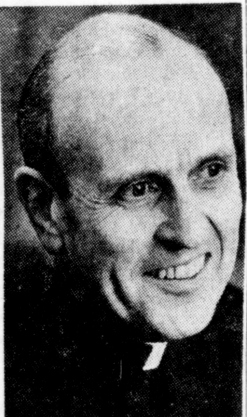

The 'situation' Dr. Sawyer referred to is the precarious state of military discipline and efficiency he believes has arisen from the Calley case which, according to Sawyer, tells "subordinates all down the line, 'Maybe you should obey (an order) and maybe you shouldn't. The decision is yours.'"

The 77-year-old physician, a veteran of both world wars and a draft board member for 30 years, noted in his letter how wars have taught him "that orders must be obeyed when given," but the Calley conviction exposes a draftee "to the extra hazard of evaluating a superior's command," in addition to the "avowed dangers of war."

He indicated that he could no longer feel right in carrying out duties for the military service which "penalizes both for obeying and disobeying orders of a superior rank as has been shown in the indictment of Lt. Calley."

The resignation of Dr. Sawyer was one of several to take place across the country in protest against the Lieutenant's conviction. In some localities, whole draft boards quit en masse to demonstrate their treatment to the treatment of Calley.

Dr. Sawyer, who is also acting commissioner of Newton's Department of Health, resides at 430 Centre street.

SPEAKER — Cong. Robert F. Drinan will be the featured speaker at the Temple Emmanuel Emanuel Brotherhood "Man of the Year" breakfast, Sunday, April 18, at 9:30 a.m. The event will honor Lawrence Suttner, president of the congregation, in recognition of his outstanding leadership in the community and the Temple.

political questions of our time. "No longer can scientists and technicians ethically consider themselves to have the right to be indifferent to the political uses made of their work," he said.

Certificates were presented to 54 students who completed evening school courses for three years by Kenrick M. Baker of board of trustees, Dr. H. Russell Beatty, Wentworth president, also addressed the students, and Dr. Richard D. Pierce, dean of chapel at Emerson College, gave the invocation.

"Federal Cases"

Oliver Wendell Holmes not only brought to the U.S. Supreme Court a deep knowledge of the law. He brought to that august body an everyday, laconic sense of the English language stripped of the occult and difficult-to-understand.

"I recognize without hesitation," he declared in a case involving the Southern Pacific, "that judges do and must legislate." He quickly added the powers were limited to narrow "interstices."

Perhaps Judge Francis J. Good of the Massachusetts Superior Court was thinking of Justice Holmes' philosophies recently when he voiced in open court his criticisms of attorneys, "who dash down to the federal court waving the Constitution in one hand and an injunction in the other, after losing a case in the state court."

"When it comes to such things as measuring the length of a haircut that can be worn in school judges should not get involved," he added. "Judges have no business making themselves ex-officio members of school boards, planning boards and other public administrative agencies."

The Superior Court judge's criticism is most timely. Presently, from President Nixon down, widespread concern is expressed by log-jams in the court dockets delaying the administration of justice for months and even years.

Local school authorities appeared quite competent in handling disciplinary cases, in a day not too long back. The scribbling of an obscene word on a blackboard by a teacher would not attain the dignity of a "federal case."

That federal courts can find time to deal with such limited matters puzzle not only Judge Good but laymen as well.

Highly publicized studies by outstanding men and women will be the predictable result of the current court log-jams. Those who are chosen to make those studies would do well to start their work by having a long talk with Judge Francis J. Good of the Massachusetts Superior Court and Judge Elijah Adlow of Boston Municipal Court.

Advance Obituaries

Everyone seems ready to sign the death warrants for most of the nation's cities. Financial disaster, it's freely predicted, lies just around the next corner. In the advance obituaries and elegies little sympathy is lavished on the deceased-to-be.

Last week the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, announcing 225 conventions are expected to bring 290,000 visitors ready to spend $40 million during the remainder of 1971. It also reported 500 conventions are already booked between '72 and '82.

Miami caused a big hullabaloo when it announced it was seeking to corner both national political conventions for 1972. Rival cities started bolstering their own claims with the angry rejection of all Miami claims.

Conventions and big-time sporting events are probably inaccurate methods of determining the health of the major cities. By the inclusion of area bedroom towns and suburbs, the Census Bureau is finding that many core city populations moved only a few miles outside the cities' fixed boundaries. The city and its fringe area is considered a single unit.

Geographically the cities themselves still retain the advantage which made them cities of the first place. In times of financial stress they've permitted municipal housekeeping to slip a notch or two. Economies have dulled some of the efficiencies of public service.

Disturbing, too, is the reluctance or inability of both of state governments to shore up the vaults of city treasuries. There's no guarantee that the federal government's largesse will bring instant prosperity to any city.

Yet, it's a basic assumption that the whole country is destined to go the way it cities go. Even as their fortunes seem to be dropping to rock bottom, many nostrums and cures are offered. No one can presently point out where the ladder for a return to normalcy will be found.

The ladders must and will be found. The cities which have served the past may never return. Their place will be taken by cities which will have the capacity to serve the future. They will, however, provide the foundation for the future.

He Will Rise Again!

Officeholders Met Mrs. Bruyn At The Capitol

Among the several hundreds of people who greeted Mrs. Louise Bruyn of Newton upon her arrival last Friday at the United States Capitol, following her 450-mile, 44-day march for peace, were members of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation.

Father Robert F. Drinan, who represents Newton and the rest of the Third District in Congress, told the gathering: "All mothers in America will follow her example."

Representative Margaret Heckler of the 101st Congressional District (which includes much of Norfolk County and most of Bristol County) was on hand to meet the Newton housewife, as was Senator Edward M. Kennedy, who asserted that the courage and commitment demonstrated by Mrs. Bruyn would lead members of Congress to intensify their efforts to terminate the war in Southeast Asia.

Timed to coincide with the Newtonite's arrival in Washington were marches and peaceful anti-war demonstrations staged in four New England capitals: Boston; Hartford; Montpelier, Vermont and Augusta, Maine.

On Beacon Hill, a group of over 6000 women met with Governor Francis W. Sargent, after having marched to the State House from Copley Square.

Renamed to Council

Michael Lipof of 26 Rowena Rd., Newton Centre, has been appointed to the metropolitan Area Council by Governor Francis W. Sargent, it was announced this week on Beacon Hill. Lipof will replace J. Westbrook McPherson, whose term expired.

LETTERS TO THE GRAPHIC

As The Twig Is Bent

Editor of The Graphic:
A letter to the Editor, News Tribune of April 3rd, 1971, from parents of Newton High School students reports that in substitution for a class in "Western Tradition" students were invited by a teacher to attend open discussion in a classroom with homosexuals pertaining to their Life Style "including exposure to visual exploitation of affection by some members of the visiting group."

For some time teachers have been leading classes, not only at high school level, but lower grades too, in protest marches about the City teaching the techniques of mob action.

For some time we have been listening to exponents advocating that sex education is a legitimate field for the indoctrination of our children in our public schools.

Bible reading and prayers and flag saluting have been abolished in the interests of promoting anarchy.

One wonders if Newton schools also conduct classes in bomb making. In view of the above such would not be surprising.

How much more will decent citizens, parents and taxpayers alike, tolerate before rising up in righteous wrath in opposition to public school authorities demanding the abolishment of the teaching of subversion of all that is decent in our public schools?

Very truly yours,
J. Ellis Bowen,
Newton, Mass.

Choice By Wards

Editor of The Graphic:
At the Newton City Hall public meeting March 29 to present proposed Charter changes to the Board of Aldermen as to the manner of electing School Committeemen there was no mention of a most practical difficulty the voter now has.

There are at least sixteen names of new candidates and incumbents for School Committee on the ballot. The present choice being on a city wide basis, in order to vote intelligently he must hear what each one has to say. This involves many trips to many places. He simply doesn't have that much time and effort to spare.

Even if he did, he simply could not remember all he heard from each of sixteen people, and properly connect up what he heard with who said it. When on the same ballot there are the names of several dozen candidates for Alderman, and Mayor too, the situation is really impossible.

The result is that he either doesn't vote at all, or abbreviates his franchise so that the election may turn out to be a distortion of what the community actually wants in the way of representation. It would be much fairer to the taxpayer voter if he had only two or three candidates for School Committee to check up on and listen to within a short radius of his home.

The proposed change to ward elections for School Committeemen therefore is most fair and sensible. Perhaps this is only part of what is needed in the way of Charter revision.

Yours very truly,
John Gosfield
Newton

Call For Members

Editor of The Graphic:
Thanks to the votes of our legislators, who were encouraged by many local citizens, recent proposals to limit fiscal autonomy of school committees have been defeated. As seems proper, school committees will continue to be directly responsible for dollars spent on education. It is hoped that eventual tax reform will allow school committees to find a way to become more successful in balancing educational needs and taxpayers needs.

What appears to have been behind the defeated proposals was partly a reflection of citizens' desires for "greater participation" and need "to relieve their frustrations." Efforts to improve communication should be made to correct this. In Newton there is a city-

Favors New Method Of Electing School Board

Editor,
Newton Graphic:
On the subject of changing the method of voting for School Committee, no one of us may speak with absolute certainty — pro or con — about something that has never been tried. What we may say with certainty is that the exchange of information between the Committee and community has not flown freely, so there is reason to look for closer representation through combined ward and at-large voting (four members at large and four from districts to be defined.)

The problem is that no city-wide organization serves as an on-going, non-partisan educational outlet where people of good will and divergent views may feel welcome and comfortable in their expressions. Such an outlet is needed — in almost any form — and a change in the structure of School Committee voting would seem to offer a way.

The supporters of such change are unfairly left in a difficult position because the proposals of the Charter Commission (to be on the ballot this year) carry no provision for change of School Committee voting (except for vacancies or an eight year limit on service.)

Consequently, people who want to support generally the work of the Charter Commission, yet to alter now the means of Committee voting, are troubled. Government was not meant to box people into corners.

Now the aldermen have a difficult problem. They must decide whether or not to allow the citizens any vote on the School Committee issue this year.

Members of the School Committee, all honorable people, would surely like to be more responsive city-wide, but it is probably impossible to be so and very likely unfair to expect it. Fifteen years ago, with less polarization, each member was well able to represent the total city. We were living in less complex times.

The institution of education has verbalized the loudest for change. Educators plead for the chance — just the opportunity — to show how a program can work and insist that alert communities are willing to try. Certainly the School Committee and Board of Aldermen should not be less supportive of these principles of governance when changes concern themselves.

Probably the most sensitive issue relating to the reputation of our schools is the fact that one does not secure a position in the system simply by knowing a member of the School Committee. This situation would not be altered by a substitute method of election.

To suggest otherwise is demeaning to the community. What should change is the opportunity to direct community concerns through a closer means of representation.

Finally, in changing to a half-ward, half-at-large system of voting, we would not be freezing the issue into perpetuity. Therefore, we need not remain encapsulated in form when help is needed for a better Committee-community dialogue. In words so often used by educators, we are presently rationalizing an old orthodoxy that has served its time.

Brenda R. Tanger, wide organization, Newton Citizens for Education, that provides a way for parents, non-parents, students, teachers, administrators, and school committee to communicate. NCE is open to and actively solicits participation from people with all points of view in the community.

Writers of recently published letters which were unfairly critical, I think, of NCE are urged to join the organization, the point of which is to provide a responsible civic forum in a constructive climate.

Your truly,
Chrysie Kirsch

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS - (Continued from Page 1)

They scuttled it and substituted a program of their own containing painless taxes which means they were painful only for the people who had to pay them. They mostly levied a few more millions here and there on businesses and industries and made it a little more difficult to do business in Massachusetts.

If you add up the list of industrial firms which have left Massachusetts and moved to other states since that bill was enacted you would find it reached substantial proportions even though most of them probably pulled up stakes because of other factors, including the onerous laws already on the statute books.

That bit of legislative brilliance, incidentally, helped Governor Sargent to win a full term in the Governorship. He was not obliged to accept the responsibility for the tax program. He could point out that it was produced by Democratic members in the House of Representatives, not by him.

Governor Sargent this year has submitted one tax bill to the Legislature which some observers caustically declare was intended to raise part of the money needed to pay for the waste and fraud in the state welfare department.

Whatever use was to be made of the new revenue, the fact is that the Governor's tax program was twice washed down the legislative drain. It was swept down once in the House, rescued in the Senate and given the deep-six a second time in the House.

From where we sit the House members were to be commended for their good judgment in killing the bill which contained a number of unattractive features, including a tax on thrift.

Governor Sargent is now working on the preparation of a second tax measure, and the fear of some persons experienced in the ways of Beacon Hill is that it will be even worse than the first bill.

One State Senator, speaking before an audience at a Rotary Club luncheon in his district, was asked how he could justify the action of the Legislature in piling so heavy a tax burden on business and industry in Massachusetts and making it so difficult for an industrial firm to operate profitably in the State.

His answer was that Massachusetts is a service State. "Look at all the colleges and hospitals we have," he said, in effect. "We are basically a service State, but if we are going to be a reasonably profitable state and provide jobs for most of our citizens, we must produce more than services."

Long ago, we lost our textile mills. We are losing the remnants of our shoe industry. Too much of our economy is based on the flimsy foundation of the contracts the federal government sees fit to give us. Thousands of our people are out of jobs or if they can get stop-gap work are unable to make full use of their skills. Yet, the message that we have a poor business and industrial climate does not appear to have reached Beacon Hill. Either that, or there's a lack of understanding of what it means.

Crane Won Big in Fight For Job He Really Didn't Want

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane was overwhelmingly elected chairman of the Democratic State Committee—a job he really didn't want—and Representative John Buckley of Abington was badly beaten for the same position which he wanted very much.

Buckley never really had any chance of defeating Crane, but, with the help of Congressman Michael Harrington of Salem and for reasons which still are not clear, he engaged in a hopeless fight.

Representative Buckley originally was picked by some Democratic leaders, apparently including Senator Edward M. Kennedy, to be the Democratic State Chairman.

But then a couple of Democratic chieftains, notably House Speaker David Bartley and Attorney General Robert H. Quinn, put their backs up and said they wouldn't accept Buckley.

Buckley is an ultra-liberal who spends more time off the Democratic reservation than on it. His father, the late Thomas H. Buckley, was a fine Democratic politician.

His son has not demonstrated the same ability to get along with people that helped his father achieve public prominence in the 1940s.

A meeting was held at Ted Kennedy's Beacon Hill home, and the assembled Democratic leaders agreed on Crane as a compromise choice. Crane consented to take the job for a year, to serve without pay and to try to help rebuild the Democratic party in Massachusetts.

One of the big complaints against Representative Buckley, incidentally, was that last year when Democratic leaders were engaged in a life-and-death political struggle on the issue of cutting the size of the House of Representatives, Buckley lined up with Governor Sargent and the League of Women Voters and voted to slash the size of the House.

Despite the fact that the party bosses didn't want him, Buckley, backed by Congressman Harrington, made a fight for the Democratic State Chairmanship but got nowhere.

One thing noticeable at the Democratic State Committee session, incidentally, was the grumbles from the members about being told how to vote. Some time they'd like to be able to make up their own minds. They probably would have elected Crane this time if they did have a free choice. The State Committee is lucky to get him to run its affairs for a year.

Lt. Gov. Don Dwight Gets Bum Rap From Some Writers

Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight has had perhaps the shortest political honeymoon of any Lieutenant Governor in Massachusetts history.

That undoubtedly is due in some measure to the fact that Dwight, although a new Lieutenant Governor, was elected in tandem with a Governor who already had been in office, for two years.

Last November, of course, was the first time a Governor and Lieutenant Governor ever were elected as a ticket in Massachusetts.

Whatever the reason and motives, Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight has got a bum rap from some of the newsmen at the State House, not withstanding that he's a former one himself, and a good one at that.

One political columnist devoted some newsprint to sympathizing with the plight of young Paul Keough, Dwight's public relations man who, according to the columnist, has been laboring mightily to improve the image of Donald Dwight.

We had not realized Dwight's image was all that much in need of improving. In fact, we thought it was fairly good. But we would agree that young Mr. Keough has a tough job, primarily because he doesn't know as much about public relations as his boss does, Dwight having been a newspaperman of some substantial ability.

It may also be that Dwight has neglected his image because he has devoted more time and effort to improving Governor Sargent's image than his own. Dwight apparently thinks that's what he's supposed to do.

Another complaint against Lieutenant Governor Dwight was that on April 1 he played an April Fool's joke by having the unsuspecting Mr. Keough announce that he would make a major address in Newton.

This writer journeyed to Newton to hear what Mr. Dwight had to say, and we did not realize we had been April Fooled until we read about it in a column the next day. In all truth, we're not convinced yet that we were the butt of a joke.

The busy State House columnist put it this way: "Dwight knows very well that it takes a major address to get the working press out to Newton. The working press is not interested in pep talks to chambers of commerce. But that is precisely what Dwight delivered."

Being a reporter of some substantial experience, extending roughly back to the ice age, we would like to enter a mild dissent to that observation.

In all candor, Dwight did not announce the start of World War 3; nor did he state that everything is forgiven and forgotten where Lieutenant Calley is concerned.

But he did disclose that the new State Cabinet system is in danger, that the delay by the Legislature in providing the necessary funds is hampering the recruitment of 10 Cabinet members and that Governor Sargent probably would not be able to meet his April 30 timetable for putting the Cabinet plan into effect.

This writer at the moment is not taking sides in the dispute between Governor Sargent and the Legislature over the delay in putting up the money to hire the members of the Sargent Cabinet.

Junior College Coed Voted MVP For Tournament

Margie Drew, a Newton Junior College freshman, was voted the Most Valuable Player and her Newton Recreation Department team wound up on top in the first annual Eastern Girls' Basketball Tournament played at Mt. Ida Junior College last weekend.

Margie, who is known in the area for her softball abilities, led the Newton cagers to a 30-26 triumph over a strong squad from Montreal in the final game on Saturday night. In the two previous tournament contests, the Newton five won convincing victories against Emerson College, 61-20, and Mt. Ida, 70-20.

The team was coached by Fran Towle and the tournament was held in behalf of Basketball Unlimited, for girls 19-years-old and younger.

Newton Girls Win State 1st In Badminton

Nancy Finkelstein and Susan Cutler, representing Newton South High School, placed first in the girls state doubles badminton tournament at Wheaton College. The tournament was held on Saturday (April 3) with 28 girls representing 14 schools throughout Massachusetts.

Nancy and Sue went all the way surviving the double elimination to end up undefeated. In the final round the girls beat Girls Latin of Boston to become the first high school girls doubles champions.

The girls are coached by Barbara Gilmore, head of the Physical Education Department at South High. They begin working with Miss Gilmore a short two weeks ago.

Nancy is a senior at South and is a member of the girls field hockey and tennis teams and captain of the basketball and volleyball teams.

Susan is a junior at South and is a member of the field hockey and basketball teams.

Free Program At Y for Young Non-Swimmers

The Newton Y.M.C.A. announces its annual Learn to Swim Campaign, free of charge for the non-swimming children and adults of Newton and the surrounding communities. The campaign will be held during the April school vacation on Tuesday, April 20, through Friday, April 23.

Non-swimmers age seven and older are eligible. The only stipulation insisted upon is they be NON-SWIMMERS.

This Campaign serves no useful purpose for those who are swimmers. Parents are urged to cooperate and not send their child if he can swim 30 feet.

The goal over the four days is to teach the enrollees to swim 30 feet. This is basic, but it is a beginning and serves as an introduction to further swimming instruction for the children and adults.

The lessons will be one-half hour in length, beginning at 8:30 a.m. and continue each half hour until 12:30 p.m. The following is a time schedule for boys and girls, men and women: 8:30-9 a.m., boys 7-9 years old; 9-9:30 a.m., boys 10-12 years old; 9:30-10 a.m., boys 13-16 years old; 10-10:30 a.m., boys and men 17 and older. 10:30-11 a.m., girls 7-9 years old; 11-11:30 a.m., girls 10-12; 11:30-12 noon, girls 13-16 years old; 12-12:30 p.m., girls and women 17 and older.

Due to limited space in the pool, each class will be limited to the first 20 applicants. Register in person, or by mail, or by phone. Registration will end at 5 p.m., Wednesday, April 14. Register in the Physical Education Department of the Newton Y.M.C.A., 276 Church St., Newton 02158, or call 244-6050.

If Pitching Comes Through, Lions Can Conquer New League

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Pitching will be the key to the Newton South High fortunes this spring.

In each of the last two seasons the Lions have had a strong mound corps, but in each case most of the previous staff graduated. Emmons Levine, last year's ace, Paul Selby and Steve Stockman are gone. In addition, second baseman Bruce Gorton and outfielder Bob Davine, a 1970 find, have also departed.

Most of those regulars can be replaced, except for possibly pitchers. South was 9-7 in the Suburban League last spring after winning a state tourney berth the year before, but this year moves to the Dual County League, which is another question mark.

What the team has as definite pluses are co-captains Clem Virgilio and Richie Lerner. Both were All-Suburban selections last year. Virgilio is an outfielder who batted .294 with 15 RBIs and accumulated six stolen bases. In the field he made only one error in 16 games. But most importantly, he saw action in four games as a pitcher for a 2-0 record and an 0.84 earned run average. Lerner is solid behind the plate. In 1970 he batted .262, knocked home eight runs and scored seven, while fielding at a .985 pace.

First-base looks strong with basketball teammates junior Ned Levine and sophomore Ned Moan fighting for a starting slot.

The rest of the infield is bolstered by returnees Noah Young, at shortstop and Barry Friedman at third-base. Paul Arduino, a converted catcher, Eric Lane and Russ Small, also have infield experience. Peter Miller adds more depth.

Larry Feldman is set in left field and Virgilio is a strong point in center when he's not on the mound. Elliot Loew, the fastest runner on the team, saw plenty of action last year and seems assured of a starting spot, switching between center and right. Twin brothers Rich and Ron Izen and Barry Stone are the backup outfielders.

And back to pitching. Right-handers Ken Laurie, whose brother Steve hurled for South five years ago, and Bill Cormier, plus southpaws Rick Voss and Steve Schertzer, who tossed for the JV last year are all vying for a starting role. Sophomores Jack Ferreri and Jim Cavanaugh are given outside shots of sticking.

Third-year coach Neil McPhee, who has a record of 22-13 has his line-up pretty well set for his opening game tomorrow against Newton High. That is, set except for pitchers. It is a question which can be answered only after the season starts.

However, baseball is always a strong sport at South and McPhee has proven himself a capable coach. With a little luck and quick coming-of-age of pitchers the Lions will be roaring in May when tourney time comes around.

Newton Recreation Girls Win Eastern Hoop Tourney

The Newton Recreation Department Team won the first annual Eastern Girls' Basketball Tournament held at Mt. Ida Junior College.

The team not only won the tournament but placed two players Margie Drew, freshman at Newton Junior College, and Dale Ryan, Boston State freshman, on the all-star team with Margie Drew selected as the most valuable player.

In the first two rounds the Newton team won quite easily beating Emerson College 61-20 and Mt. Ida College 70-20.

However, the Montreal team from Canada gave the quintet stiffer competition.

In the Montreal vs Newton contest the Garden City team stepped off in the lead the first half with a 14-5 margin but in the third quarter Quebec team scored three quick baskets and the Newton team had to battle from that time to the end with Newton one point lead in the remaining seconds.

Margie Drew dropped one out of two baskets and Hildy Paris, senior at Newton High, added a field goal to put the Newton team ahead to win the tournament 30-26.

The tournament was sponsored by Alex Robinson of Chelmsford in behalf of Basketball Unlimited for girls 19 years and under.

It is his hope to promote the sport for girls through competition and clinics.

Newton South's Cagers May Carry Late Season Momentum Into 1971-72

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The winter sports season has ended and the spring season will begin this week, but Chandler Phinney is already looking ahead to next year's basketball season.

Coach Phinney has taken some lumps in his first two years as Newton South High hoop mentor, this year finishing 2-14, but he knew that he had a rebuilding job ahead of him when he started.

With only co-captains Dana Gorton and Eric Lane graduating from an almost complete underclass team Phinney feels his players have finally caught up to the rest of the Dual County League.

The squad improved considerably over the second half of the season, coming much closer to victory on many occasions and with the experience gained South could have its first winning season in a long time next year.

Guards Doug Noble and Ned Moan were South's top pointgetters with 137 and 136 points, respectively. Noble had a high game of 21, best by a South hooper. He is a junior, while Moan is a sophomore.

Sophomore forward John Staulo improved tremendously during the year and totaled 131 points, with a best effort of 18 points.

Gorton and Lane, the two departing lettermen, were next in scoring with 123 and 86 points, respectively.

Frontcourtmen Bob Levine and Randy Lampert, both 6-2, were the next two scorers with 77 and 73 points. Lampert started the year with the JV, but progressed to a starting varsity post.

Guard Ron Izen, 49 points, Jim Oppenheim, 24 markers, Scott Casty, Scott Green, 6-1, Bob Sherman, 6-4 Al Grupp, Rich Duffy and Chuck Adeock, all saw some varsity action during 1970-71 and will all return for next winter's campaign.

Graduation hits the rest of the loop very hard. Perhaps the breaks will finally go Newton South's way on the basketball court.

South High Netmen Appear Unbeatable

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Newton South High coach Robert Franke thinks his tennis team can win the state championship this spring.

Tennis is a big sport at Newton South. In 1967 and 1968 the Lions won the state title. In the succeeding two years they also made the state tournament, but were eliminated in the quarter-finals.

Franke, whose teams have compiled a 72-9 mark over those four years, including a 14-3 slate last year, is optimistic and feels that with a minimum of breaks the 1971 squad "can win it all," as opposed to the previous two seasons when he felt that the team was one man short.

Up until last week the basis for Franke's hopes was primarily captain Dave Cohen. Cohen is a senior who has never lost a dual match for the Lions in his number one spot, and was a semi-finalist in the state individual championships last spring.

The catch with Cohen is that he no longer owns the number one singles spot. Weldon Rogers, a 6-0, unobtrusive-looking transfer student from Washington, D.C., earned that spot with two victories over Cohen. With Rogers in the first spot it stretches the imagination to believe that anyone has a number two man close to Cohen, so the Lions should be next to unstoppable up front.

Solidly entrenched in the third singles position is junior Stan Mescon. Mescon, whose brother Gary played on both the championship teams a few years ago, played singles last year and is reportedly greatly improved.

There are 47 candidates in all, leaving 44 trying for the remaining four spots on the first and second doubles teams.

Coach Franke lists eight players who he feels have the edge. Leading that list is junior Jim Oppenheim who played third singles in 1970, and doubles after he injured his ankle. Behind him are Charley Applestein, Jim Cornblatt, whose twin brothers Andy and Bruce also cavored for the two state title teams, John Kaufman, Mark Altman, T. Hornsby, Jr., Mike Charness, and leading sophomore Steve Capone.

The Lions have been rubbed out in the quarter-finals in each of the last two years, both times by an eventual finalist. With more strength in the singles slots and greater depth in the doubles, 1971 may be the year South reclaims the state tennis championship.

For an early look at possibly the best catch the Lions versus Winchester on April 21.

Bucky Adams On UW Tennis Team

Jeffrey "Bucky" Adams is now playing tennis for the University of Wisconsin team and thus far in eight matches with various colleges in the Mid West, Wisconsin has not lost a match and is expected to make an excellent showing in their "Big 10" competition.

Bucky, who led Newton South High to two state tennis championships in 1968 and 1969, as well as undefeated seasons, will be in charge of the tennis program at the Sidney Hill Country Club this summer.

BU Freshman Hoop Post Earned By Local Youth

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Forward Bruce MacLeod of Newton Centre recently completed the freshman basketball season at Boston University.

MacLeod, who measures up to 6-4, 190 pounds, started the year on the bench, but by midseason had progressed to the role of starting forward.

The 18-year-old physical education major spent only his sophomore year at Newton High, where he played right end and defensive end on the varsity football squad, but no basketball.

As a junior he transferred to Christian High School, now called Lexington Christian Academy, and he became an instant basketball star, leading the team in scoring with a 15.5 average.

His senior year, MacLeod captained the Lexington-based Cagers and scored at a 17.0 clip. He also played soccer.

During this past summer he was the leading point-getter for the Eliot Club in the Newton Summer Basketball League.

MacLeod feels that his strong point for the Terrier frosh this season was his defense and overall hustle. "I really worked. In the beginning of the season I was on the bench and I am pleased that I didn't give up. Hustle had to be my specialty. Kenny Boyd (a former high school all-American) and Curtis Bolden (all-state as a prep) were the scorers so I didn't have to shoot much."

BU started slowly, going 4-5 in its first nine contests. And then when MacLeod was moved into a starting role the club became more cohesive, ending up 12-7.

"I finished strong and the coaches told me that I have a chance to play varsity next year. There are nine lettermen back, plus some other good freshmen. I think I have a chance and I'd like to play. I'll just have to work hard all summer."

Don't be surprised if Bruce MacLeod is playing varsity basketball for Boston University next year.

Wesleyan Nine Counts Heavily On Newton Star

The Wesleyan (Connecticut) University baseball team starts its busy schedule this week and its chances of having a successful season are greatly dependent upon the performance of third-baseman Pete Hicks of Newton.

Hicks is one of only three veterans on the squad's roster and his experience will be an important factor throughout the spring line-up of games.

Camping Trips Planned By Y This Summer

The Newton YMCA has inaugurated a new Travel Camp program called "Discovery Y '71". A new type of camping experience will be offered boys in the 11 to 15 year group with two different itineraries planned for this smallest travel camp operating in New England.

Chester L. Mosher, Executive Director of the YMCA in Newton, described the new program as a travel camp with a full camp program "not a travel tour".

Ten boys will be admitted to each of the camp programs. Trip I will leave July 6 and return July 27 after visiting such places as Fundy National Park and Halifax, Nova Scotia. Trip II will leave July 29 and return August 19 after visiting Quebec City and "Man and His World" in Montreal. Director of the camp is John A. Bolster, who came to Newton from the Providence YMCA Camping Service Division where he worked with all phases of camping.

For further information and camp applications call 244-6050 or stop in at the Y at 276 Church St., Newton.

Local Gymnasts Finish Last In State Tourney

By BOB WORDEN

Once again the Newton High gymnastics team took the big apple. In this year's State Team Championships at Natick, Newton finished dead last in a field of six, while Braintree High captured this year's crown, posting a 108.80 total.

Newton, a perennial competitor in this meet, won a playoff between seven teams to, gain entry along with Natick for a chance at the title. But, the Tigers folded under the pressure to fall about 8 points off their usual effort.

Braintree, a sophomore studded squad, were fantastic in all but floor exercise. And 18.756 is really not that bad a count. They look like they are developing into a dynasty, much like Andover.

On the home town side of the ledger, the Tigers roared out of the starting gate with a fine 19.456 score on floor exercise. Steve Wilbar and Bob Clancy, the one - two punch that stunned many a team this campaign, marked 6.956 and 6.9 respectively.

Then the Garden City began to fold. On the Side Horse Anchor man Irwin Heckler managed only 4.056 and the team a poor 11.40. A comeback on the pipe was almost a must.

but, Marini had his problems scoring 3.4, the lowest overall in that event and Bob Simonetti did just about the same and Newton was out of it.

In the parallel bar event, one of Newton's stronger events, Marini and Mike DiBenedetti fell short with 3.456 and 3.30 totals. Guy Forte scored 56.250 to bail the Tigers out, with a 12.856 event score.

Long Horse Vaulting and Rings were horrible as the Tigers lost pride in themselves.

It was a sad ending to a very successful story. The black and orange tallied a 9-2 slate this season, losing to only Andover and Wellesley. Later they revenged those losses beating both schools in the pre-state playoffs.

For Coach George Jessup it was a disappointing evening. A man who donates so much to not only his team but to the sport of gymnastics, he deserves only the best.

Next week a review of the season and a glance ahead. See you around and about...

She appeared as the mistress of ceremonies of the melodrama, "The Dastard," Mommy in "American Dream," and Henrietta, in "Footsteps of Doves" in last year's spring show, "You Know I Can't Hear You When He Water's Running." Presently, she is essaying the role of Gloria on the WBUR radio program, "Harvard Square."

Father Drinan Pledges Action On Soviet Jews

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton disclosed Sunday that he intends to submit a measure calling for 30,000 refugee visas for Russian Jews to come into the United States.

The main speaker at a rally staged in front of Newton's War Memorial Auditorium to protest the alleged abuse of Soviet Jews' rights, Father Drinan told the assembled crowd of 2,000 that the attack on Jewish culture in the Soviet Union has intensified since the Israeli victory in the June 1967 war with the Arabs.

During that time, greatly increasing numbers of Jewish Soviet citizens have requested their government's permission to emigrate to Israel but have, for the most part, been refused in their attempts.

Father Drinan criticized the United States Senate for not ratifying the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights, with its clause establishing the right to emigration, and he noted that the Soviet Union, which "subscribed to" the 1948 declaration, "is denying this basic right to the more than three million Jews" within its borders.

Representing First Church of Newton is Chairman Mrs. John Scribner, Wellesley, and her committee, Miss Elizabeth Plimpton, Mrs. Robert Roth, Mrs. Gerard Krumm, and Mrs. George Pfannenstiel, Newton Centre; Mrs. Leonard Jenny, Newton Highlands, and Mrs. Ross Trenholm of Waltham.

State Business Executives To Meet In Newton

Newton has been picked as the site for the 55th annual meeting and banquet of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, and the April 15 event, to be held at the Marriott Motor Hotel, will mark the first time in its history that the association has had this yearly gathering outside of Boston.

The featured speaker will be Dan Moore of the Los Angeles Times Mirror. He is a California educator-turned-journalist who has become one of the West Coast's most popular speakers with his witty but hard-hitting commentaries.

The session's program, formerly a day-long affair, has this year been cut to a brief, late afternoon business meeting and election of officers, followed by a reception and dinner.

Associated Industries of Massachusetts is the state manufacturers' association and has a membership of nearly 2,500 Bay State industrial companies.

Students of the All Newton Music School will be seen Easter Sunday morning in a concert program on the show Young World at 7:30 a.m., Channel 5, WHDH-TV.

Newtonites will be asked questions on consumer buying and home improvement expectations by representatives of the Bureau of the Census during April, according to James W. Turbitt, director of the bureau's regional office in Boston.

Census Bureau interviewers will ask householders about any plans to buy a house, a car and major household appliances during the next year. Questions about home repairs and alterations will concern those made during the past three months and those planned to be made in the near future.

The Census Bureau conducts a survey of buying expectations and home repairs every three months to serve as a guide to U.S. economic growth. A mathematically selected group of households throughout the nation serves as a measure of what American families own and what they expect to buy in the near future.

Households in the survey will not be identified. Their answers are confidential and information obtained will be used only for statistical purposes.

Traffic Agency Follows State Body's Advice

In accordance with mid-March recommendation of the state Department of Public Works, the Newton Traffic Commission last week voted down a request to ban trucks from Winchester Street. The final decision in the matter belongs to the Board of Aldermen, to which the Commission will send its recommendation.

The reasons put forward by the Traffic Commission were the same advanced by the Massachusetts DPW in a letter it sent the city several weeks ago, in which these statistics were cited: (a) In the past year, only one heavy commercial vehicle has been involved in an accident on Winchester Street; (b) Trucks make up less than one per cent of the street's traffic; and (c) The proposed alternate route, Dedham Street - is residential in character and has an elementary school (Oak Hill) and playground bordering on it.

In other business, the Commission held for study both a proposal to make Washington Park, Tremont Streets and Waverly Avenue in Newton corner one-way thoroughfares and a request to put up a stop sign at the intersection of Lawmarissa Road, Moffat Street and Caroline Park.

Piano Duo At Temple Dedication

Mrs. Bertica Shulman Cramer and Boris Goldovsky will perform in a twin piano program, to be a highlight of dedication ceremonies of the Temple Beth Avodah on Puddingstone lane in Newton.

This concert, a rare performance by Mrs. Cramer and her former teacher, Mr. Goldovsky, will be held in the new building Saturday evening, May 15, at 8:30 o'clock.

A refugee from Cuba, daughter of refugee parents who fled Europe to Havana, she came to America as a young woman to continue her study of music. Recognized as a prodigy, she was performing on the piano in Cuba even at the age of four, soloing with the Havana symphony and often called the "Shirley Temple" of Cuba.

She became the protegee, favorite pupil and life long friend of Boris Goldovsky and studied with many of the music greats in her formative years. She has appeared at Tanglewood, concertized with Arthur Fiedler and Harry Dickson at the Esplanade and Symphony Hall.

Following her marriage to Howard Cramer of Worcester, she became a teacher of music in her home where she combines a teaching career with being a wife and mother.

Mrs. Cramer agreed to this concert appearance in honor of the Temple dedication since Temple Beth Avodah, the Temple in the Woods, is her Temple.

"Clacker Ball" Toy Listed As Potential Sight Hazard

The latest toy craze to sweep the country, whirling "clacker balls," rate high in eye injury potential as well as in popularity, says the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Called the biggest fad since the hula hoop, the toys, on the market only a few months, are already under investigation by the Food and Drug Administration as the accident reports begin to pile up.

The toy is made of two small hard balls, usually of lucite (some are steel or wood), attached to two cords which are fastened to a metal or plastic ring. The user holds the ring and swings the balls rhythmically until they attain a regular pattern of striking each other, producing the descriptive "clacking" sound.

According to reports received at the National Society, the danger lies in the lucite balls' tendency to shatter upon impact, sending jagged chips flying. The potential for eye injury is obvious, and heads the list of serious injuries attributed to the toy so far.

Many schools across the country have banned "clacker balls" from their school buildings and playground. The Food and Drug Administration, rather than banning the toys, has decided to issue a federal regulation to cover the materials, the construction, and the pre-NEWTON mar 15 marketing testing of this ball-type toy.

An FDA spokesman said that several small manufacturers are using substandard materials for their "clacker balls," and are even casting the materials in Christmas tree ornament molds — in which the mold markings plus the drilling of the balls to allow affixing them to the cords weakens the product.

The FDA is working with the National Bureau of Standards to develop manufacturing and testing requirements which will give a safe enough product even allowing for "reasonable misuse" by children and others.

After the FDA regulation is in effect, all ball-type toys that do not meet the requirements will be subject to immediate recall.

The Massachusetts and National Societies for the Prevention of Blindness applaud the safety-conscious schools who have banned "clacker balls" on school premises. The Societies urge parents of small children who "must have" the toy, as well as teenagers and others, to take the minimum precaution of buying the toy after the FDA regulation takes effect.

The FDA has promised fast action, anticipating regulation in April.

Diversity Of Talent Shown At Music Fest

A total of 16 performing groups, including approximately 500 Newton public school pupils, played together for the first time Tuesday night at the PTA Council's spring conference and the response to this "Kaleidoscope in Sound" program was a hearty one.

The variety of music presented ran the gamut from the mellow tones of the lyrical to the thumping sounds of rock, and the participants came from the ranks of the third grade as well as the twelfth.

The 1971 conference, according to PTA Council President Peter Scott, was dedicated "to all the teachers of music in the Newton schools, past and present — a token of our heart-felt gratitude."

The numbers selected for the program were described by the assistant coordinator of the arts for music, John C. Harper, as representing only a portion of the schools' activities in the musical field and he said of the music program's policy that it "is in the children we teach."

Lower Falls Families Must Seek New Homes

Nearly 65 persons, comprising families who reside on four parcels of property in Newton Lower Falls which the Newton Redevelopment Authority took over by eminent domain on Tuesday, have been given four months to find new quarters.

A 120-day period is the legal duration allotted for relocation efforts, although those people who have not been able to locate other accommodations within that period may be given more time to do so.

The eminent domain action came about despite residents' opposition, following unsuccessful attempts by the Redevelopment Authority and the owners of the land to arrive at a mutually agreeable price for the property, which makes up a sizeable segment of the area proposed for 60-75 units of low- and moderate-income housing.

The world has found many different ways to observe the Feast of Easter. The passing centuries have placed the approval of time itself on some of the earliest of traditions.

In a way, massive banks of altar flowers with their breath-taking beauty go back to an earlier civilization when the early wild flowers of spring were tenderly plucked and carried to the home and to the first crude Houses of Worship.

DAY OF REUNION Today Easter has become a home-coming day . . . a day of reunion . . . a family day. For child and adult it's a day when joy is reflected in bright new clothing, in footgear that gleams, in headgear designed to capture the spirit of the day.

Of all the holidays and holy days its deep basic significance has remained unchanged. Today the Easter Parade has become a tradition. Actually, as the passage of time is measured, it is something new. It only began around the turn of the century. What is important is that it began at the houses of worship when wealthy New Yorkers casting about for some physical token to match the age-old solemn but joyous church services chose Easter Sunday for the first display of their fine spring raiments.

While their horse-drawn carriages behind plodding horses followed dutifully along on the street, they walked for blocks along Fifth Avenue . . . to see and be seen. There were those who called it vanity, one of the besetting sins the less fortunate were quick to find in the "haves." Possibly vanity was a partial motivation, but it was also a gesture by the wealthy reaching for a way to reflect the glory of the day.

Gone are the rubber-tired carriages and the sleek, well-groomed horses. No longer is Fifth Avenue with its large churches the scene of the Easter Parade. In small towns and large. In wealthy suburbs and city areas where streets are flanked by old and tired tenements modish new styles, gay millinery and spring's brightest colors will prevail.

EASTER MUSIC One of the highlights of the Easter worship in the churches will be the music programs. For weeks choirs have been rehearsing and though often the carefully assembled programs will include joyous hymns composed many decades ago, they'll all seem new and all will be heart-filling on this great Holy Day.

The season of Lent with its connotation of sadness and the retrospective of the sins of man will end on Saturday—Holy Saturday in some of the churches. Friday will be Good Friday—a day of mourning—a day to ponder "The Seven Last Words."

Through the days remaining this week the Easter shopping season with its usual last-minute rush will hold the attention of thousands.

Shops and markets with the experience of past Easters serving as a guideline are well-stocked with choice food items. Ham is traditionally a favorite but not an all-inclusive choice. Even turkey—once the principal piece-of-resistance of Thanksgiving and Christmas—will be on many tables this Sunday.

For many, breakfast, too, with its emphasis on eggs—boiled and scrambled—will be ready for the early church-goers.

Easter—a day of joy—a day of family reunions—a day traditionally marked as a prelude to spring.

Easter, the Day of Resurrection, in 1971 will be a Day of Hope for mankind.

Lake Loss Milwaukee — Evaporation rate of the Great Lakes is variable. It is higher in the winter and fall months than during the other season of the year.

Seven Newtonites Named Notaries

Seven Newton residents have been appointed or reappointed as Notaries Public by Governor Francis W. Sargent.

They are Albert S. Frager of 45 Ferncroft Rd., Waban; Eugene J. Conroy of 87 Derby St., West Newton; Max Lefkowitz of 123 Clark St., Newton; Lawrence F. Simcock of 124 Hagen Rd., Newton; James R. MacLean of 1325 Walnut St., Newton Highlands; and G. Regina Lynch of 5 Emerson St., Newton.

Announcement of the appointments was made this week by Secretary of State John F.X. Dvoran. The terms of Notaries Public run for seven years.

Mid-Winter Conference By Hadassah in Newton

More than 300 Chapter delegates of the New England Region of Hadassah met last week at the Marriott Hotel in Newton for their mid-winter conference with members attending from as far afield as Manchester, N.H., and Portland, Me.

The day's proceedings were opened by Mrs. Bernard Garber, Region President, with presentation of the Membership Award Medal from Hadassah National to the region membership chairman, Mrs. Harry Kane. Mrs. Garber had received the medal on behalf of the New England Region from the national organization at their mid-winter conference in New York.

Mrs. Garber announced that while the National goal for the Region was set at a membership goal of 21,000 she intended to reach a figure of 23,000 members, to coincide with this year's 23rd anniversary of the establishment of the State of Israel.

Further details on the forthcoming Region Conference, scheduled for May 17 and 18, were given by Mrs. Felix Levenbach, this year's Conference chairman. She stressed the importance of pre-registration for this gala jubilee conference, which would be attended by many more delegates and which had been shortened to a two-day, instead of the usual three-day event.

Personal accounts of their impressions and experiences in Israel were given by Region delegates who recently returned from the annual Mid-Winter Conference, attended this year by more than 500 Hadassah women and their husbands.

The speakers included Mrs. Garber, Mesdames Theodore Feinberg, William Ginsburg, Robert Naigles, Maurice Silverstein, Victor Schlesinger, and Lewis Goldberg.

St. Mary's Annual Spring Rummage Sale

A Spring Rummage Sale by the women of St. Mary's Church, Concord St., Newton Lower Falls, is being held on Saturday (April 17) from 9:30 a.m. until noon.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served throughout the morning by Mrs. Lawrence Morrison and her assistants.

Chairmen Mrs. George Jessup and Mrs. Gilbert Wright, with help from the women, are assembling a great variety of articles, including clothes for everyone (from baby to grandma), books, hard cover and paper backs, jewelry, toys and games and best of all - white elephants of all descriptions.

The reports on current Hadassah activities in Israel made mention of the fact that the Hadassah Medical Center in Jerusalem has taken over the running of the children's hospital in Ramallah, where Arab and Israeli doctors now work side by side.

Mrs. Carl Spector reported in person on the World Conference on Soviet Jewry in Brussels, which she attended as one of eight Hadassah delegates officially invited to participate in this international forum.

50 Per Cent of Adult Americans Are Overweight

The Newton YMCA announces it has received startling information from the President's Council on Physical Fitness to the effect that 50 per cent of all adult Americans are overweight.

According to estimates by the American Medical Association 55 per cent of all deaths in the United States result from disease of the heart and blood vessels - many of them diseases associated with physical inactivity and overweight.

The Newton Y stressed that only 40 per cent of adult Americans take any systematic exercise in addition to their work. This figure is based on an American Institute Public Opinion poll.

Only 20 per cent of American adults meet reasonable medical standards of physical fitness, based on recent scientific studies involving more than 5,000 individuals.

Residents in the neighborhood of Wellesley, Weston, Wayland, Watertown, Waltham or any of the 81 other communities in the Massachusetts Bay area served by the Newton YMCA are urged to take these statistics to heart - and either run or at least jog to the Newton Y and start doing something about getting back into physical condition.

Country Players To Hold Meeting Wednesday Night

An open meeting of the country Players will be held on Wednesday evening, April 14, at 8:15 at the Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner. Everyone is invited to attend, and join the Players in coffee and dessert after the entertainment.

Continuing in an experimental vein, a one act play, "Sisters," written by Michael Purcell will be presented. The play has never been produced before, and marks the author's first venture as a playwright.

Michael Purcell, a member of the Country Players, is a familiar face to Newton's playgoers. Cast as the Bishop in last winter's production of Genet's "The Balcony," his performance earned plaudets at the New England Theatre Conference, held at Brandeis in May, 1970.

More recently, Mike essayed the role of the Reverend Arthur Humphrey in the Players' opener, "See How They Run," by Philip King.

His original play, "Sisters" will feature Pat Pellows, Mikki Krassin, and a newcomer to the Group, Ellen Knopf. The play concerns three actresses donning make-up to appear as the three witches in "Macbeth" - the conflicts that arise through character interplay - and a wee touch of the supernatural! A discussion period will follow the presentation.

Andover School Blaze Confined To 1 Dorm Room

A Saturday night fire in Sturtevant Hall of the Andover Newton Theological School, believed to have been caused by careless disposal of smoking materials in a wastebasket, was fortunately confined to the one bedroom in which it started.

Approximately $5,500 damage was done to Room 42 in the wood and brick building which, according to a resident, houses 15 students.

The occupant of the fourth-floor room was out at the time the blaze began, but another student, seeing smoke coming from the room, tried to put the fire out with an extinguisher. He did not succeed in stopping the flames but did pull a fire alarm box, subsequently leading firefighters to the burning area.

One fireman, Lt. Alfred R. Caruso of Engine 3, had to be taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC

But it did seem to us that what Don Dwight had to say was of sufficient import to justify us in packing a compass and journeying by pony express and stage coach to Newton. We hasten to add, however, that Donald Dwight does not need this writer as a defender. But we still would like to know when he's making a major address.

Famous Story Is Retold Of Delegate From Puerto Rico

Pardon us, please, while we take time out to answer a question sent in by a gentleman who neglected to give his address.

The incident you write about occurred before we started writing politics, but James M. Curley and a score of political writers told us about it down through the years.

Back in the spring of 1932, when the writer was still an undergraduate at college, the political Establishment in the Democratic party in Massachusetts, headed by the then Senator David I. Walsh and Governor Joseph B. Ely, supported Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination for President.

Smith had been the Democratic candidate for President in 1928. He was an idol and hero. When he came into Massachusetts men carried him on their shoulders wherever he went.

Curley, then Mayor of Boston, organized a slate of would-be delegates for Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was strictly no-contest in Massachusetts. In other states it was different because of the feeling Smith couldn't win. But in the Bay State it was a rout.

The only section Curley carried for FDR was Ward 9 in the South End where the late Mike Ward, a Curley lieutenant, was an expert at grave-stone voting.

Curley told a story of one Boston precinct where Roosevelt didn't get a vote. Two of Curley's secretaries lived in the precinct and supposedly were working at the polling place for FDR. Curley got up early the next morning and fired both of them.

Curley's enemies tolled their political requiem over him, as they had done and were to do on many other occasions.

But the resourceful Curley went to Puerto Rico where the delegates to the Democratic national convention were being chosen in a less democratic manner than had been the case in Massachusetts.

For considerations known only to himself and the persons with whom he did business Curley was made a bonafide delegate from Puerto Rico to the Democratic national convention.

His enemies screamed and shouted but to no avail. There was nothing in the laws which said the Puerto Rican delegates had to be from Puerto Rico.

Curley showed up at the convention with legitimate credentials and a sombrero.

He voted for FDR. He made a seconding speech for FDR. He helped to engineer the deals which swung the convention nomination to FDR. Later he was dumped by FDR when he sought a major federal appointment.

Incidentally, there was an item in the paper the other day that Mike Ward was the only person ever elected from two different Boston wards. Mike was elected to the House and Senate from Ward 9, South End, and to the City Council from Ward 21, Allston.

But Judge A. Frank Foster, now sitting in the Boston Municipal Court, was elected first to the House of Representatives from Ward 5 of the Back Bay, then a silk stocking district.

When Foster sought a second term, the people of Ward 5 were less sympathetic to him. He had been unfrocked as a Democratic liberal, and he was opposed by the late General Miles. This was just after the close of World War 2.

We wrote a column about the battle between the general and the corporal. The people of Ward 5 rallied behind the general. Foster moved to Ward 14, Dorchester, and became a political success, moving from the City Council to the House to the Senate to a judgeship.

Old-Time Honor System Was Different At Harvard

We read a small item in one of the newspapers the other day about the honor system at Harvard, and our memory raced back to the time of Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell when Harvard had a sort of detective network to back up its honor system.

A student in one of our classes had figured out—or thought he had—the questions we would get in an important examination. The trouble was he couldn't remember the answers for more than a few minutes. There were too many of them.

So he devised a plan to beat the system.

He wrote the answers to every question he thought we could possibly get on small pieces of paper which he secreted about his person.

On the day of the examination this writer was in a dull fog from having studied all night.

Our friend was bright and cheery. He was dressed especially for the occasion. He wore trousers with cuffs and a shirt with cuffs. He had on a jacket with two breast pockets. He hid his notes in his pockets, in the cuffs of his shirt and trousers, even in his shoes.

"How are you going to use them?" we asked curiously.

"I'll get permission to go to the men's room," he answered. "Then in the privacy of the toilet I'll take them out and read them. Maybe I'll tell them I'm ill and go down twice."

The exam period was about 15 minutes old when he asked permission to go to the men's room. The permission was granted, and a proctor accompanied him out of the examination room.

He was back in a few minutes, his eyes blazing, his face dark with anger. We bowed over our own test.

After the examination, we met him outside the lecture hall. His fury unabated.

"Can you imagine how little trust they have in us?" he asked. "They had taken the doors off the toilets, and the proctor stood there all the time."

We took one course required of all freshmen. We were seated in the balcony of a big lecture hall awaiting a midyear examination. Two more sophisticated youths sat next were getting ready for the worst.

If I don't know the answers," said one, "I'll pretend to faint. You shout that the man next to you has fainted, and they'll tell you to help me out."

The exams were distributed. We just started to read our paper when there was a disturbance a seat away. The boy in the next seat clambered to his feet. "Sir," he shouted, "the chap next to me has fainted."

The professor had heard that before.

"Put his head down between his legs," he shouted back. "That will revive him."

'Beginnings' Youth Center Given Vote Of Confidence

Last week's special meeting on the United Parish's (Eliot Church, First Church and Second Church in Newton) 'Beginnings' youth center, convened to help straighten out a few misunderstandings between the teenage users and adult sponsors, ended on a high note of harmony as Parish members voted overwhelmingly to allow the 'Beginnings' center, located in Newton Corner's Eliot Church, to continue operations.

An immediate cause of concern was expressed by several adults about the destructive behavior they had seen or heard about.

To this, the people who use and supervise 'Beginnings' replied that such a complaint was well taken and that all would be done in the future to insure proper care of the facilities.

In the smaller discussion groups that met during the evening, a number of teenagers offered their reasons for coming to 'Beginnings.'

One youth, whose house is empty during the day since both his parents work, said he comes for the company which the center provides. Another boy indicated that, before he had come to 'Beginnings' his loneliness was unbearable. A girl remarked that 'Beginnings' is a place for meeting friends and that it allows her to feel she is part of something.

Although the vote taken by the parishioners is a non-binding one, as the decision is actually the prerogative of the three congregations, there were very few people at the session's conclusion who doubted the necessity of a youth center.

With the program now apparently possessing the will to continue, the way still contains several obstacles, mainly the need for funds, adult volunteers and more facilities.

Aldermen Err In Thinking Police Got School Cars

Although acknowledging that he did not know how the School Department's fleet of driver education autos had decreased from five to three, the Department's business manager stated last week that the cars have not been given to the Police Department for use as safety education vehicles.

John P. Gilleland indicated that the cars acquired by the police were sold to the city by dealers for $1, the result of a School Department request of manufacturers some time ago to provide vehicles for school safety purposes.

He explained that the Board of Aldermen, which two weeks ago proposed that the Police Department purchase two new cars for its Community Services Division so that the two in current use could be returned to the School Department, was completely mistaken in its belief that the cars had ever been transferred from the drive education to the school safety program.

As for the pair of autos missing from the driver education stock, Gilleland noted they are to be replaced.

The Day of the Great Suffolk Downs meeting sponsored by the Massachusetts Legislative Council for Older Americans is rapidly approaching.

In response to inquiries relative to the meeting, Mr. Anthony J. Bibbo, Executive Director of the Newton Community Service Centers has announced that an open meeting will be held at the Newton Community Centre, 429 Cherry Street in West Newton, on Thursday, April 15th at 10:30 a.m. for the purpose of preparing for the Legislative Council Meeting and to exchange information relative to recent meetings held in preparation for the White House Conference on Older Americans.

James C. Callahan from the Catholic Guild for All the Blind will coordinate the meeting at the Community Centre.

In commenting on the meeting to be held at Suffolk Downs on Friday, April 23rd beginning at 9:30 a.m., Mr. Callahan stated that speakers who have accepted to participate to date are Senator Edward Brooke; Senator Harrison G. Williams; Congressman Philip Burton of California, who has proposed a plan for a minimum pension for older Americans; and William R. Hutton, Executive Director of the National Council of Senior Citizens.

It is hoped that Mr. Ralph Nader may also participate. There have been delegations in attendance from Newton at these meetings for the past two years and hopefully the community may also be represented at this session.

He added that communication received from the office of the Massachusetts Legislative Council for Older Americans indicates that this meeting must have a great impact on the nation. The Council feels that Older Americans are losing ground rather than making progress.

Delegations from outside the state are also expected to participate. On the state level the Council strongly urges that our emphasis be placed on legislation as protection of old age recipients when social security increases go into effect; reform of tax abatement for elders; rent subsidies, and many other programs.

Also, there must be a national drive for a minimum pension payment, which will enable people to live in the 1970's.

Among one of the objectives of this open meeting to be held at the Community Center on Thursday, April 15th will be the preparation of a resolution from Newton to be submitted to the Suffolk Downs Conference.

PREMIER CHOU INDICATES LIFTING OF 'BAMBOO CURTAIN'

PREMIER CHOU EN-LAI met and talked with American table tennis players Wednesday in Peking and said their visit has opened "a new chapter" in relations between Communist China and the United States. He said more Americans would be coming to Peking to further lift the Bamboo Curtain. The 72-year old Red Chinese leader was amiable, conciliatory and talkative in a one hour and 15 minute meeting with the visiting table tennis players and he shunned the anti-American statements on U.S. involvement in Indochina that have characterized most official Peking pronouncements. In what appeared to be a major change in Chinese policy, Chou said Peking "is interested in friendly relations with countries" that do not recognize the Communist regime in Communist China. His conversation ranged from this subject to the hippie movement in the United States and the problems of youth around the world. "In the past there were lots of American friends in China and you have made a new start," Chou told the U.S. athletes who arrived there last Saturday to play exhibition matches against the Chinese table tennis team. Chou's statement appeared to be a victory for President Nixon in his campaign to thaw Washington-Peking relations.

SOUTH VIETNAM LIFTS 15-DAY SIEGE AT FIRE BASE 6

SOUTH VIETNAMESE relief forces lifted a 15-day siege at Fire Base 6 Wednesday, permitting U.S. helicopters to fly tons of food, water and ammunition into defenders of the strategic outpost. Two American advisers were killed in the fight through the Communist lines. Pressures of Fire Base 6 eased, but U.S. and South Vietnamese field commanders said elements of a large North Vietnamese force were apparently regrouping to continue what has been described as a local offensive on the Central Highlands. Military sources at the front said about 2,700 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were slain in 15 days of combat in the Fire Base 6 area. South Vietnamese losses were placed at 172 men killed and 292 wounded.

ISRAEL'S COUNTERPROPOSAL RUNS INTO SNAG

ISRAEL'S counterproposal on reopening the Suez Canal was reported to have run into a snag Wednesday because of U.S. delay in outlining safeguards to prevent Egyptian and Soviet troops from crossing the waterway if Israeli troops are pulled back. The reports published in every major Israeli newspaper came amid warnings from both Jerusalem and Cairo that a new Middle East war might break out unless Israel came up with a plan acceptable to Egypt. The latest warning was voiced by Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, Israeli chief of staff, who said Israel must not underestimate the strength of the Egyptian and Syrian armies which have been bolstered by massive weapons shipments from the Soviet Union.

NIXON ANNOUNCES EASING OF EMBARGO AGAINST RED CHINA

PRESIDENT NIXON announced Wednesday a broad relaxation of the embargo that has barred direct U.S. trade with Communist China for 21 years. The announcement came just hours after premier Chou En-lai proclaimed in Peking "a new page in relations" between the United States and mainland China. The White House said Chou's remarks made it "an appropriate" time to announce Nixon's program. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler and other administration officials said the President had decided to relax trade restrictions before China's admission of an American table tennis team and Chou's reception for its members earlier Wednesday. The program will permit U.S. exports of non-essential goods such as pharmaceutical and agricultural supplies and consumer goods, Ziegler said. Imports into the United States of "designated items" from Red China also will be permitted. Currency controls would be eased to permit use of dollars by the Chinese.

MUSKIE ASSAILS FBI; CAMPAIGNS IN NEW ENGLAND TODAY

SEN. EDMUND S. MUSKIE, D-Maine, accused the FBI Wednesday of spying on Earth Day rallies held a year ago to glorify the environment. He said Congress should set up a board to monitor all government agencies who gather intelligence on civilians. In a Senate speech, Muskie said the FBI had no business eavesdropping on citizens protesting pollution where "no crime or threat of crime was involved nor... any violence threatened." The undeclared frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination will make a formal tour of New England today. Muskie will jet from Philadelphia tonight to begin a weekend trip in New Hampshire and two other states. New Hampshire is the site of the nation's first presidential primary next year. Dick Stewart, Muskie's press secretary, said the senator is being provided with a private plane by the Farmers Cooperative Association, a group he speaks to in Philadelphia, for the trip to Manchester, N. H. Stewart said Muskie will be accompanied on the trip by George Mitchell, Democratic National Committeeman from Falmouth, Maine, who is serving as Muskie's New England regional coordinator.

JOAN SAYS TED 'LEAVING OPEN' PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDACY

MRS. JOAN KENNEDY, wife of U.S. Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, D-Mass., said Wednesday he is "leaving open" the question of his presidential candidacy in 1972—but she hopes he does not run. "If my husband decides to stand, then I will be with him all the way," Mrs. Kennedy said on arrival in London from the United States. "But I would rather he did not. We have three young children." Asked if she wanted to become first lady, Mrs. Kennedy said: "Being the sister-in-law of a President, I've been close at hand and I know what it is really like. I do not want the job."

WELLESLEY MAN, SISTER FACE TAX CHARGES

INNOCENT PLEAS were entered Wednesday in Suffolk Superior Court for a Wellesley man and his sister, the first persons ever to be charged with violating the state's personal income tax law. Secret indictments were returned Tuesday charging Frank Costello, 50, with failing to file returns from 1964 through 1969 and his sister, Mrs. Eleanor Burry of Medford, of filing a fraudulent return for 1965. The pair stood mute at their arraignment and Judge David A. Rose ordered innocent pleas entered and released them on their personal recognizance. State officials said the indictments were the first returned on charges in the more than 30 years the present laws have been on the books.

Urge Installation Of Play Equipment

The installation of two pieces of playground equipment purchased in 1968 for use of kindergarten pupils at the Cabot School was urged by the Newton School Committee on Monday night.

Committeewoman Mrs. Eleanor Rosenblum presented a petition signed by 396 parents of children in the school requesting installation of swings and jungle gym. She said a similar petition was also being submitted to the Board of Aldermen.

The Committee asked that the equipment be installed on the lawn adjacent to the kindergarten.

The double swing set and jungle gym were purchased and paid for in 1968 but have not yet been ready for use, it was reported.

Mrs. Rosenblum said "the innumerable delays in the School Board Seeks Solution To Problems

Building Maintenance Monthly Report Cited

The recently persistent, nagging question of school building maintenance, just who is responsible for what, and why certain things are and are not being done was before the Newton School Committee again on Monday night.

Assistant Superintendent for Business Services John E. Gilleland presented a weighty packet of information to committee members in response to a request made two weeks ago by Committeeman Alvin Mandell for a report of what happened to the $792,000 that was appropriated for total maintenance in the 1970 budget.

After a lengthy, confusing discussion of costs of various projects and whether they were to be considered technical or educational maintenance, committee members appeared to agree with a suggestion by Committeeman Richard Douglas that a monthly report on the status of maintenance projects is needed.

"I think monthly reports on educational and technical maintenance are absolutely essential," said Committeeman Herbert Regal. "There must be a way that these things can be made understandable to us," he added.

Mayor Monte G. Basbas agreed with Gilleland that the project will not be easy since the School Department has direct control over $100,000 granted by the Board of Aldermen for educational maintenance, but the city's Building Department has control over other maintenance work.

Mandell said he had asked for the information following a report two weeks ago by the elementary school principals citing a long list of deficiencies in school buildings.

"I was chagrined to hear from the elementary principals that some of the work we thought was being taken care of wasn't," said Mandell.

"It is wrong that officials who have voted something find later that it hasn't been done," said Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge.

Douglas, however, stated that the overall problem is that "there is simply not enough money to correct the deferred maintenance problems." The question is, he said "is the city of providing adequate funds to maintain 31 buildings?"

Gilleland had noted in his discussion of his report that sometimes a scheduled maintenance project must be deferred when some other urgent problem arises that requires more immediate attention.

School Board Takes Up Safety On Buses

The Newton School Committee will seek a meeting with the Education Committee of the Board of Aldermen to discuss a resolution filed recently by Aldermen William Carmen calling for additional regulations concerning school bus safety.

Assistant Superintendent for Business Services John E. Gilleland told the Committee on Monday night that he received a letter from the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway expressing concern "with the safety criteria on school buses cited in the resolution filed with the Board of Aldermen."

The matter must be clarified before June when the staffing and the number of buses required by the schools is determined by the bus company, Gilleland said.

If the resolution were approved and put into effect the present cost of $1,300 to $1,400 per day could rise a minimum of one-third because of the additional staff and bus requirements, Gilleland declared.

Carmen's resolution seeks the elimination of standees on school buses and would require a special course of instruction for bus drivers. He is also asking for seat belts and harnesses for drivers as well as outside mirrors on the right hand side of the buses.

Mayor Monte G. Basbas noted that school bus drivers now must obtain a special license from the state.

Committeeman Vincent Stanton felt the issue was beyond the realm of most committee members. "I have no competence to judge the working order of an engine or the best routes. This entire issue should be resolved by state standards. We should ask whoever has the responsibility for inspecting buses to perform his job diligently. I don't feel competent to resolve this."

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

Sarge Has Impossible Task In Seeking Painless Taxes

Governor Francis W. Sargent is probably almost as popular as ever with the people of Massachusetts.

This may be a little unusual in face of the fact that citizens are not overly enthusiastic about paying more taxes to the state which Sarge would like them very much to do.

The chances that the hard-working Governor Sargent can produce a painless tax program which will cause everybody to stand up and cheer are so remote as to be non-existent.

The Democratic liberals in the Legislature want a tax plan under which all the taxes would be loaded onto the backs of business and industry.

Mr. Sargent would not mind that kind of a tax program himself except for the devastating effects it would have, causing a few more industrial firms to move southward, a few more businesses to fold up and go under and a few thousand more people thrown onto the jobless rolls.

Testimonial Planned For Rep. Ted Mann On May 18

Friends, and leaders of civic and fraternal organizations of Newton are joining to honor Representative Theodore D. Mann at a testimonial reception Tuesday evening, May 18, at 7:30 o'clock, at the Sidney Hill Country Club.

Senator Edward W. Brooke, Honorary Chairman of the Friends of Representative Theodore D. Mann Committee, heads the list of distinguished guests attending the event.

The more than one hundred and fifty who turned out last week for a preliminary planning meeting heard Alderman Edward C. Uehlein, Committee Co-Chairman state:

"We want to express our regard and appreciation for Ted Mann for his many years of continuous and able service to our community as a member of the House of Representatives and as a former Alderman."

"His singular characteristics of high integrity, sincerity, and ability, coupled with a warmth of personality mark him as an unusually effective leader."

"We have deliberately set the event's subscription at a very nominal amount so that all of Ted Mann's friends will find it possible to attend the May 18th reception in his honor."

Also serving with Uehlein on the meeting's steering committee were Norman Buchbinder, Mrs. Lester Hahn, Louis I. Kaitz, Ben Lipson, Mrs. Joan M. Hall, Mrs. Anthony J. Medaglia, Jr., Mrs. Robert L. Tennant, and Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury.

Representative Theodore D. Mann who is to be the event's guest of honor is now in his fourth term as State Representative and a former four term Alderman of Newton.

On Beacon Hill, Rep. Mann is well regarded by colleagues of both parties for his solid contribution to the work of House Committees and legislation dealing with insurance, housing, social security, education, drug abuse, and highway safety. He went on the State Legislature with a thorough understanding of Newton and its needs gained through his longtime service as an Alderman.

A licensed insurance advisor, he has had extensive experience in the organization and management of financial and commercial enterprises.

Many observers of the political scene in Newton consider Representative Mann a strong and likely prospect in the Mayoralty contest of next November.

Tickets for the May 18th Reception honoring Mann are now being distributed throughout the city under the direction of Norman Buchbinder, Chairman of Tickets (332-7798), assisted by Mrs. Lester Hahn (244-5903) and Ben Lipson (262-6575).

THEODORE D. MANN

He is identified with many of the community's activities. The United Fund, Mental Health Association, World Affairs Council, Heart Fund, Mass. Cancer Detection Center, Kiwanis, Temple Mishkan Tefila, Parker Hill Medical Center, University Hospital, among them.

Commenting on Mrs. Gay's appointment, Superintendent Fink remarked: "I am confident that she possesses those special qualities essential for success in the principalship."

"Her performance as acting principal during the past year also confirms our impression that she has the training, experience and personality necessary for leadership of a highly competent faculty, as well as an interested and informed parent body."

Reacting to the School Committee's announcement, Mrs. Gay observed: "It is a great challenge and opportunity to be able to continue to work with the outstanding Burr team, especially in this period of rapid educational change."

"Burr is growing constantly, and I look forward to an exciting, productive association with the teachers and parents of this community."

Visiting Nurse Head Picked for Top Honor

Miss Florence Tankevich, executive director of the Newton Visiting Nurse Association, was selected recently for membership in the Boston College (Alpha Chi) Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau, the national honor society of nursing.

The Alpha Chi Chapter at the College's School of Nursing selects for membership those nursing students who have demonstrated superior scholastic achievement, professional leadership potential and personal qualifications.

The chapter also may select from the nursing community at large someone who has shown marked achievement in nursing at the local, state and national levels.

Miss Tankevich is this year's recipient of this honor. It recognizes the professional leadership she has exhibited through involvement and commitment to her position, staff, nursing students and nursing education, as well as to her family and the community.

She has been an active member of numerous nursing and health organizations and, before serving in Newton, was the nursing director of the Portland (Maine) City Health Department, a Public Health nurse with the New York City Health Department and a staff nurse at two New York hospitals.

Miss Tankevich graduated from the Salem School of Nursing in 1954, earned a B.S. in education in 1960 from Hunter College in New York and received an M.S. in Public Health Nursing three years ago from Boston University.

Her initiation ceremony for Sigma Theta Tau will be held Sunday, Apr. 25, at Boston College.

Britain Attracts

Britain will host more than 8 million overseas visitors if the present rate of increase over last year continues, says a spokesman for the British Tourist Authority.

January, 1971, saw more than 176,000 visitors come to Britain, a rise of 27,000 or 19 per cent over the record-breaking January of last year, the British Travel Association reports. The spokesman said January tourist arrivals included more than 46,000 visitors from the United States.

NC Assoc. Aims to Keep Newton Kleen

Theme for the Tuesday night meeting of the Board of Directors of the Newton Center Improvement Association was "Keep Newton Kleen" and special guests for the evening were Mayor Monte Basbas and Commissioner William S. Pratt of Newton.

Present at the meeting were Ned Scaltreto, President of the Board who moderated the meeting; George M. Levy, President of Chandler Hardware; Bernard S. Dresner, president of Langley Delicatessen; Robert Cohen; A.C. Makrides; Ed Lynch; Bob Green; Walter J. Kriskie; and Paul Gold.

It was generally agreed that the City does do an excellent job in rubbish and garbage removal; the only fall down is the event of a Holiday or severe snow storm. The pick-up is then delayed not more than a day and the entire City's removal is pushed forward. However, what does tend to create a monster in our fair city, is those individuals who do not put out their rubbish properly and who do not bring in their barrels in a reasonable length of time.

There is a fineable ordinance that states barrels must be removed from the front of buildings and sidewalks within 24 hours of rubbish removal.

Another problem in the Centre especially, is with people who will not use the many rubbish containers that are spread about Newton for paper, bags, candy bars, cigarett containers, newspapers etc. A few shopkeepers use their sidewalks and side alleys as depositories for refuse until the City collectors arrive... their barrels stay out constantly, together with paper cartons and bags... it is this problem that the Association is trying to rectify... We Must Keep Newton Kleen.

Cinema Center Films signed William Holden to star in "The Revengers" to shoot on location in Mexico.

HIGHLAND'S EXECUTIVE CHEF

Fondue Bourguignonne (like cheese fondue) originated centuries ago out of necessity in Burgundy's famous vineyards . . . When grapes grow to exact perfection they must be picked immediately . . . Pickers don't take a break to eat till the picking's done . . . Some hungry soul had a great idea: put on a pot of boiling oil, dunk - cook pieces of meat in spare moments, eat on the run, and neither grapes nor stomachs would suffer. The idea caught on, each picker bringing his own meat, cooking to his own taste when he found time, and beef fondue had its beginning . . . The fondue-loving Swiss developed the idea into its classic form and credited it Fondue Bourguignonne (berg-nyon).

Currently ACT is preparing for the FCC's inquiry on the guidelines they submitted and organizing support for their proposals which include increased and more varied children's programming and the banning of commercials.

The Markle Foundation is the largest Foundation in the United States which is devoted exclusively to fostering a better understanding of the communications media and to improving their educational service.

Grants are made for research and studies, educational programs and special projects.

ACT was founded in 1968 in Newton Centre, and until now has operated on a very limited budget financed through membership dues and several small foundation grants.

"The Markle Foundation's grant will enable us to set up an office and organization centre," said ACT President, Evelyn Sarson, "and we plan to expand our membership, analyze and tape TV programs for research, and greatly increase the printing and distribution of educational materials."

During the past three years, ACT has met with executives of network and local stations to discuss children's television.

It restored the "Captain Kangaroo" program to a full hour after it was cut by a Boston station, published a quarterly newsletter which is sent to thousands of supporters, and organized the first National Symposium on Children and Television together with Kennedy Memorial Hospital and Boston University School of Public Communications.

Appropriations of the 44-year-old Markle Foundation totalled $1,950,745 in fiscal 1970. The Foundation's program is focussed on strengthening the educational uses of the communications media, including television, radio, newspapers, magazines, books and films.

"A Spate of Space Ideas"

Webster says SPATE is an "almost overwhelming outpouring" and the word SPACE has many meanings at the Newton Free Library. It has the usual emphasis on space-age developments as well as on the overwhelming use of the library's limited space for an almost limitless variety of innovative services. As one staffer observed, special observances for National Library Week resemble what goes on here all year long!

Gambling --- 1971

Historians credit the Romans with establishing the first super-lotteries. Nero and Augustus put up slaves, houses and ships as major prizes for the lucky gamblers of their day. In the early 1500s when state revenues were failing to reach levels desired by the royal establishment, France went all-out into a numbers game called "blanques".

American Colonial lotteries based on successful schemes operating in England helped to finance struggling young institutions of higher learning called Harvard, Columbia, Dartmouth and Williams.

In 1833, rightously indignant Legislatures in Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania branded lotteries an abomination and the direct and indirect cause of manifold sins and public evils. They voted to ban them forever.

The other day something called the Off Track Betting Corporation, under the proud aegis of New York City and the permissive smiles of the Empire State, opened shop in Gotham. Some experts predicted the new business would bring in $200 million a year to be split on an 80-20 basis between city and state.

On opening day at the biggest of OTB's betting installations — massive Grand Central Station — thousands stood before windows where once only railroad tickets were sold. Their hands clutched dollars to be invested on the speed of horses running that afternoon at Roosevelt Raceway.

Confusion reigned. Computers broke down. Tickets were limited to five to a customer. It took two hours to move up five places in line to push money through the windows. The investors were patient — even holidayish in mood.

Nero and Augustus had no computers. They hitched their better horses to chariots. The Colonists had no Roosevelt Raceways. They chose their horses mainly on their capacities to pull plows. OTB claims it has added some real modern touches to the ancient art of gambling.

Besides, it points out, once some of the bugs are eliminated from its operation, it will not only put needed money in the public treasuries. It will bring about, its backers assert, the elimination of big racketeers and little bookmakers.

Maybe, those Legislatures in 1833 were a little hasty in their judgements.

Big Business

"I'm not against it: it's just getting to the point where I can't afford it."

That's the succinct, one-sentence objection a better-than-middle income taxpayer and town meeting member recently dropped into a heated debate over a middle-income suburb's annual school budget. The budget, 11 percent higher than that of 1970, was finally passed. The town meeting couldn't find any vulnerable parts on which to use its scalpel, although school items represented nearly 60 cents of every home-owner's tax dollar.

Education today is big business. It starts soaking up dollars at the kindergarten level in a process marked by ever-increasing voracity through the high altitude of doctor's degrees.

Few, if any, are getting rich on the intake. While $100,000-plus salaries are common among the heads of big corporations, college presidents heading higher institutions of learning which count their book assets in millions, are lucky to command $35,000 per year.

It costs around $4,400-a-year to attend even some of the smaller colleges today. A bachelor's degree can run well over $22,000 in some universities. It is not extraordinary that one-fourth to one-half of some families' incomes go to maintain a student living on campus.

Several decades ago, Americans convinced themselves that a college education was a prime requisite for modern living. One-building land-grant colleges became sprawling universities with millions invested in properties. So-called "cow colleges" and "aggie schools" organized to give a comparatively few farmers sons' new ideas for raising crops became top centers of learning in many sciences and professions.

Young men and women are still able to "work their way" through college. Some are still brilliant enough to win scholarships.

However, though education will always be a most desirable goal for all, a grave question is posed for the not-too-distant future.

How long will we be able to afford it?

An Exhibit By Newton Artist At Library

A selection of paintings designated "The Human Theme" by Gilda Braver of Waban will be exhibited this month at the Newton Free Library at 414 Centre St., Newton Corner. Fourteen oils and pastels, all on semiotic themes, to harmonize with the Passover season have been chosen for this display and library patrons will be able to meet the artist while viewing her works next Thursday (April 22) from 7 to 9 p.m. when the Library hosts a simple coffee hour.

Mrs. Braver, whose most recent showing has been at the Circle Theatre Gallery, Brookline, is a well-known local artist whose works have been exhibited at the Boston Arts Festival, at the Jordan Marsh and R.H. Stearns shows, at Newton Art Association shows, and others.

She is the mother of Neal, a C.W. Post College student; James, a student at Newton High School; and Amy, a student at Weeks Jr. High. Mrs. Braver is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cooper of Malden, and a graduate of the School of Practical Arts. She has also studied at Vesper George School, Mass. School of Art, and privately with teachers Nat Jacobson, Mo Com and Dorothy Cohen.

The exhibit will remain on view through late April.

Editor of The Graphic:

We have received many calls from citizens in your area concerned over the incident in Franklin Park where several deer were killed by a pack of dogs that broke in to the zoo. Most callers have been sympathetic to our problems, but are nonetheless concerned about the possibility of future attacks. We would like to clarify exactly what is being done to prevent a repetition.

Adding to the tragedy of the loss of the deer is the fact that we have been working with the Metropolitan District Commission to develop safeguards against nighttime attacks by dogs and vandals at the Franklin Park Zoo, and the problem was within weeks of being solved. The Commission approved the expenditure of $30,000 to improve the fences and install security doors on the barns. The new doors were to have been installed on the fallow deer barn within the next few weeks, and, had the dogs made their raid one month later, they would have found the deer enclosed in the protection of their barn, safe from attack.

Richard Naegeli, Director and Curator of Zoos, has issued a strong directive that will have any dog found within the zoo grounds removed, whether leashed or unleashed. In addition, any dog found loose in the zoo will be picked

Cookie Sale Success

Editor of The Graphic:

One of the most pleasant tasks we have is to thank the public, and the Graphic for supporting the traditional Cookie Sale by Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council.

You will be pleased to know that 15,000 young girls in 33 Greater Boston communities now will be able to expand their involvement with our environment, our senior citizens, our handicapped and ill neighbors. The Council, in turn, can provide enriched program and camping opportunities for the Scouts.

This is truly in keeping with the nationwide Girl Scout program ACTION 70 and our pledge to build better relationships among all persons.

All volunteer adults and Girl Scout members thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

up and turned over to the Animal Rescue League.

The problem of dogs running free is a growing one in the city of Boston. More and more dogs are joining together in packs that roam the streets at night, presenting a serious threat to people as well as to animals. The dog that is a friendly house pet can be a savage beast when he becomes a member of a pack.

Again, I would like to thank the people for their concern, and assure that the MDC and BZS are working as fast as possible to correct the problem.

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS -

Governor Sargent is faced with the prospect that his next tax program will follow his previous one down the drain. The Colos and the Buckleys marched to the Governor's aid in 1969, and in so doing they virtually assured his election last November.

The Democratic leaders are not anxious to have Mr. Sargent's red hot chestnuts pulled out of the burning embers once again.

So if Messrs. Colo and Buckley come forward with another painless tax program (painless for everyone except those who have to pay it), they may find an absence of Democratic troops falling into line behind them.

1968 Chicago Street Fights Recalled By Daley Victory

Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley must do something right besides run an awesome political machine with astute generalship.

When this writer was last in Chicago for the 1968 Democratic national convention, you would not have wagered a counterfeit nickel on Daley's chances of winning reelection again.

Television commentators, whose names are household words and syndicated newspaper columnists made him their target, took careful aim and fired with all barrels.

The private war between Daley's police and the ragtail army of hippies, yuppies and dirties, sometimes known as "the kids", just about overshadowed the convention itself. There wasn't much real effort to present a fair report of what really happened.

The cameramen were always in the right place to get an action photo by a hippy getting clubbed over the head or a yuppie being dragged off by the hair to a patrol wagon.

But they were somewhere else when one of the "kids" tried to thrust the jagged edge of a broken bottle into the face of a police officer or threw bags of human excrement down onto the police from the windows of the hotel suite occupied by Senator Eugene McCarthy.

The police over-reacted to harmless pranks like that. For some reason, they didn't appreciate getting jabbed in the face with the jagged prongs of a broken bottle.

One thing always has puzzled us. The "kids" wanted to march to the convention hall, raise a little hell there and take over the proceedings. They might even have nominated Stokely Carmichael for President.

The police stopped them from marching on the convention hall and turned them back. Some of the Democratic politicians who were protected by the police criticized them for being too physical. We wonder what they would have said if the cops allowed the "Kids" to run wild at the convention hall.

Then there was an incident of a couple of wise guy delegates from New Hampshire who tried an experiment to see what would happen if they used their credit cards instead of their delegate credentials in a computer.

What happened was that they got hustled off to jail. Mayor Daley was blasted for that although it was never clear to this observer what share of the responsibility he should have assumed.

Daley finally sent a couple of his lieutenants to the city prison to get the Granite State delegates out of the clink which they did, escorting them back to the convention hall.

We'll let you in on a little secret. Some of the big-name columnists and commentators, who criticized Daley's police force, were quite relieved on reaching their hotels after covering the convention to find that the police were there to see they got into the hotels safely.

Now Daley is back in for another four years. He was overwhelmingly reelected to a fifth consecutive term at a time when most big-city Mayors find their problems are such that they hit the jackpot if they can win two successive terms.

The Chicago Mayor already is working to get next year's national conventions.

This writer enjoys San Francisco and Los Angeles as convention cities although the business manager doesn't share our enthusiasm because of such extraneous considerations as the travel bill. But next we would be disposed to pick Chicago.

This is despite the fact that one lady columnist of some eminence wrote that Mayor Daley's idea of hospitality could be summed up in two words, "Keep Moving!"

That's not bad advice when broken bottles are being hurled at your head by "kids" intent on having a little harmless fun.

Incidentally, they vote in Chicago the same way they do every place else. There are no Daley strong-armed men with sawed-off shotguns standing at the polling places to make sure the faithful vote the way they're supposed to vote.

It seems that is not necessary. Most of the people in Chicago want Richard Daley to continue as their Mayor.

Move To Wipe Out School Boards Destined To Defeat

One proposal by the Boston Home Rule Commission, which is certain to get a quick and unceremonious heave-ho on Beacon Hill, is the recommendation which calls for the elimination of the School Committee and for vesting authority over school spending entirely in the Mayor and City Council.

This is strictly a Boston proposition and controversy. However, teachers across Massachusetts know there is agitation for such a move throughout the Commonwealth and that if it gets off the mark in the capital city it will keep going in all directions.

The teachers have some affinity with School Committees. There is a common interest and pride in the excellence of school systems, as there should be. School administrators and school boards work closely together. So do school administrators and teachers.

So the battle over wiping out the Boston School Committee will not be confined to the municipal limits of the Hub. If the school bastions fall in Boston; Newton, Needham and Podunk will not be far behind.

The full lobbying power and might of the teachers will be brought into play in this battle. And if you think the teachers do not have a lobbying power and might, you have not been listening.

Miss Jones, who has Mary in the second grade, walks Mary home and then sits down for a cup of tea with Mary's momma. Now make no mistake, we're not knocking this procedure. This is the kind of powerhouse politics politicians dream about.

After Miss Jones has reported on what Mary does right, what she does wrong and what special help she could use, the conversation somehow turns to the need for a School Committee in the interest of maintaining high educational standards for our boys and girls.

Then the old man gets home from work. Before he has his first beer poured, he's writing a note to his State Senator and Representative and telling them he's against knocking out the Boston School Committee. "If we do it to them, they'll do it to us."

So the trickle of mail becomes a flow, and in a short time the flow becomes a flood.

The man who wants to wipe out the School Committee is a communist who should see the nearest psychiatrist and is against education.

By that point it isn't clear how all this started, but good old Charles Smith is against this, and who cares for those intellectuals from Boston who think they don't need School Committees?

The truth is that the people in Needham, Newton and Podunk don't need much encouragement to start a revolt against school spending. So when they go to work on the Boston plan, they will act in self defense.

Don't Lower Standard Of Truly Great High Schools

Boston Latin School and Girls Latin School are quite possibly the two best public high schools in the entire United States.

That is no wild-eyed claim which cannot be supported by facts or figures; it is a careful appraisal which can be backed by convincing evidence.

A detailed study shows that year in and year out more students from Boston Latin School gain entrance to the colleges and universities of the nation than any other school. Girls Latin rates second.

There was one case recently when every member of a graduating class at Boston Latin School was admitted to a respected college. No other public or private school in the country could match that record or even come close to it.

A higher percentage of outstanding scholars at Boston Latin School win more scholarships and fellowships than any other secondary school in the United States. Second is Girls Latin School.

It is not possible to raise other high schools to the super-standards of Boston Latin School so, of course, there are those who would like to lower the standards at Boston Latin School to the mediocrity of those diploma mills which will graduate a student because he is in a school long enough and nothing more is likely to rub off no matter how much more he stays there. That is not the way it is at Boston Latin or Girls Latin.

Before anyone writes in to expose us, we should say at the outset that we played on a football team at Boston Latin School with Wilfred O'Leary, now the headmaster of the school. O'Leary was a senior I was a sophomore. A picture of that team hangs in his office.

O'Leary's locker was next to mine. A black boy had his locker on the other side of O'Leary's. Don't let anyone ever tell you there was the faintest hint of bigotry in Will O'Leary's makeup.

We judged that black boy on how hard he could tackle and block, how well he could catch and throw a football. And that's how he judged us.

That's why it seemed so ludicrous when someone suggested that 25 per cent of the space at the Boston Latin School be reserved for black students who could not get into the School on a competitive basis.

In those days—in the days of the late, great, fabled Pat Campbell, who was Wilfred O'Leary's idol and mine, black boys who couldn't get into Boston Latin School competitively didn't want to get in at all.

We felt privileged and fortunate in those days to study in the shadow of the great Patrick T. Campbell. I think the present students at Boston Latin School are privileged and fortunate to be able to study in the shadows of the great Will O'Leary, and may the students at B.L.S. make the most of this opportunity while they have it.

Now comes David M. Bartley of Holyoke who gives promise of being a great Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives but who should attend to his own business and let the educators who know what they are doing run the Boston Latin School.

"It is hard to believe," pontificates Speaker Bartley, who sounds like a spokesman for L.B., "that in 1971, in accordance with existing public laws, schools throughout the state, may and do—totally exclude one sex or another from public schools."

That sounds very much as if Speaker Bartley favors the admission of some girls to Boston Latin School and some boys to Girls' Latin School.

There was a day in the long ago yesteryear that this student would have welcomed the sight of a pretty girl at the next desk in a Latin School classroom.

But graduates of both schools know now that they gained a better education without the disturbing influence of members of the opposite sex.

We have two great schools in Boston Latin School and Girls Latin School. Let's leave them that way, let Speaker Bartley make his mark in the field of politics.

Lasell Students To Take Part In National Study

Approximately 100 Lasell Junior College students are expected to participate in a nationwide project studying change in community and junior colleges.

Under the direction of Miss June Babcock, Dean of Academic Affairs at the Auburndale school, a scientific sampling of students and faculty here will be requested to respond to questionnaires provided by The American College Testing Program (ACT).

Nationally, the study is sponsored by the American Association of Junior Colleges and funded by a grant from W. E. Kellogg Foundation. It will involve about 20,000 students and 10,000 faculty members at 100 two-year colleges across the nation.

The project will examine the community and junior colleges in respect to change - the direction of change, and the facilitators of change, and the impediments to change. More specifically, the research effort will focus on such areas as changes in student populations served, shifts in financial support, and trends in community relations. Student and faculty perceptions of goals, current practices and college services will be solicited for the purpose of determining just how well student needs are being served.

Survey questionnaires will be administered to a sample of students and faculty members here and at other colleges selected to participate in the national study.

Camp Manitou Is Set For Another Quarter Century

Of interest to residents of this area is the 25th anniversary of Camp Manitou of Oakland, Maine.

Directed by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marcus of Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Myles Marcus of Needham, Camp Manitou numbers thousands of boys from Newton and vicinity among its alumni and current campers.

Manitou boasts of the fact that many now enrolled are sons of Manitou's first campers.

At Manitou, each camper is given the opportunity to develop to his full potential, through a program of group and individual sports as well as creative activities.

In addition to its usual broad spectrum of activities, led by a professional staff of educators and coaches, Manitou announces the initiation of an added feature: a tennis clinic headed by a highly ranked expert instructor. Fencing, too has been added to attract the venturesome.

Manitou anticipates with great enthusiasm its next twenty-five years!

Goldovsky In Concert At Temple on May 15

The Russians didn't invent opera, but a Moscow-born American in this country since 1930 seems to have discovered the elixir of life for it. Boris Goldovsky has revitalized the art of presenting opera as a meaningful experience as well as good entertainment, and is unquestionably its most articulate spokesman on the current scene. He will appear in a twin concert here on May 15th.

Born in Moscow, the son of violinist Lea Luboshutz and the nephew of pianist Pierre Luboshutz, Mr. Goldovsky made his solo debut at the age of 13 with the Barlin Philharmonic.

Next he studied composition and conducting at the Liszt Academy of Music in Budapest with such masters as Weiner and Dohnanyi; and in France, supplemented his musical education with general courses at the Sorbonne.

Finally in 1930, he came to this country and enrolled as a conducting student of Fritz Reiner at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where his mother was already a member of the faculty.

From 1933-1934, he served as Reiner's assistant and later held the post of assistant to Artur Rodzinski. After that he became head of the Opera Department of the Cleveland Institute of Music, and later moved to Boston to teach at the New England Conservatory and the Longy School of Music.

Mr. Goldovsky is identified as opera's most articulate champion. He feels that in the ideal opera performance, an engrossing drama or comedy can be made even more vivid by the addition of well-chosen music, a great score appreciably enhanced by an irresistible libretto.

In his rambling home in Brookline, Goldovsky has assembled what he refers to as a "factory of operatic background" . . . one of the largest and most comprehensive operatic libraries in the world.

Its more than 10,000 volumes include not only rare scores and obsolete musicological treatises, but many original editions of plays, novels, and poems which have provided the source material for opera libretti. Winner of the 1954 Peabody Award for Outstanding Contribution to Radio Music as the genial Master of Ceremonies of the Metropolitan Opera News of the Air, he is renowned too as the author of "Accents on Opera", as a recital lecturer for his celebrated "Piano Portraits", and as a well-loved

Long acclaimed as one of the foremost piano virtuosos and interpretive artists of the day, Mr. Goldovsky will at long last concertize locally.

On May 15, 8:30 p.m., at Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, Newton Center, he will present a twin piano concert with his protegee, Mrs. Bertica Shulman Cramer.

The concert is being presented as a portion of the Dedication Week-End, celebrating the completion of the new Temple Beth Avodah. Ticket reservations may be made by calling the Temple, 527-5783.

Alcohol Vs. Alcoholism

Probably the only hospital in the Southwest with a superstocked liquor cabinet is in operation in North Richland Hills, a suburb of Fort Worth.

Schick Hospital uses the "condition reflex aversion" technique. It develops within the patient a dislike for the taste, smell and sight of alcohol while bringing anxiety problems and sleep problems to normal through therapy.

School Editors Want End to Censorship of School Press

The first statewide conference of high school newspaper editors was held April 7 at Boston College, and some five hundred student editors from eighty high schools met for the day to discuss the rights and responsibilities of the student press.

David Freeman and Janice Kaplan both of Newton South High were co-chairmen of the conference. As co-chairmen of the Massachusetts Assn. of High School Editors they planned the event to provide students, faculty and administrators with comprehensive insights into the role of the student press. They feel the conference was successful in meeting these goals.

Robert Healy, executive editor and political editor of the Boston Globe told the student editors and their advisors: "What the reporters are telling me is that they want a bigger piece of the action." He pointed to school committees and administrations as prime examples of investigative reporting open to the student.

Erwin Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor, stated that the students should "give more attention to what is significant news, and less attention to what is bizarre."

WBZ-Radio anchorman Gary La Pierre moderated the large gathering. He led a panel discussion which included Michael Curtis, associate editor of the Atlantic; Arthur Kenney, principal of North Reading High; Philip Mason, attorney; Joseph Joyce, principal of Canton High; and David Freeman.

They sought to determine what legal and moral rights are involved in administrative censorship.

New Director of Nurses At Middlesex Hospital

Mrs. Mary Lou Scaramelli will assume duties as director of nursing services at Middlesex County Hospital, Waltham, today (April 1).

She will work closely with Mrs. Dorothy George, associate director of nursing services and Miss Contance Lindholm, assistant director of nursing services, both of whom have been on the hospital staff for a number of years.

Mrs. Scaramelli was formerly a nursing coordinator for the Boston Department of Health and Hospitals. She worked on the department's Maternal and Infant Care Project and the Children and Youth Project.

Prior to coming to Boston, she taught at the Bellevue Hospital School of Nursing in New York City.

She holds a bachelor and a masters of education from Columbia University Teachers College. Before that she had received her nurses training at Brandeis University. The couple lived in Waltham prior to going to England. They have two children, Pamela, 5, and Rebecca, 10 months.

22-Bed Unit Opens At Middlesex Hospital

A second unit for the care of patients with chronic or long term illnesses will open Monday, March 29, at Middlesex County Hospital.

The opening of the 22-bed unit has been delayed since January due to a severe nursing shortage. The hospital is still in need of nursing staff on the evening and night shifts, including hospital supervisors for both shifts.

The additional unit will bring the open bed capacity at the hospital to 117 out of a potential 200-beds. Additional units will be opened if the requests for the necessary nursing positions in the 1971 budget are approved by the state legislature.

Miss Julia Waldron, clinical assistant to the hospital's director, will serve as acting head nurse on the new unit.

The unit will be filled gradually so that the staff has an opportunity to learn to work together efficiently and effectively. The hospital already has a waiting list from which the first admissions will be drawn.

The new unit will place an emphasis on using restorative services not only for patients with total rehabilitation potential, but also for patients with terminal illness, Miss Waldron said.

She explained her philosophy of nursing care by saying that "prime consideration must be given to treating the patient as an individual and giving attention to his specific physical, emotional and social needs."

A Patient Care Team approach will be used on the new unit as it is throughout the rest of the hospital. A Patient Care Team consists of physicians, nurses, physical and occupational therapists and social workers working closely together to plan and carry out a total medical rehabilitation program for each patient. Stress will be put on continuity of care from one shift to another through use of a new record system.

Miss Waldron plans to center an in-service teaching program for nursing staff around individual cases on the unit.

She added that she was concerned that chronically ill patients, because they must remain in the hospital for long periods of time, can become easily isolated from family and friends. This she feels is a detriment to all. She said every effort will be made to encourage and fortify the involvement of family and friends.

"We also hope to involve volunteers in a very productive way to enrich the patients' lives while they are hospitalized and to assist in carrying out the philosophy of the unit," she said.

"We hope to create a community type of setting here," Miss Waldron added.

Collegians From Newton Schools Aiding The Poor

Numerous students from Newton College and Boston College are among the hundred collegians spending their Easter vacation in Nevada, a small city in western Missouri, doing what they can to assist those in need there.

Their main focus of activities are on a day care center, where they are helping with youngsters; working with city park crews in a clean-up effort; 17 locations which welfare officials have cited as places where the elderly or handicapped are in need of aid; and working at a youth center located in a town 12 miles from Nevada.

A 1970 graduate of Newton College, Jeanne Stansfield, is one of the four students directing the program, which is in its fourth year.

The volunteers make their headquarters at St. Francis Academy in Nevada, which is the sponsor of the project. The girls live at a school run by the sisters of St. Francis and the boys stay at a farm near Nevada. The student volunteers eat their meals at the school cafeteria.

'Redbeard' To Be Presented In Cambridge

The musical comedy Redbeard, written in 1957 by Mimi Lewis, Elinore Greene and Charlotte Kaufman, all residents of Newton, is being performed at the Longfellow Community School, 359 Broadway in Cambridge at 7:15 p.m. tonight.

Directing this unusual production for the Longfellow Community School Drama Club is Cliff Greene, a student years ago at the Memorial Longfellow Community School Elementary School where he first saw this play performed by parents whose children attended the school.

The pre-teen Drama Club are the performers, and production staff who have made the costumes, scenery and props including a quaint Dutch House and the enchanted forest where Redbeard lives. The story is about an enchanted dwarf who carries his powers in his long red beard and who casts a spell on a Prince. Highlighting the show are many original musical scores.

Ticket information is available by calling the office 547-3185.

Need of Firms On Route 128 To Be Studied

Middlesex Community College will soon be contacting local business leaders for their ideas on training needs and educational possibilities. John H. Kendrick, director of continuing education, has announced an eight-week study aimed at finding ways the college can provide educational resources to those industries located along Route 128.

The survey will be conducted by Mrs. Kay Peebles and Mr. David Ostrom, community services consultants at the college.

During its first year of operation, the college has reached an enrollment of 575 day students and 400 evening students. Numerous programs in business, secretarial and human relations are already being conducted in the community through the division of continuing education.

Mofenson Lauds MBTA Plan, Blasts Databanks

Newton Rep. David J. Mofenson this week praised the Department of Public Works and the MBT for their plan to begin a special bus line on the Southeast Expressway in May.

The inside lane on the expressway will be converted into an exclusive bus lane. Five private lines and the MBTA will contribute some 50 busses which will run about every minute from the junction of Routes 128 and 3 into Mass. Avenue in Boston.

"This is an exciting project, which, with further refinements, could produce a revolution in America's commuting habits by attracting motorists to low-cost, high-speed, efficient public transportation. In reducing pollution and cutting travelling time, it will improve the quality of our lives," Mofenson declared.

Also this week Rep. Mofenson introduced a bill that would halt government sale of lists for commercial and solicitation purposes.

"As a possible weapon of repression and intimidation, the potential for misuse and abuse is great. The government has no business being in the business of selling information about its citizens," Mofenson contended.

According to the Newton Representative information about citizens is being sold by both the State and federal government. He pointed out that this practice has helped to produce huge quantities of junkmail. It also allows detailed information supplied by the government to be stored in computer databanks so that private citizens may be scrutinized and examined without their knowing it, Mofenson stressed.

Dual Program At Art Assoc. Meeting Today

A dual program of the arts is planned for the April 15th meeting of the Newton Art Association to be held at the Mason Rice School, Newton Center, 7:30 P.M. The well known artist, George Dergalis, will be the featured demonstrator of the evening followed by a play performed by the Newton Country Players.

Mr. Dergalis, born in Greece, escaped from a P.O.W. camp in Germany during W.W.II and eventually joined the U.S. Air Force. His tempestuous background, no doubt, has influenced his present art interpretations involving mans preoccupation with time and space as seen in the objects forming the rhythmic patterns in his paintings.

Among his many honors and awards has been a traveling scholarship to Europe, India and Ceylon and a scholarship to the Accademia Belle Arts in Rome. Mr. Dergalis has taught at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston and the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln.

The Newton Country Players will then present a one act play "The Sisters" written by one of their members. Although each program is separate, the correlation of the arts activities should prove most stimulating.

President Marguerite Daly extends an invitation to the public, as well as the members, to enjoy this unique program.

Intercommunity Homemaker Service Completes Training Course

Carrying out its policy of providing ongoing training in order to maintain quality service, Intercommunity Homemaker Service has just completed a series of training sessions on "Body Mechanics" sessions were attended by the agency's more than 45 Homemakers.

These meetings were held at the Homemaker Service office, 40 Webster Place, Brookline and at the chapter house of the Newton Red Cross in Newtonville. The annual meeting will be held April 26th.

The one session course in "Kosher Practices" which was given three times to classes of 15 and 20 Homemakers was arranged through the cooperation of Rabbi Samuel I. Korff, Rabbinic Administrator of the Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts.

The classes in "Body Mechanics" were led by Miss Diane Hutchings, Chief Therapist, and by Miss Linda Arons, staff therapist, both of the Newton - Wellesley Hospital Physical Therapy Department.

Intercommunity Homemaker Service provides assistance to families and individuals in the communities of Brookline, Needham, Newton, Waltham and Wellesley.

The program is an organized effort to provide trained, competent, and sensitive help with home maintenance and certain individuals or families whose daily lives are disrupted due to illness, disability, or other crisis.

The goal is to maintain families and individuals within their own homes unless conditions exist which can only be treated outside institutions.

Underlying this goal is the belief that people regain their health more quickly and with less difficulty when they can remain in their own homes where they are supported by familiar surroundings, familiar routines, and the relationships of individuals important to them.

"Body Mechanics" involves instruction for the Homemakers on how to properly use their own bodies in performing various tasks in the home. By developing proper techniques for bending, learn to avoid undue fatigue and possible injury.

They also learn how to aid individuals who need various degrees of assistance which might range from turning over in bed to walking with a cane.

Such instruction is part of the regular training program that every Homemaker is expected to complete. The complete training program has been recommended by the Mass. Dept. of Public Health and endorsed by the Board of Directors of Intercommunity.

The recent instruction in this area involved a two session course for new employees as well as a one session review for Homemakers who had completed the training program in the past.

"Kosher Practices" covered the reasons why individuals of the Jewish faith follow the Kosher dietary laws as well as the various procedures that are necessary in order to adhere to these laws.

Miss Katherine E. Curran, Executive Director of the agency, explained that this was the first time that such sessions had been included in the training program. "The sessions were quite enthusiastically received," Miss Curran commented "and it was our feeling that such instruction was important to provide as we frequently receive requests from families who keep a Kosher home."

This is particularly true for situations involving elderly Jewish residents in the communities of Brookline and Newton.

Mrs. Jean Holladay of Newton Highlands and Mr. Ralph Wheeler of Newton Centre are both Homemakers with Intercommunity. Mrs. Holladay is a new employee and Mr. Wheeler has been with the agency since 1965 having joined the organization less than two years after its beginnings in March 1963. Mr. Wheeler is the only male Homemaker with Intercommunity and is particularly valuable when the agency is asked to provide personal care to a male member of the family.

Both Mr. Wheeler and Mrs. Holladay were pleased with the recent training sessions and felt that they are better able to give assistance because of the opportunity to gain new knowledge and skills as well as the opportunity to refresh skills they have learned and used in the past.

Intercommunity Homemaker Service points to its record over the eight years that it has been in operation. Last year the agency provided just short of 46,000 hours of direct service to residents of the five communities it serves, nearly 15,000 of these went to Newton families.

Intercommunity is a non-profit social agency and a participant in the Mass. Bay United Fund from which they receive very minimal financial support. As a nonprofit agency it provides service to all regardless of ability to pay.

Fees are charged for service but when a family in need cannot meet the fee Intercommunity attempts to enable the family to find financial help from various sources. All this adds up to the agency walking a financial tight rope in its attempts to maintain the availability of this vital program.

Monday evening, April 26th is the agency's annual meeting at which time it will elect new members of its Board of Directors. The various community residents elected to the Board will be tackling the hard tasks necessary to make the agency's program continue to function and hopefully to expand and grow.

This would be a very appropriate time for residents of this community to let this agency know of their support. A letter or phone call to the agency expressing your willingness to work on a local committee, become a Homemaker yourself, or just say thanks by means of a financial contribution could mean a great deal in enabling the growth of Intercommunity.

South High Lacrosse Looks Good This Year

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Newton South High lacrosse coach Tom Steeves feels that his team is greatly improved this spring and could have its best season ever.

Last year the South squad was a young team and were not expected to do well. When the team won its first game of the season convincingly it was thought that it had come of age quickly. It had not. And that was the only game the Lions won en route to a 1-8 season.

Co-captains Eric Schwam and Ira Rosenberg were the only seniors who graduated in 1970. And now the youngsters have turned to oldsters and have hopefully gained some wisdom.

There are 12 seniors on the squad, led by co-captains Danny McDonald and Bob Staulo. Danny Barkin, Andy Cutler, Jimmy Cutler, Bob Kraft, hockey goaltender Paul Modern, Mike Myers, Stu Nectow, Paul Platten, Jim Prick, and Mark Priest all have experience.

In addition, the juniors, led by stand-out Gary Ross saw plenty of action last spring. Phil and Jim Sellinger, John Bell, Dave Dolitka, Andy Katz, Dave Freedman, Rick Gordon, Mark Dixey, Roy Linn, Rick Scanlon, Jerry Moore, Rick Rubin, Paul Murphy, and Steve Malchman, will make bids for starting berths.

The sophomore crop looks good and may be outstanding, though lack of experience could be an adverse factor. John Staulo, brother of co-captain Bob, Andy Moynihan, Paul Pattison, Mike McDonald, Mark Sturnik, and Mark Tilden, also have chances of finding a starting spot.

Lacrosse is a game that is rarely played in junior high school, so for that reason the upperclassmen have an edge on the sophomores. But with more experience they should get sharper.

The Lions open against Concord - Carlisle tomorrow April 16, in Newton.

Newton Man Scores Ace At Sandy Burr

Louis Salvin of 52 Aberdeen street in Newton Highlands scored the first hole-in-one of the golf season when he hit the pellet into the cup from the tee on the tenth hole at Sandy Burr golf course in Wayland on Sunday, April 4.

His playing partners were Maxwell Shuman and Jack Block of Waltham and Dr. M. Rodman of Newton.

Salvin used a three wood on the tenth hole, which was 198 yards. He is a right-handed golfer and has a handicap of 17.

Dysautonomia Assoc. Party On April 27th

The Greater Boston Chapter, Dysautonomia Association, Inc., will hold its annual Chinese supper-card party on Tuesday, April 27 at China Sails, Chestnut Hill.

In making the announcement Mrs. Coleman Bess of Newton, card party chairman, said that Mrs. Goldie Schwarz, executive director of the National Dysautonomia Assoc. in New York would attend the meeting along with Jeffrey A. Ossoff of Norwood, a past vice president and life-time director of the National Association.

Mrs. Schwarz and Mr. Ossoff will accept the Greater Boston Chapter's annual contribution to the National Association's research fund from Mrs. Leonard Ansin of Newton, the Chapter's vice president for fund-raising.

Among the highlights of the evening will be the awarding of life membership plaques, a report by Chapter President Mrs. Jeffrey A. Ossoff of Norwood on the opening of the Dysautonomia Association's new research laboratory at Flower Fifth Avenue Hospital in New York and the drawing for the door prizes.

The Chinese-supper card party is one of several fund-raising events held each year by the Greater Boston Chapter in its effort to raise funds to sponsor research to find a control and cure for familial dysautonomia, a hereditary disease which afflicts Jewish children.

The Greater Boston Chapter has more than 300 members from the Greater Boston and North Shore Areas.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. Bess at 969-2414.

Memories Of A Newton Marathoner . . .

He Didn't Win But He Finished

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

I first entertained thoughts of running the traditional Patriots' Day Boston Marathon during my junior year in high school, the first time I ever competed in organized track.

A group of us on the track team casually discussed it. Factiously, we mentioned putting together a relay team of 25 track people, with the same person running the first and last mile of the 26-mile, 385-yard grind. Needless to say, that brain-child was never furthered.

As a senior, I had progressed to the point where I sent away for an application blank. Realistically, I realized that I had not trained sufficiently to run a 26-mile road race and rather than forfeit the $200 entry fee I decided to skip the race for another year.

I had visions that year of being the youngest legal entrant ever in the then 73-year history of the event, since the minimum age for entry is 18 and I was not to be 18 until the first of April (Ok, go ahead and laugh, I'm used to it) less than three weeks before the race.

I had no idea whether that was true or not and I still don't, but it lent a certain romantic air to the whole plan. Anyway, I prudently elected to pass up this golden opportunity for world fame and track immortality.

I began training for last year's marathon, semi-seriously, late in the fall and continued in that vein until February, when I increased my work-outs. I ran approximately fifty miles a week for a month, then ran very little for the month directly preceding the race.

As race day approached I became less and less sure of my ability to finish under four hours, my only real goal, and modified it to finishing at all. Five days before the race I planned to run 15 miles. After three miles I was forced to stop with painful shin splints. My only reaction was, "What am I going to do now?" I gloomily returned to my room to read Hal Higdon's "The Marathon and Me" in Sports Illustrated.

It was written with a kinship to all runners and it was not until I was two-thirds through it did I get depressed. Here I thought some fellow Joe Shmo was writing this brilliant piece. Good old Hal had once fished 5th in the BM. What does he know about the back of the pack? I asked myself, envious of one who could both write and run so well.

The day before the Boston papers always print the entire list of competitors. I bought my Sunday paper and flipped immediately to the sport section.

There it was, covering all of page six — "Cast of Characters In Marathon Tomorrow." I skimmed down the list. Yep, Lewis H., number 131.

Being from the Boston area (Newton) I had acquired the habit of reading the whole list every year and checking for the names of local runners. I noted the presence of Peter Stip and Peter Hoss, former Boston University track stars, and that the AAU had mistakenly given Allieu Massaquoi (my BU freshman track teammate from Africa) two numbers, 22 and 436.

I assumed that he would wear 22, the more prestigious one. Idly, I thought, if it's 85 degrees tomorrow, he could be great. Then I reminded myself that if it were 85 tomorrow I would probably die.

I went to bed early the night before the race and could not fall asleep, lying awake until past midnight. I awoke at four a.m. and could not fall asleep again. I lay there, feeling the blood pump in my veins, and trying to keep my mind blank until eight, when the alarm went off.

It was cold outside — about forty — and on the half-hour drive to the starting line in Hopkinton, it started to drizzle. A perfect spring day!

The high school gymnasium was mobbed. 1173 competitors had entered and they all seemed to be there bright and early. Athletic equipment was strewn everywhere and runners were dressing on the pulled-out bleachers. There were lines to get numbers and lines for medicals.

I made it to the doctor, pulled up my shirt, felt the

Wins Indoor Archery Title

Frank Chang, a junior at the Newton High School, has won 1971 - State indoor Archery Championship at the annual Tournament of Massachusetts Field Archery Association held in Quincy, Mass. on April 9.

He is in young adult group and is also 1970 outdoor champion. A preliminary contest held a week earlier had limited the finalists to about 70.

gold metal of the stethoscope against my chest and was certified alive. For some unfathomable reason a photographer snapped a picture of my far from gorgeous chest.

I had nearly an hour and a half to kill and did so by lying on the gym floor gazing at the ceiling, tapping my shin spurs, talking to some fellow runners and talking to my coach and some BU teammates who had come to watch.

When I reached the starting line at quarter to twelve it was already jammed. I was fortunate to be able to wedge myself into a spot fifteen yards from the front. The drizzle had continued, but at five to noon it started to pour. My watch read twelve and I had a mental picture (since I couldn't even see the starting line through the bodies) of Jack Semple (meet director) standing across the line yelling, "Men in front, you may take 26,385 giant steps."

Men in the middle, you may take 250 baby steps and many thousand giant steps. Men in back, just do the best you can." What I thought we all could have used at that point was a whole mess of umbrella steps.

The gun banged and I was off, baby - stepping my way along in the crowd for 300 yards before I could stretch my stride.

A man in a wheel chair was propelling himself along by arm power, shouting "Praise The Lord" and encouraging everyone. I ran to him, smiled and said, "Praise The Lord" and then ran on.

The next day I discovered that the man, Gene Roberts, in an amazing display of strength and faith had covered the entire course in his chair in six hours.

I felt great. I was striding comfortably and my breath was coming easily. Cheerfully, I tossed about a slogan — "See you at the Pru, at two" (The Prudential Tower - Finish line) and also, "Keep the Mulligan stew warm."

I was carrying my glasses all the way and after five miles my shoulder developed a stiffness. Not breaking stride I worked at it and the cramp went away.

"4815," the man with the stop-watch shouted at me as I passed the Framingham check-point after 6 1/2 miles. Quickly, I did some mental arithmetic. That was just over seven minutes a mile. I was shocked. I had not planned to run much faster than nine minutes at any time.

I still felt very strong. The people lined up along the way were phenomenal. They all yelled encouragement, either yelling, "Go Boston" because of my uniform shirt, calling my name (taken from the newspaper) or simply yelling my number. I answered each good wish with a broad smile or a wave of my hand.

By eight miles my fingers were almost numb and I had to constantly work them to keep them flexible. The rain still fell and after putting my glasses on again for a hundred yards resigned myself to carrying them at least till Newton where I hoped my father would take them.

Everywhere the people stood in the drenching rain yelling and offering gifts of fruit and juices. I was working harder by Natick, 10 1/2 miles out, and appreciated all good wishes to help keep my mind occupied. My pace had slowed, but I still felt good and looked forward to completing the run at a nine-minute mile clip.

In Wellesley Square (13 1/2 miles) I got my first leg cramp. A kneaded it at a jog pace and resumed running. Another came and I repeated my procedure. Within 200 yards my legs were completely tight. I continued, alternately running fifty yards at a plod pace and then suddenly pulling up short with searing, shooting pains up and down both legs.

I prayed to God to give me the strength to finish.

Walking for the first time I remembered a quote from Amby Burfoot, the 1968 winner of the race. "You always suffer later in a marathon for a mistake made at the beginning. I imagined that I had gone out too fast. More probably it was my lack of training and inexperience at the distance.

I accepted a drink for the first time only because it was warm and the cold was getting to me. It was hot chocolate. I took only a few sips after sipping half of it over my hands and dropped the cup to the pavement.

I made constant efforts to maintain my stride, but failed after short distances. Quite unexpectedly my father appeared along the road after another half-mile. I handed him my glasses, casually informed him that my legs were shot to pieces and kept going.

The people continued to be overtly friendly. I'm quite sure I shocked many innocent bystanders when I suddenly straightened up, clutched my thigh and let out a yelp.

Meanwhile, the whole world seemed to be running past me. I could hear the shouts of runners that I had led for half the race streamed past. Some offered solicitous advice and commiseration.

I knew that the leg cramps were not going to go away until I stopped running altogether and since I had no intention of stopping I resigned myself to moving along as quickly as possible, any way possible.

Since I took my first sip of hot chocolate I was devouring everything in sight, slurping down cup after cup of Gatorade and sucking every orange dry that I could hold.

By 17 1/2 miles any cup that I grasped had to be held between my two palms because I had no feeling left in my fingers. The cold was really starting to bother me and I thought my elbows might be frozen at the joints. Later I learned that the weather was the worst the race had seen since 1939. I sure had picked a good year.

Someone shouted that Ron Hill had won. I looked at my watch. 2:11. Wow! I noticed that my clothes claim check which had been pinned on my number had disappeared and I had visions of arriving at the finish line freezing to death and not being able to get dry clothes.

A concerned spectator offered to give me a rub-down, which I refused, when I passed him seven miles from the finish, chugging up on eof the infamous Newton hills. Heartbreak Hill was all that it was reported to be, but it was totally immaterial.

I kept glancing at my wrist-watch and noting the elapsed time and the dark brown stain on the side of my hand where the rain had taken its toll on the band. My mind could not believe the time on the watch. It must be later than that, I thought. I asked a spectator the time and found that hers matched my own. Unbelievably, I still had a solid chance to finish under four hours. If only I could keep moving.

My mother drove up to me and yelled for me to stop already and get in the car. I answered her with, "Good-bye, mom."

All along Commonwealth Avenue I continued my stop-start routine. And the people still cheered me, most now by first name and some even editorializing and calling, "C'mon, Lewie!"

Beacon Street - Cleveland Circle. Three and a half miles to go. I tried to move. If I could only run I could still finish by four. I still had that chance. But my legs were not on my side. They got consistently worse. The cramps were a permanent fixture now in three or four different spots on each leg.

My father appeared with an orange the size of a grapefruit, which I greedily devoured. I was barely moving, but I was determined that I would not stop.

Two friends from home drove along beside me and talked to me. I could only walk. Frustrated out of my mind I helplessly watched the minutes tick away.

A group of policemen encouraged men and one told me that Hill had broken the record.

A policeman thoughtfully stopped traffic at a busy intersection and I strained across. He smiled and said, "Only a mile to go."

A few hundred yards short of Kenmore Square my left leg went unreasonably bad and I had to grasp a fence for support. A moment passed and I began to hobble the last half-mile. Since I had stopped running I had become increasingly colder. My father appeared once more and tossed a towel over my shoulders. Two friends still waited outside my dorm and were shocked at my appearance. One thought I looked like Ratto Rizzo just before he died. They accompanied me on foot the last few blocks, until I spontaneously threw off the towel and ran the final 30 yards. I looked at my watch. 4:37. An hour and ten minutes from Cleveland Circle.

26 miles, 385 yards, 4 hours, 37 minutes.

My shin splints had not bothered me at all, I thought. My arms, though, were completely stiff. I moved with a decided limp and both legs throbbed. I was shivering uncontrollably and I was immeasurably weary. I looked like a loser. But I was not. I had finished the Boston Marathon on my first try. No one could take that away from me. And I would be back.

The Boston Marathon will be run Monday, April 19, starting from Hopkinton at 12 noon. The race passes through Newton for many miles, mainly on Commonwealth Avenue. The best time to watch will be from 1:15 or when the leaders will start passing.

Recreation Dept. Readies Tennis Courts For Season

Newton's 58 public tennis courts are in the process of being readied for the 1971 season. Recreation Commissioner, John Penney notes that most of the city's 43 hard surface courts have been vacuumed and the nets installed and have been in use prior to April 1st.

The Recreation Department's maintenance crews are working now on the city's 15 clay courts.

Penney hopes to have some clay courts ready for play by the April 19th holiday weekend. Weather conditions control how soon these courts can be used.

Penney plans to have the reservation system with attendant on duty by Monday, April 19th. Attendants are on duty at the clay courts at Brewer Playground, Tyler Terrace, Newton Centre from 5 p.m. to dusk, Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and at the clay courts at Burr Park, Park Street, Newton, Weekday evenings; mornings and afternoons on weekends.

The lighted tennis courts at Newton South High School,

Brandies Road, Newton Centre will have an attendant on duty from 7 to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday with a reservation system in effect during these hours. A tennis permit is necessary to play on the above listed courts.

Newton residents may purchase season permits from the attendants on duty at these courts or from the Recreation Department office at 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale. The fee for adult permits has been raised from $3.00 to $5.00 this season by vote of the Recreation Commission. Student fee remains at $1.00. Use of the other courts are free to the public.

The cooperation of the public is requested in keeping off clay courts, when they are wet and in not overtightening the tennis nets. This will help save maintenance costs for repairs and service, Penney noted.

New Attraction
Old Guadalajara has a new attraction for visitors — El Tapatio, a hotel-resort patterned after a pueblo, or little Mexican village.
Situating on a hill only eight minutes from the heart of the city, El Tapatio has more than 200 rooms in hacienda-type casitas — each with private terrace, refrigerator-bar and ample space for guests with one or two children (at no extra charge).
It also offers restaurants, pools, playgrounds and other facilities.
Postage stamps were adopted in the United States in March, 1847.

Home Drawbacks
Some of the interior environment pollutants identified by home furnishings experts include poor ventilation, lack of natural light, lack of noise level control, ineffective traffic patterns, crowded claustrophobic conditions, disregard for color and its effects on individuals, and awkward and uncomfortable furnishings.

PAYMENT ON PLEDGE — A check for $2000 is presented by West End House Coordinating Committee Chairman Dr. Charles Schlasberg of Mt. Letter To Rules Committee Urges Amendment Wait

A letter received this week by Elliot K. Cohen, chairman of the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee, may have an important bearing on the committee's recommendation to the Board of Aldermen Monday night, concerning proposed city charter revisions.
The letter's author, Richard G. Mintz, wrote the aldermen that the new charter which Mintz (as a member of the nine-man Charter Commission) helped to draft last year, should appear on the 1971 ballot as it was drawn up by the commission and should not be considered with other current charter amendments proposed earlier in the year.
A particular group of those amendments deals with the method by which School Committee members are elected. A question of this type, Mintz indicated, could have been decided on in the municipal elections of 1967 or 1969 and can definitely be voted on in 1973.
To file this and other referendum questions for this year's ballot would, according to Mintz, "compound confusion and... prevent a clear-cut indication of what Newton's citizens wish to do" on the subject of a new city charter.
The proposed amendments to the current charter can appear on the ballot only if they get the approval of two-thirds of the Board of Aldermen, and it is Cohen's committee which is delegated to submit a recommendation on the amendments to the full board.

The Dawning of a New, Exciting Fabric Store

The yawning
The morning sun that warms Harvard Square now rises over a new store of fabric, called FABRICATIONS. This newest FABRICATIONS at 44 Brattle Street joins the other two stores, one near Porter Square in Cambridge, one at Coolidge Corner, Brookline.

The yawning
Most fabric stores we know have fabric, but not a lot of pizzazz (and sometimes not a lot of fabric). A visit to one of these places produces a good hearty yawn, and little else.

fabrications
Not your run-of-the-mill fabric store.
44 Brattle Street Harvard Square
OTHER FABRICATIONS AT:
1337 BEACON ST., BROOKLINE
1724 MASS. AVE., CAMBRIDGE

Not just another sew sew store
Awaken to FABRICATIONS of Harvard Square — a veritable ray of sunlight in a cloudy sky. Bold color vibrates from shelves full of bolts waiting to be shaped into clothes for the seventies. Fabric by leading designers like Metsovaara of Finland wait to be transformed into your own environmental decorations. The girls who work in all our stores stand poised to answer the most technical questions about the intricacies of cloth. Harvard Square FABRICATIONS will have a professional designer, Anne Lenox, to help you with particularly knotty problems of design and construction.
As you sew, so shall you reap
FABRICATIONS is above all a haven for sewing aficionados, with a truly unbelievable variety of printed fabric from Finland, Holland, Japan, Hawaii, and the U.S.A., alongside the best selection of knitted polyesters and wools in the Boston area. Indeed, the complaint continually heard in our stores is that there is too much to choose from. We promise that this terrible condition shall persist in the new FABRICATIONS of Harvard Square.
Sew what?
Put most succinctly, FABRICATIONS is simply the most exciting fabric store around, with a knowledgeable sales staff and an exhausting selection of fabric.
As far as we know, no one has ever left our stores muttering "Sew what?" And that's probably the best thing you can say for a fabric store.

Vivian Berman Opens Art Show At Gallery Here

A one-woman show of collograph intaglio prints by Lexington artist Vivian Berman, opens at the Berman-Medallie Gallery on April 18.

After studies at the Art Students League, Mrs. Berman graduated from Cooper Union School of Art in New York, and has continued her studies at Brandeis University and the DeCordova Museum. She has done calligraphy and book jacket designing for publishers and works exclusively as a printmaker in her studio in Lexington.

Mrs. Berman has exhibited one-woman, group and numerous national open print shows. She has been the recipient of many awards, the most recent from the 22nd Annual Boston Printmakers in 1970. Her prints are in the permanent collections of the U. S. Information Agency - 10 foreign Embassies, DeCordova Museum, Wiggins Collection of the Boston Public Library and many private collections.

Mrs. Berman describes the collograph-intaglio method of printing, a "most satisfying medium because it combines the precision and boldness of graphic design with the painterly qualities of oils and acrylics. The collograph plate is made with my own hands — it is a direct and personal statement and one in which a richness and variety of textures and tones can be achieved."

The artist expresses her love of nature and solitude by using images of sea, sky and land forms—conveyed with an abstract sense of light and space.

Collograph-Intaglios by Vivian Berman, will be on exhibition at the Berman-Medallie Gallery, 10 Austin Street, Newtonville Square, through May 14.

Dr. Bartlett Speaks Apr. 29 At Men's Club

Dr. Robert M. Bartlett, Massachusetts "Mr. Pilgrim," will be the featured speaker at the Men's Club dinner program to be held Thursday, April 29, at the Union Church in Waban.

Dr. and Mrs. Bartlett will present, "400 Years in the Pilgrim Story."

This is a colored slide lecture that carries the listener from the 16th century Cambridge University to the Pilgrim Country in East England, to Holland, to the New World and to Plymouth of today. It is presented by Dr. and Mrs. Bartlett in their Pilgrim costumes.

It is interesting to note that the Bartletts have restored a Pilgrim house in Plymouth that was built in 1660 by Pilgrim Robert Bartlett. They are the tenth generation of Bartletts to live in it.

Beaver PTA Auction Sale

League School Friends Plan May 26 Event

Major leaguers met in Newton recently, but baseball was not the order of the day. Equal enthusiasm was evoked, however, when President Mrs. Morton Olin tossed out the first ball to the Friends of the League School to initiate plans for their major fund-raising event of the season.

Mrs. Howard Freedman, of Waban, was appointed to head committee to prepare for a glamorous luncheon to be held on Wednesday, May 26, at Anthony's Pier Four.

The League School is a school for seriously emotionally disturbed children and was founded because of the distressing lack of facilities and rehabilitation programs open to these children in this area. Emotional disturbance, not to be confused with mental retardation which is chronic in all cases, can be overcome in many cases given the right treatment and surroundings.

Located on the former site of the Peabody School, the League School was established by The Friends and was renovated by the Women's Auxiliary.

Luncheon reservations are now being accepted and may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Maxwell Burstein of Brookline, reservations chairman.

3-Million Processed In 2 Years

Registry Completes Big License Change-Over Job

Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin announces that as of March 1, 1971 all Massachusetts Driver's Licenses have been converted to the new photographic license. It took two full years to complete the conversion of more than three million licenses, he said.

Every licensed operator has now received this new license with the exception of military personnel who are still on active duty.

During the cycle of conversion, license renewals were processed for two, three and four year periods in order to spread them evenly over a span of four years. All renewals as of March 1971 are for four years. The fee remains at $2.50 per year or $10.00 for the full full-year term.

Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin said, "Applicants for licenses have been pleasantly surprised by the simple, fast and efficient method used to provide a complete photo license in a matter of minutes."

The security in the new license is ensured by several features: the color photo of the driver, signature of the individual, personnel information and the Registrar's validating signature combined into a single photographic image which cannot be altered without the license being destroyed. For added protection the print is laminated with a special plastic with a bond so strong that any attempt to peel it off also destroys the license. The laminated print is then sealed in a vinyl pouch.

The use of this license as a means of identification is so positive that merchants should have little fear of its use by criminals for the cashing of stolen checks, minors purchasing liquor and the use of stolen credit cards etc.

Association, the Auburndale Woman's Club, and to the residents of Norumbega Gardens.

Library Park is one of the phases of civic beautification for which the Auburndale Garden Club received the Metropolitan District Award in the Environmental Improvement Program sponsored by Sears Roebuck Co. and Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc.

This award symbolized by a check from Sears Roebuck was presented to Mrs. R. Emerson Sylvester, President of the Auburndale Garden Club, at the Metropolitan District annual meeting February 3, 1971.

The Metropolitan District includes 31 Garden Clubs from Boston, Brookline, Dedham, Dover, Needham, Newton, Noanett, and Wellesley.

The money received will be used by the Auburndale Garden Club to further their beautification efforts in the village of Auburndale. It may be recalled that in May 1970, the Auburndale Garden Club received a state award given by Sears Roebuck & Company.

Additional funds for completion and continuing maintenance of Library Park are greatly needed. Mrs. John B. G. Palen is Chairman of Civic Beautification with Mrs. E. Graham Bates serving as special Chairman of Auburndale Library Park.

The Garden Club earnestly requests each Auburndale citizen to do his part in the prevention and removal of litter from the village, with special emphasis on Library Park. And it is earnestly hoped that the citizens will find relaxation and pleasure from the Park as they occupy the benches, eating their lunches, reading their books or simply resting.

All citizens of Auburndale are cordially invited to attend the Library Park Dedication on Thursday, May 13, at 1:30 p.m.

Anthony Newley and Buddy Hackett will tour in summer stock as a team this summer.

Newton Students Designs Posters For Players Show

Miss Meryl Friedman, a senior at Newton North High School, is an extremely talented artist. Accepted for early admission to Rhode Island School of Design, she has designed posters and programs for her school productions of "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Man Who Came to Dinner."

She is also responsible for the cover design of "Thoughtprints," her school magazine.

The pert, slender miss came to the Players when they were working on an experimental play entitled "The Contract." At that time, a symbolic portrait was needed.

For the first time in her young career, Miss Friedman was asked to interpret a play expressionistically in her own medium. The result was a fourteen foot acrylic portrait, quite avant garde.

So powerful was her work that it dominated the play — became a reflection of the play it represented.

The impressed audience could not believe the work was that of a seventeen year old girl, the work so captured the essence of the play.

Now busily designing posters and programs for the Players new offering, "We Have Always Lived in the Castle," adapted from the Shirley Jackson novel by Hugh Wheeler, Miss Friedman has once again begun to express artistically the sinister, melodramatic tone of the play she is representing. The Players are indeed fortunate to avail themselves of the remarkable talent of this young lady.

Ticket reservations are now being accepted for the Players Spring play, "We Have Always Lived in the Castle." Simply call Mrs. Malcolm Kates, 32 Stuart Rd., Newton.

He Was Tony Perkins' Stand-In

Auburndale Youth Prefers Career In Hotel Managing

When he was selected as a stand-in for Tony Perkins in the recent film "Pretty Poison", Daryl L. Sarmuk of Auburndale was not even thinking "Hollywood" ... he certainly wasn't looking for a job!

Mr. Sarmuk is a double for Tony Perkins and when the company's casting director spotted Daryl in Great Barrington, he persuaded him to be the star's stand-in during the filming in the Berkshires. Evidently, Daryl was not terribly impressed with "show-biz".

After spending 13 weeks on location in the Berkshires, he concluded that he preferred the world of business, specifically, hotel management. Prior to his "movie career," he had had eight years of experience managing hotels.

Mr. Sarmuk, who is formerly from Great Barrington, spends his afternoons reading, relaxing, and enjoying life. Although he has decided to interrupt his hotel management career for one year, he has not completely severed himself from the business.

Daryl now spends five evenings a week working as a waiter in the Sirlin and Saddle Restaurant at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton.

"I thoroughly enjoy the hotel business and working with people, so much so that I took the job at the Marriott even though I've taken a year's leave of absence from the responsibilities of hotel management," stated Daryl. "The business of making movies appears to be exciting, but Hollywood is small and very limited. I prefer the excitement and variation afforded by the hotel industry," he said.

Retired Persons Will Hear About Insurance Facts

Insurance will be the focus of the Apr. 19 meeting of the Newton Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, to be held in St. Paul's Parish Hall, 1135 Walnut Street, Newton Highlands, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Mrs. Ann R. Maisch, a representative of the Insurance Branch, will explain the various types of insurance together with their application. She will also answer written questions that are submitted prior to the meeting and will be available for personal queries afterwards.

Members, their guests and prospective members are invited to attend the session at which time tickets for the annual luncheon, planned for May 18, will be on sale.

Very few people would pass up a chance to go to Hollywood, but Daryl Sarmuk wasn't "star-struck", even after his experience with the world of movies. He became convinced during his 13 weeks on the set that he should continue to pursue a career in the field of management, although the glamour of Hollywood was tempting.

"It was an enjoyable experience, and perhaps, if I had not had previous background in hotel management, I might have been eager to pursue a movie career. However, I found that making movies can be boring, unlike the bustling business of running a hotel," said Mr. Sarmuk.

"In the make-believe world of Hollywood, a person is too confined. Hotel management gives me a chance to view people from a hundred different directions," continued Daryl.

The most enjoyable aspect of this young man's experience was the people he worked with.

"Alice Brock, of Alice's Restaurant fame, was a stand-in for Tuesday Weld and I found her to be a delightful person," he said.

"I also enjoyed Tony Perkins, who is a very quiet, reserved man, not unlike the roles he is usually cast in," concluded Mr. Sarmuk.

Newton Resident In ATT Report

A West Newton resident is one of 22 Bell System employees from all over the United States pictured in the 1970 AT&T Annual Report.

Mary Fahey of 16 Pine St., a service advisor in the business services department of New England Telephone, is shown instructing a state policeman in the use of a new communications system installed recently in state police headquarters.

A major portion of her work involves training non-telephone personnel to operate new telephone communications systems.

The annual report in which she appears required three weeks' press time around the clock to print the three million copies mailed to shareholders recently.

The job took more than a million pounds of paper—enough to fill 45 box-cars—10 tons of ink and 1,750 gallons of liquid laminate used to coat the cover.

For the twelfth year AT&T also published two special editions—one in Braille and the other in "talking book" form. The company estimates that it will distribute these special editions to about 1,500 visually impaired stockholders.

Equipment-

installation were initially caused by some neighborhood concern." Apparently many of the objectors thought the equipment was much larger than it is and geared for more extensive use than is actually possible, she added.

When queried about who had the authority to install the equipment, John Gilleland, assistant superintendent for business services, said "all grounds work is done by the city's recreation and forestry departments."

Mayor Monte G. Basbas noted that petitions have been presented in opposition to the installation on the kindergarten side of the building by residents "who want peace and quiet."

"There is a playground on the other side of the school," he said, "and that is the logical place for the equipment."

"We have some obligation to taxpayers in this city who have no children in school. These people have a right to ask for peace and quiet," Basbas declared.

Mrs. Mary Winslow, principal of the Cabot School, said the small pieces of playground apparatus are suitable for five or six children at the most. "We want it outside the rooms where children can go in and out in good weather," she noted.

The end of the park now used as a playground area is utilized by adults and older children, and a street must be crossed to reach it, she added.

Mrs. Winslow acknowledged that in 1969 a petition was received with 28 signatures of neighbors opposed. However, since that time meetings have been held with area residents and at this time only a few still object to the placement of the equipment, Mrs. Winslow maintained.

Robert Romero, president of the Cabot School PPTA, declared that it was "outrageous that parents have to go to the School Committee and Board of Aldermen to get two little pieces of equipment installed."

"May all that have life be delivered from suffering"

George Bernard Shaw said "Atrocities are not less atrocities when they occur in laboratories and are called medical research". A glimpse behind the doors of the grim experimental laboratories reveals that living animals are exposed to cutting, freezing, burning, starving, gassing, electrically shocking, being otherwise tortured and inoculated with malignant diseases. This is a detestable practice.

How can any civilized person commit or countenance the continuance of such activities? We urge you to join us in our Crusade against Cruelty.

March Continued Building Lull

Permits totaling only $168,615 worth of work last month marked a continuation of the building lull in Newton. There were 36 permits issued by the Building Department in March and, of those, only one was for a new structure — a tool shed costing $1,000.

The other projects which received building permits included two elevators, two swimming pools, seven signs, 14 changes to residences and 11 to non-residential buildings. Overall, in building starts, last month was the most sluggish March in the city since 1967.

The $35,000 Volkswagen.

Have we gone stark raving mad? No, but when we heard this car was on display at the Los Angeles International Auto Show, we thought somebody had.

As it turned out, there was a method to the owner's madness.

Why not transform the world's best known economy car into the world's most economical limousine?

After all, a lot of the things that make great luxury cars great are already there in the humble little Bug:

Like 23 years of perfecting every single part of the car.

And subjecting it to over 16,000 different inspections before we sell it to you.

And having it worth lots of money to you when you sell it to someone else.

So why not stretch it out to limo length?

Why not add an intercom, bar and mahogany woodwork and tufted English upholstery and a carriage lamp to signal the doorman?

Why not be the savingest millionaire on the road?

That, children, is exactly how the rich get richer.

Newtonites To Take Part In Boston Concert

Local residents Mrs. Rosalie Griesse, 19 Fairlee Terrace, Waban, Mrs. Malinda Haradway, 27 Hincley Road, Waban, Mrs. Anne Gallos, 63 Neshobe Road, Waban and Mrs. Jacqueline Miley, 27 Cheswick Road, Auburndale, will be among the 80 voice chorus of the Handel and Haydn society which will perform in Jordan Hall on Friday, April 23 at 8:30 p.m.

Under the direction of Music Director Thomas Dunn, members of the chorus will perform in concert version Purcell's opera DIDO AND AENEAS. Written in 1689 this is Purcell's only opera and a work whose dramatic power is undiminished by the passage of centuries.

It depicts the well-known tragic love story between the warrior Aeneas and the Carthaginian Queen, Dido. Boston area soloists will be Barbara Wallace, soprano; Jan Curits, mezzo-soprano, and David Evitts, baritone.

The chorus will also perform the winning composition in the first annual choral competition contest sponsored by the Handel and Haydn Society and the E.C. Schirmer Music Company.

THE SEVEN LAST DAYS was written by Edward Miller, Associate Professor of Theory and Director of the Electronic Music Studio at Hartt College of Music, Hartford, Connecticut. The text is by Donald Justice with color film by Abbott Meader.

Mr. Miller employs two stereo tape systems and percussion as well as mixed chorus to evoke a complete environment of sound and light. The tapes produce a striking collage of synthesized and familiar environmental sounds, mundane radio commercials, and sharply contrasting sounds of our space age technology and children's voices. The various media combine to convey a message, strong and emotional about ecological concerns.

General Meeting Of FISH Tonight

Newton FISH will hold a general meeting tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock at the Newtonville United Methodist Church, 449 Newtonville avenue, instead of Thursday as previously announced. Planned for the meeting is a skit to illustrate technique in better screening of calls. Following the business agenda, a social hour will take place so that volunteers may become more closely acquainted with each other, supplementing friendships that have been made on the telephone.

FISH extends a warm invitation to any Newtonite interested in becoming a volunteer. This meeting will provide an opportunity to find out more about FISH as an organization and to talk with volunteers who have already helped people in real need and who are not able to find assistance elsewhere.

For any additional information, call one of the following co-chairmen: Mrs. Karen Corning, 244-2385; Mrs. Betty Ferner, 969-7531; or Mrs. Elaine Mezooff, 244-5828.

April 22 to 29

Is Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week

Coinciding with a trip of the International Interclub Committee of the Newton Kiwanis Club, Mayor Monte G. Basbas recently proclaimed April 22 through April 29 at Canada-United States Goodwill Week in the city.

The Committee, headed by Alderman Robert L. Tennant, is scheduled to depart for Montreal on the 22nd and, while there, plans to give Mayor Jean Drapeau a proclamation and a key to the City of Newton as goodwill tokens from Mayor Basbas.

Mechanized Reporters

Court reporters may soon be a thing of the past. The Board of Supervisors has begun a study to determine if the 450 court reporters in Superior and Municipal courts can be replaced — electronically.

"I believe it is timely to determine if technology is sufficiently advanced so that it will be entirely feasible to utilize available electronic voice recording equipment in the courts," said Supervisor Frank G. Bonnell.

Takes Part In Anti-War Fast

A group from Andover Newton Seminary was among those from a dozen seminaries which gathered in Washington last week to fast, pray and worship for peace outside the White House, in a "Holy Week Witness Against the War".

Their statement of purpose asserted: "We choose this sacred time commemorating the passion of Jesus Christ to make our religious and political statement against the war. During this Holy Week of our Lord's suffering, we must remember in a public and forceful way those who are suffering needlessly because of the stubbornness of our own government."

More than 80 seminarians participated in the event and they came from these schools in addition to Andover Newton: Boston University Divinity School; Harvard Divinity School; Heller School of Religion at Brandeis University; Union Theological Seminary, New York City; General Theological Seminary, New York City; Woodstock College, New York; Princeton Theological Seminary; St. Mary Seminary, Catonsville, Maryland; Via Torian Seminary, Washington, D.C.; Duke Divinity School, North Carolina; Pittsburgh Theological Seminary; and St. John's Seminary, Detroit.

They were joined by the editors of three religious periodicals that have issued a joint editorial, "A Call to Penitence and Action": Peter Steinfeld, associate editor of Commonweal; Wayne Cowan, editor, and Robert Harsh, associate editor of Christianity and Crisis; and Robert Hoyt and his wife, editors of National Catholic Reporter.

No Action On Statement Of Policy For Schools

The Newton School Committee on Monday night deferred official action on a policy statement on social and political activities in the city's schools.

At request of Superintendent Aaron Fink the policy statement, which has been endorsed by the elementary and secondary school principals and by the Administrative Council of the Newton Teachers Association, will serve as an administrative guideline until the statement can be published in school publications and community response can be obtained.

The statement had been presented at the March 22 meeting of the School Committee and at that time a decision to lay it on the table for two weeks was made.

The decision was made after Peter Scott, president of the PTA Council requested a delay so that parents could comment on the policy statement.

The statement, drawn up by a committee of 24 faculty and administration members with the aid of outside consultants, includes the rights and responsibilities of students and faculty. It recognizes students' rights of freedom of speech, freedom of press, peaceful assembly and the right to petition for the correction of grievances.

It also declares that faculty members enjoy comparable rights as citizens under the law. With these rights are attendant professional responsibilities, the statement points out.

The final paragraph of the statement concerns what might occur as a result of disruption.

It states: "In a period of dissent, which may conceivably result in temporary disruption of the educational process, the school has a responsibility to protect the rights of all students. While seeking to return to the primary purposes of instruction as quickly as possible, the administration and faculty must take whatever steps are essential to prevent violence, whether it be directed toward those who dissent or those who take issue with the dissenters."

Finally, the school community is obligated to protect itself from those forces of revolution and reaction which may seek to destroy the school as a forum where all ideas are examined and where a decent regard for the rights of others is practiced. Anything less constitutes a failure to the school and to the community."

Special Meeting Set On Public Residence Zone

The aldermanic Land Use Committee Monday night set April 26 as the date for a special meeting at which it will discuss the proposed amendment to the city zoning ordinance calling for the creation of a public residence zone.

The announcement followed a public hearing on the proposal which, if approved, would allow the erection of low- and moderate- income housing units planned by the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF).

In presenting two alternative plans for the zoning change to the Land Use Committee, John L. Simmons, the Newton Planning Department's senior planner, asserted that one reason the proposal should be approved is "to demonstrate the City of Newton's willingness to deal with, rather than ignore, its housing problems."

Mrs. Sylvia Applebaum of the League of Women Voters, also spoke in favor of the proposal, indicating that her group continues to endorse it.

The proposal presented Monday was the same one discussed at a public hearing last December. When 90 days passed without the aldermen taking any action on the proposal, however, it expired and a new hearing had to be arranged in order to have it considered again.

An NCDF plan for building

350 low- and moderate-income housing units was heard by the aldermen last summer but was denied approval by a very close vote.

This event is apparently what Mrs. Margaret Stone, speaking in opposition to the public residence zone Monday night, had in mind when she argued that Newton should not "tailor the zoning laws for NCDF." She expressed, too, that, "I feel that this whole thing is a back door to have the NCDF thing put over on us."

Newtonite Helps Plan Wentworth Alumni Reunion

Dr. H. Russell Beatty, Wentworth president, is also scheduled to talk.

Earlier in the day, members of the 1921 Golden Anniversary Class will be feted at the President's Luncheon.

At the annual meeting, slated to begin at 3:30 p.m., the election of new officers will be conducted.

Children And Drugs Subject Of Panel Here

What kind of child will develop a drug problem? Where should parents turn if they suspect their children are on drugs? What are the schools, medicine and the law doing IN NEWTON to combat the problem?

These and similar questions will be dealt with by three experts from the fields of law, education, and psychiatry in a panel discussion on "Drugs and Our Children" to be held Friday, April 23 at Temple Beth Avodah, 223 Temple Lane, Newton, at 8:15, following Friday night services.

The panel, moderated by Rabbi Edward Maline, will feature as speakers Mr. Richard Callahan, Regional Director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs; Dr. Joseph Sabbath, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee of the City of Newton on Drug Abuse; and Mr. M. Hooghiam, Coordinator of Mental Health Program for the Newton Public School.

Mr. Callahan, with the federal government since 1954, is currently the chief law enforcement officer in the northeast in regard to the drug problem. The father of four, he has moved from service with the F.B.I. to exclusive concern with Drugs since 1966. He will deal with what the Federal government can do and is doing about all kinds of drug abuse problems.

Dr. Sabbath, a child psychiatrist, is well known in the area for his work with the Newton Mental Health Center. He has published extensively in his field.

Mr. Hooghiam is the person in the Newton schools who has charge of all programs dealing with drugs and mental health.

The public is invited to join in getting some answers to questions of concern to every Newton parent.

Eisenberg Keeps Youth Symphony Orchestra Post

Professor Walter Eisenberg of Newton Upper Falls, a member of the faculty at Boston University, was elected recently to another one year term as music director of Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO) by the Orchestra's board of directors.

Together with the 105 members of the junior orchestra, the senior orchestra's 117 performers make up the GBYSO, whose youngsters come from throughout the metropolitan area. The Orchestra is internationally known, having appeared in a number of foreign music festivals.

Several Newton managers will play with the Orchestra at its principal fund raising concert of the season, to be held Saturday, Apr. 24 at Boston's Jordan Hall (on Huntington Avenue), starting at 8:30 p.m.

Proceeds from this event will enable the Orchestra to meet its operating expenses for the coming year, help provide scholarships for teenage musicians and aid in initiating some special projects.

Reservations for the Apr. 24 concert can be made by writing Mrs. John Carey, 150 Walpole Street, Norwood, Mass. 02062 or by calling her at 762-0516.

Lesley Warren and Leonard Nimoy have asked for and received their releases from starring roles in "Mission: Impossible."

Board Tables Hiring Of Architecture Consultant

The hiring of an educational consultant with architectural expertise to assist with drawing up educational specifications for renovation and construction projects was temporarily tabled by the Newton School Committee on Monday night.

One bid had been received by the Committee for work involving improvements to the Davis, Lincoln, Eliot and Underwood Schools.

Some members said the proposal might complicate rather than simplify the procedure.

Mayor Monte G. Basbas expressed the opinion that you "shouldn't get too many cooks." In the past the school administration has been able to determine what it wants. If you're going to ask an educational consultant to be an architect, you will have two architects on the job, and it will take forever to get done," said the Mayor.

Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith suggested that Superintendent Aaron Fink and Director of Business Services John Gilleland draw up a definitive proposal of what would be sought from such a consultant that would serve as a guide in soliciting bids.

Dealing with another matter the Committee asked Gilleland for a report about the automobiles used by the schools for driver training instruction and a list of the number of students waiting for on-the-road training.

Committee member Richard Douglas reported receiving a communication concerning two cars received from a dealer which are used for the Police Department's safety program.

The School Department has seven cars, five of which are assigned for driver training and two for the Police Department safety program, Gilleland said. Initially, he added, the contract for the cars specifically provided for that arrangement, but it was changed two years ago and now obliges the School Department to restrict the use of all vehicles for driver training.

Parents have claimed that there is a long list of youngsters waiting behind the wheel instruction, Douglas said.

Gilleland said he will have at least a partial report by the next meeting.

Committee member Alvin Mandell also reported receiving a communication dealing with another matter. The letter from Mrs. Marvin Kahn asked that a number of staff vacancies in the School Department be set aside for Newton residents who are qualified unemployed professionals or graduating seniors from education schools. Mrs. Kahn pointed to the availability of such persons as a result of the current economic situation.

Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Dr. James Lauritz said applications for positions this year will probably go over the 4,000 mark for under 200 positions. "We would rather that the Committee instruct us to continue to hire the best people available," he said.

Mandell said he thought it should be pointed out that state laws allow the waiving of education credits for up to three years.

Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith suggested that interested persons should go to the personnel department to find out what the requirements are for school staff positions and should submit applications to them, if they so desire.

In other action the Committee approved payment of tuition for three retarded children at the Peter Philip Educational Day Care Center in Framingham. The cost for the three children would be $2,400 a year.

It was pointed out that the children involved are too retarded for inclusion in Newton's program for trainable.

Sonnabend Appointed To Revenue Sharing Comm.

Paul Sonnabend of Chestnut Hill was appointed last week to the National Citizens' Committee for Revenue Sharing (NCCRS).

The NCCRS, whose co-chairmen are former Governors William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and Albert P. Brewer of Alabama, is a bi-partisan organization formed to encourage adoption of legislation in Congress for revenue sharing in this year's session.

The objective of the Committee is to assist in the formation and operation of state-wide and local grass roots efforts to influence Congressional representatives that fiscal reform via revenue sharing is a highest priority need for legislative enactment this year; to provide an intensive national public affairs effort to orientate the American public on advantages of revenue sharing; and to generate a sense of urgency that some form of revenue sharing be enacted this year.

Other Bostonians serving on the Committee are Gerhard D. Bleicken, chairman and chief executive officer of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company and Erwin D. Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor.

Sonnabend, president of Sonesta Hotels, is a graduate of Phillips Exeter Academy and Cornell University. He is a member of the President's Committee On Employment of the Handicapped, and was also appointed by President Nixon to serve on the Nominating Committee for the National Program for Voluntary Action. In 1966, he was named to the Architectural Barriers Commission by President Johnson.

His current activities include serving as director of the American Foundation on Automation & Employment; founding director and vice president of the Patriots pro football team; director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce; trustee of Beth Israel Hospital; member of the board of incorporators of Massachusetts Memorial Hospital; director of the Boston Council, Navy League of the U.S.; corporator of the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank; and on the membership committee of Cornell University.

Sonnabend is also a past president of the following organizations: the Easter Seal Society of Massachusetts, Premier Corporation of America, the New England chapter of the Cornell Society of Hotelmen and the New England Sales Management Association.

SCENE FROM PLAY — Anne Maher and Robert Perni rehearse their part in the comedy, "The Star-Spangled Girl", to be presented tonight, Friday and Sunday evenings by the Dramatic Club of Our Lady's High School in Newton.

Our Lady's Dramatic Club Play Due To Open Tonight

The Dramatic Club of Our Lady's High School, Newton, will present "The Star-Spangled Girl", a comedy by Neil Simon, America's most acclaimed writer of stage comedies of the 1960's, in the High School's newly-painted auditorium tonight (Thursday), tomorrow, and Sunday evenings, April 15, 16 and 18, starting at 8 p.m.

"The Star-Spangled Girl," written by the author of such other laugh-provoking stage hits as "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple," and "Come Blow Your Horn," brings into humorous and political conflict a pretty, athletic girl and a couple of intellectual young men who put out one of those protest magazines that keep telling their sparse readers how terrible the Establishment is.

All the conditions are wrong for romance to flower among these three. The girl with the bulldog patriotism considers the young men - who are her across-the-hall neighbors in a San Francisco apartment house - and their magazine, as nothing less than subversive of the good old red-white-and-blue principles she was brought up on.

The earnest young men, in their dedication to belittling everything in present-day society, think she is a square. But a triangular romance develops between them all the same - this being Neil Simon's sly, antic way of proving that love is not a matter of intellect but of emotions.

With its up-to-the-minute spoofing of youthful protest movements, "The Star-Spangled Girl" was one of the biggest comedy hits in New York during the 1966-67 season, running there for over eight months.

John Terry, a junior, and Robert Perni, a freshman, will have the roles of the impoverished young rebels, reduced to every kind of devious stratagem to pay their bills, - except the obvious one of returning to their homes and joining their father's businesses, and Anne Maher, a junior, will be seen as the athletic young lady with conventional ideas about American institutions, who upsets their activities.

Paul Murphy is the director and he has also designed the scenery representing a combination residence and editorial office of the crusading magazine men.

Stage Manager is John Antonelli; properties, Judy Cellucci; wardrobe, Kris Dougherty; faculty assistants, Miss Carol Cellucci, Miss Janet Sweeney, and Sister Madeleine Lamarre. Tickets will be available at the door each evening.

Mental Health Center To Work With College Center

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Newton Mental Health Association, Dr. William E. Stone, Director of the Newton Mental Health Center announced that the Center has received accreditation to work in cooperation with the Boston University Medical Center "to develop an integrated and coordinated program of education, research and health service for the purpose of providing and maintaining better health in contemporary society."

Both facilities will work together to enlarge and improve their respective service, training and research programs by the conduct of joint projects, at the same time maintaining and expanding their individual programs.

One of the primary goals of this affiliation is the promotion of career training in child psychiatry, and reciprocal members will serve on each Board of Directors as a liaison between the two organizations.

The staff of the Newton Mental Health Center will participate in the teaching activities of the Department of Child Psychiatry for Boston University residents and medical students, while in turn the Newton Mental Health Center will accept trainees and students as part of its learning facility.

Staff members of Newton Mental Health Center will have the opportunity to participate in special educational projects in which child psychiatry is a significant element, in addition to participating in joint educational seminars and meetings of special interest.

Joint research in the field of child psychiatry is of prime importance and the advice and consultation of the Research Section of the B.U. Division of Psychiatry will be available to the N.M.H.C.

Also as part of this joint venture, the N.M.H.C. will appoint annually at least one professional representative to the B.U. Child Psychiatry Council which works closely with the Douglas A. Thom Clinic, the James Jackson Putnam Center and any future child psychiatric affiliates.

Dr. Stone revealed that this affiliation has been in the planning for some time and feels that its accomplishment will serve as a tremendous step in making the Newton Mental Health Center a more responsive and effective clinic.

Boy's Effort Commended By Garden Club

Robert Saywer of 66 Fisher Avenue, Newton Highlands, is a 15-year-old whom the Newton Highlands Garden Club believes deserves public recognition for his contribution to the fight against pollution and the battle to save the environment.

On his porch, at home, there sits a large bin in which Robert stores the newspapers and cans he has collected for recycling. Moreover, according to the club, this idea he developed is spreading to neighbors.

So, recently, the Newton Highlands Garden Club sent Robert Sawyer this succinct note of gratitude and praise: "We... wish to congratulate you on the effort you are making toward a better environment. It is encouraging to see youthful energy forming constructive habits to help us all to be more aware of the need to recycle products which otherwise would increase the pollution."

Newton Solons On Short End Of Abortion Votes

Newton legislators were on the losing side last week of several Beacon Hill votes on proposed measures dealing with repeal of the state's mid-nineteenth century laws forbidding most abortions.

The repeal bill lost in the House of Representatives by a 205-29 tally. Of Newton's, four-man delegation, three — Paul H. Guzzi, Theodore H. Mann and David J. McFerson — voted for repeal. Paul F. Malloy cast his vote against repeal.

All four representatives voted together - and lost - on a Malloy-sponsored bill which called for a study of the consequences resulting from repeal of the anti-abortion statutes. The House turned down this proposal, 168-65.

In the Senate, Newton's Irving Fishman stood in very lonely company as his vote was one of just three (out of 40 senators) to favor that chamber's abortion repeal measure.

'Amnesty Week' April 18-24 At Newton Library

What's the common bond between Genet's "A Throat and Fiction" by Oliver, "What Shall We Name the Baby" by Ames, and "Music in the Middle Ages" by Reese?

These and many more long overdue books now on home bookshelves may be returned to the Newton Free Library, without fine, during Amnesty Week, April 18-24.

The amnesty, a gift from the Newton Free Library to dilatory borrowers during National Library Week 1970, covers all materials borrowed at the Main Library and all branches.

At the Main Library a big brown box atop an empty book case beckons from a giant bulletin board bearing the legend: Our Shelves Are A Little Bare.

Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian urges borrowers to check their home bookshelves and to return to the library, without charge, overdue books they find.

NATIONWIDE ACTIVITIES MARK EARTH DAY OBSERVANCE

HIGH PLACED OFFICIALS and average citizens joined in pledges to keep the earth livable on Earth Day Wednesday. President Nixon had officially proclaimed Wednesday as Earth Day—the high point of a week of nationwide activities aimed at dramatizing the need for action to preserve the environment. "I believe we can get the job done," Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton told a task force on environment at the White House Conference on Youth meeting in Estes Park, Colo. "But if we don't have confidence in our ability to change the system, we might as well give up." Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who conceived the idea of Earth Day and co-sponsored the first event last year, said at Boystown, Neb., he is preparing a bill that would stop widespread use of pesticides and herbicides. Nelson said, "man is indiscriminately medicating almost all world's creatures, including man, without bothering to have a doctor write a prescription."

SUPREME COURT BACKS BAN ON CAPITOL CAMPSITE

THE SUPREME COURT Wednesday affirmed the ban of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger on an anti-war veterans' campsite at the foot of Capitol Hill and former Attorney General Ramsey Clark urged the shouting demonstrators to obey. Clark, a volunteer lawyer for Veterans Against the War, appeared at the campsite a half-hour after the government deadline had passed, for them to disperse. He raised both arms in the peace sign and said, "I wish I had some good news for you fellows, but I don't." Nearly 1,000 veterans, clad in khakis and combat fatigues, greeted the news with shouts of "Hell no, we won't go—hell no, we won't go." Clark replied "As your attorney, I urge you to comply. You've been very effective in the cause for peace. God bless you," Clark said, giving the 2-finger peace sign. The government rules forbid any overnight use of bedrolls, campfires, shelters or tents other than a medical tent, ground-breaking or cooking on the mall, the grassy parkland extending from the Capitol grounds west to the Lincoln Memorial. Some demonstrators said they may stay up all night on the camp grounds—but not asleep—during the 4:30 p.m. to 9 a.m. ban hours. Al Hubbard, a former Air Force captain and a director of the veterans group, accused the administration of "governing by injunction" and said some wounded veterans at the site needed sleep. Several members of Congress who mingled in the crowd offered to find other accommodations for the demonstrators. Earlier in the day, a delegation marched to the Pentagon, demanding that they be "arrested along with Lt. Calley" as war criminals.

KENNEDY ACCUSES U.S. OF 'BLOOD BATH' IN INDOCHINA

SEN. EDWARD M. KENNEDY charged Wednesday in Washington the United States was participating in a "blood bath" in Indochina that had skyrocketed the number of refugees, wounded and dead throughout Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam. Opening new Senate hearings on the refugee problem in Indochina, Kennedy said in less than a year, nearly one-third of the population of Cambodia, up to 1.5 million persons, "have apparently become refugees." In Laos, he said, at least 700,000 persons have become refugees, and tens of thousands have fled from battle areas over the past weeks. "Since the heavy air war over Laos began in early 1969," Kennedy said, "conservative estimates put the number of civilian casualties at over 30,000, including as many as 10,000 deaths." In South Vietnam, Kennedy said in a statement opening the Judiciary refugee subcommittee hearings, "the onthly flow of refugees has been higher than at any time since the Tet offensive in 1968." Kennedy said the total number of civilian casualties in Indochina since 1965 "numbers some 1,050,000, including at least 325,000 deaths."

SENATE DEFEATS INTEGRATION BILL FOR NORTH

TURNING ASIDE charges of hypocrisy and political timidity, the Senate easily defeated Wednesday a bill that would have required the same degree of integration in big cities in the North as that imposed in the South. The 51-35 vote killed a proposal by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., to require all schools in any metropolitan area to enroll a fixed percentage of minority group students within 10 years or lose federal aid to education. In debate leading to Wednesday's vote, Ribicoff said northern liberals "cannot continue to desegregate when we continue a segregated policy." In urging adoption of the bill, Ribicoff said his "northern liberal colleagues don't have the guts to face their constituents in the suburbs."

U.S. HELICOPTERS FACE CRIPPLING ATTACKS

NORTH VIETNAMESE troops in the A Shau Valley area are armed with anti-aircraft guns that could cripple U.S. helicopter support, a South Vietnamese general said Wednesday. Brig. General Vu Van Giai, leading a new offensive in the area, said the campaign was still in its planning stages, while President Nguyen Van Thieu claimed last Saturday that the campaign was already 3 days old. Thieu said the offensive could even range into North Vietnam. U.S. units in battalion strength were reported leap-frogging in and out of the valley along the Laotian border Wednesday. No contact with the enemy had been reported.

DUKAKIS URGES U.S. NO-FAULT INSURANCE LAW

FORMER STATE Rep. Michael S. Dukakis Wednesday in Washington urged the federal House Committee on Interstate Commerce to approve legislation establishing a national no-fault insurance system—like the one he helped gain for Massachusetts. "Depending on the states to take quick and effective action on the problem simply won't work," Dukakis said. "The lobbies we fought in Massachusetts are just as tenacious in other states—and perhaps more so. The length of time that it will take for each state to adopt its own system of no-fault insurance promises little hope of an effective national no-fault framework," he said. Dukakis was the original sponsor of no-fault insurance in Massachusetts while a Democratic state representative from Brookline. It was the first such program in the nation. "We must not permit a system to develop in which there are changes in basic rules or gaps in coverage simply because a motorist has left his home state," Dukakis said. "Motor vehicle safety and auto emission controls are both covered by comprehensive national regulations. It makes no sense to leave auto insurance in the hands of state government." Dukakis called President Nixon's decision to ask Congress to postpone action on no-fault insurance for two years "curious and disappointing."

Seek $62,000 For School Work Plan

A request by Newton Mayor Monte G. Basbas for a $2,200,000 bond issue to pay for addition to the Davis, Lincoln-Eliot and Underwood Schools was held by the Finance and Public Building Committees of the Board of Aldermen.

Instead, an initial appropriation of $62,000 will be sought, probably at the board's next meeting in two weeks, to cover costs of preliminary plans and specifications, Finance Committee Chairman Edward C. Uehlein told the board on Tuesday night.

"The board is probably unanimous in wanting to go ahead with improvements to these schools," Uehlein noted.

"However, when a bond is

In other action, Public Buildings Committee Chairman Ernest Dietz informed the board that the long delayed matter of a new central library for the city is being resurrected.

Listed for some time on the board's docket has been a request for an appropriation of $5,000 to engage a building consultant to assist in preparing specifications for a new library.

Area Is Classified As Recreation Land

Developer Turned Down On Low-Income Home Land Bid

A real estate development corporation's offer to purchase land on Winchester St., Newton Highlands from the city for construction of low and moderate income housing was rejected by the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday night.

The board's Finance Committee had recommended denial of the offer of the Auburndale Development Corporation to buy 160,000 square feet of the old city infirmary land and an access to Winchester St. for $60,000.

The limited dividend corporation, while it is also seeking to have land it owns in Auburndale rezoned for low and moderate income housing, hoped to construct about 50 town houses on the Newton Highlands site with financing from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

Mayor Monte G. Basbas declared officially last night that he will not be a candidate next November for reelection to another term as Newton's chief municipal executive.

Mr. Basbas is now serving his sixth year as Newton's Mayor and previously was City Clerk for 13 years and Assistant City Clerk for one year, making a total of almost 20 years of municipal service.

The Mayor told the Graphic he hopes to remain in the public service but that he has no promise or commitment of an appointment to any position, job or judgeship in either the state or federal level.

It appeared that Basbas ran for the State Senate last year at the request of Governor Francis W. Sargent. He never confirmed that the Governor Finance Committee Chairman Edward C. Uehlein told the aldermen that when the old infirmary land became vacant in 1968 it was transferred to the Recreation Department.

On March 18 the Recreation Commission voted 7-0 to oppose the sale of the property, Uehlein reported.

"It is probably the choicest piece of recreation land in the city," Uehlein said. "And since it is classified as park land I believe it would require action by the state legislature to sell it if the Recreation Department does not wish to release it."

In 1968 the Recreation Department had future plans drawn up for the various available sites in the city. This area, which abuts the Charles River, was laid out for boating, possible swimming, a ball park and a wildlife sanctuary, Uehlein declared.

In addition, he maintained, the selling of this portion of the 10 acre infirmary parcel would necessitate construction of an access street to Win-persuaded him to stand for that office; nor would he explain last night why he entered a contest that was a step down.

Senator Irving Fishman defeated him on the issue of holding two jobs.

Present indications are that the battle for Mayor next November will come down to a fight between Democratic Alderman William Carmen and Republican Representative Theodore D. Mann.

Basbas nosed out the then Representative Fishman in the 1969 mayoralty race but, in turn, was defeated by Fishman last November for a seat in the Senate.

Carmen already has announced his candidacy for Mayor, and Mann is expected to do so in the near future.

Children's TV Group Planning Switch-Off Day

Action for Children's Television (ACT), a Newton Centre-based organization concerned with improving the quality of children's television programming, has slated Saturday, May 1, as the day for switching off TV sets across the country, to protest the poor grade and lack of diversity in programs for children on commercial television.

On that day also, ACT members will be collecting signatures on petitions and urging people to write letters to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) before May 3, the deadline for the comments relating to the FCC's inquiry into children's television.

ACT, which now has thousands of members and supporters in 38 states, has been pressuring broadcasters to upgrade children's programming and, at the same time, has submitted guidelines to the FCC, which the federal agency now has under consideration.

Federal Officials Pump For No-Fault Car-Insurance Law

We didn't realize we had such a wonderful automobile insurance law until former Governor John A. Volpe, now the Secretary of Transportation, suddenly urged the other 49 States to copy our great no-fault insurance plan.

It's a little paradoxical that we did not get our present automobile insurance law until after Mr. Volpe had served six years as Governor of Massachusetts and had departed from our gracious precincts to become Transportation Secretary in President Nixon's Cabinet.

After Francis W. Sargent had been Governor for more than a year, we had the no-fault insurance law virtually forced upon us, with some misgivings on our part and dire warnings from the insurance companies about the terrible things to come.

Walk Organizers Seek Volunteers

The Newton and Newton South High School student organizers of the 15-mile Mother's Day (May 9) "Walk for Development" are seeking volunteers to serve as walkers, sponsors, check point personnel and transportation providers.

This year's event will be similar to 1970's "Walk for the Hungry" which traced a route through Newton, Wellesley and Weston, and raised $28,000 for the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, which in turn donated the bulk of the proceeds to poor Kenyans, needy Maine Indians and the natives of Lucknow, India.

A walk sponsor agrees to pay a specific rate for each mile the walker he sponsors is able to complete. This is the manner in which the funds are raised.

The walk is said to be endorsed by President Nixon, Senator Brooke, Governor Sargent, Mayor Basbas, Newton South Principal William Geer and Newton Community Peace Center Chairman Dr. Charles Brown.

Discusses Teaching Jobs For Unemployed Scientists

Prompted by an announcement that close to 4,000 people have applied for only 200 available Newton teaching positions and the receipt of a letter urging that unemployed scientists who reside in the city be hired as science teachers here, the Newton School Committee last week discussed at length what it might do about the situation.

The job application statistics were reported to the committee by the assistant school superintendent for personnel, Dr. James Laurits. His response to the subject under consideration was his hope that the School Committee "would continue to instruct us to hire the best people available."

The letter written by Mrs. Marvin Kahn of Newton to School Committee Alvin Mandell read, in part, "We now have available in our community well - trained personnel in sciences and math to fill any vacancies," noting the existence of "a wonderful opportunity to help our own unemployed scientists."

Disagreement among School Committee members revolved around two suggestions offered by Mrs. Kahn: one, that certification requirements (involving the possession of sufficient education course credits) be waived and two, that Newton residents be given preference in the hiring of the displaced scientists.

School Committee member Herbert Regal remarked: "I think it is fine to urge these people to apply and find out what the requirements are. That is where it stops as far as I am concerned. Any measure as to who is hired - other than competence - I don't want any part of."

In connection with how heavy a stress the School by Clyde S. Casady, Executive Vice President of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts.

Advisory Committee To Study Housing In City

Members of the Newton Citizen's Advisory Committee are involved in studying, reporting and recommending to Mayor Basbas their findings on proposals of low-moderate-income housing as well as problems of conservation and recreation.

A library site committee some time ago recommended that the proposed new facility to be built across from Newton City Hall at the intersection of Homer and Walnut streets.

Alderman Dietz told the board this week that it was the consensus of both the Finance and Public Buildings Committees that the whole matter of the Homer-Walnut street site should be re-studied. He also said the two groups favored a financial feasibility study and as well as one which would reconsider the value and need of all the branches. The Public Buildings Committee will act as an ad hoc committee to conduct the three pronged study.

Dealing with other matters, the aldermen:

—approved a petition of Nonantum Post 440 of the American Legion for an easement across city land from Rustic street for water pipes and utility poles to the proposed new post headquarters and rejected a proposal by Alderman Harry Walen that all the utility wires be placed underground.

—denied a petition by Raymond J. Ciccolo, owner of Volvo Village on Beason street, Newton Centre, for permissive use for a parking lot on land adjacent to the automobile agency.

The Committee members were appointed by Mayor Basbas two years ago in accordance with the Workable Program Provisions to act in an advisory capacity on all city programs involving the use of federal funds. It is the goal of this committee that every effort should be made to use these funds efficiently for the betterment of our city as a whole.

The N.C.A.C. meets monthly in Room 222 of Newton City Hall. Future meeting dates will be published as well as recommendations and findings of all areas under study.

The Committee invites all Newton citizens wishing to voice ideas or problems encountered in areas of community improvement involving Federal funds to attend these meetings.

Members of the N.C.A.C. are: Hugh Arcese, Vice Chairman; Mrs. Louis Lobel; Melvin Fine; Robert Roderick; Peter Harrington; Henry Wilson; Rt. Rev. John M. Quirk; Joel B. Leighton; Hugh Colliton; Lewis B. Songer; Archibald Feinberg; Thomas M. Dargan; Nazzareno Mazzola.

American English

Another April 15 has come and gone. It's a date well-fixed in the minds of Americans. Even if calendar-makers fail to block it out in distinctive red, it's easier to remember than some of those synthetic holidays lawmakers have designated "Monday-Only." It's the income tax return deadline imposed on their subjects by the state and federal governments. April 15 is inevitable. It's deeply dug in American mores. It really starts in late December or early January when the state and Internal Revenue Service begin sending out nice crisp forms and instructions. Perhaps as a morale builder, the IRS always assures the form recipients that this year's is the simplest ever. That's a snare and delusion if you believe Maryland's U.S. Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., and a few million taxpayers across the country. Mathias says he's completely fed up with this annual "simplest ever" label.

He's going to try to do something about it. In a speech on the Senate floor after April 15 had gone by he angrily demanded that "common every day American English" be made the future official language of the IRS.

Taxpayers, recovering from their bouts with the simple 1971 forms will wish him success. However, the brave senator is facing a tough task. Save for one brief period in our latter day history, "common every day American English" has never been a hallmark of an American bureaucracy.

Former Lieutenant Governor Sumner Whittier of Massachusetts brought the brief spell about while serving as head of the U.S. Veterans Administration. He took upon himself, with almost universal support, the task of riding the bureau of the "gobble-de-gook" language under which it operated.

He did a pretty good job. He cut down sharply the bales and bales of quintuplicate copies which no one read but kept in files. He showed that by substituting what Senator Mathias describes now as simple American English, one could come up with one understandable page to every four pages of gobble-de-gook.

Little known outside Massachusetts before he undertook the task, Mr. Whittier gained national attention for his work.

His impact on bureaucratic love for making 10 words do the work of one, unfortunately, was short-lived. When he left Washington "gobble-de-gook" got back in the official target and his laudable crusade never did get a start in the other bureaus.

Senator Mathias may come up with another Whittier but whether he does or not the public will have the doubtful consolation of knowing the 1972 return forms will carry the "simplest ever" tag line again.

Fun City, 1971

It's probably just a logical, something-to-be-expected development on the heels of New York City's decision to pick up some badly needed dollars by going into the pari-mutuel business on its own. The city always prided itself on doing things in a big way.

Now, while less effete big cities will look on with askance, sophisticated Gotham wants to spread out its gambling business to include all sports — football, baseball, hockey, basketball and mayhap even ping pong.

The city's law department is whipping into shape a batch of bills for presentation to the State Legislature. If all or even some of them pass, Las Vegas will become a small satellite in legalized American gambling and Nevada had better start looking around for another Comstock Lode.

Not only will New York pari-mutuel windows begin handling sporting events of all descriptions, but its betting facilities will be in operation and the horses running on Sundays as well as weekdays. In line with its devotion to the youth movement, it will ask the Legislature to drop the minimal age for its gaming patrons from 21 to 18.

That's not all. Indicative of its concern for the comfort of its money-in-hand patrons, it would make things easier for the young mothers among its customers by allowing them to bring their little ones into the best shops while they figure out their choice or choices for the day.

One of the big hits of the musical comedy "Oklahoma" had the rollicking song line — "They've gone about as far as they can go in Kansas City."

As a self-proclaimed "Fun City," New York never had much in common with Kansas City, but Las Vegas seems to have it mesmerized. It needs money—quick money.

While its crime on the streets statistics continue to climb, its unhappy, sometimes belligerent police, firemen, sanitation workers and cab drivers hold a near front-page monopoly for their demands. School services have been sharply curtailed.

Its night spots, barometers of its financial ups and downs for decades are bawling the loss of business. Toots Shor's gathering place for the greats, the near-greats and the would be's was recently closed by tax collectors. Operators of other nocturnal oases eye empty tables night after night.

Meanwhile, some economists read disaster in the black clouds shrouding the city's fiscal future. Its welfare tab exceeds the total budget of the Tammany Hall days and those bright times when George Cohan sang and danced on its stages.

Maybe, these $2 bettors can turn things around. We shall see.

LETTERS TO THE GRAPHIC

Urges Ward Election Of School Committee

Editor of The Graphic:

Who does the School Committee represent? The obvious answer would be that they represent the voters of Newton. But, let us look at the results of the last election.

47,086 voters were registered in Newton, and this figure represents approximately 50 per cent of the population of Newton.

24,643 votes were cast for Mayor (all three candidates).

The greatest number of votes cast for School Committee, in any Ward and for both candidates, was 16,918 (Ward 2). In only four Wards, those in which there was a contest, did the votes for both candidates exceed the blanks. The votes for the winning candidate in Wards in which there was a contest were: 10,104, 10,519, 9,885, 9,686. In the unopposed Wards the totals were: 11,938, 11,746, 11,183, 11,768. Not one of these votes is a majority of the votes cast and the highest of them is still no more than 25 per cent of the registered voters!

Who, then, does the School Committee represent? On the basis of these voting figures it represents a parochial minority of voters. The present method of election has proven to be completely unrepresentative of the needs of the City.

Why aren't the voters more interested in voting for School Committee? In the first place the candidates are not generally known throughout the City. Of course the candidates can get known by advertising and by moving city-wide in order to be seen. Many prospective candidates have neither the time nor the money to spend for getting known city-wide.

Therefore, election by Ward results in a candidate being known by the voters who elect him. Contests are more likely because the time and money for campaigning is more reasonable. The closer contact with the voters would result in a more responsible responsiveness to the electorate. To say that Ward Committees would be limited in their ability to relate to the City because of their closeness to their Ward is no more true than it would be for a Ward Alderman.

I strongly recommend that the question of Ward representation on the School Committee be put to the voters for decision.

Sincerely,
John T. Evans, Ph.D.

Curb School Committee - Defeat New Charter

Editor of The Graphic:

At the School Committee meeting April 12, in response to a request by Committee member Mandel at the March 22 meeting, Asst. Supt. Gilleland was supposed to explain how $100,000 for maintenance and repair granted by the Mayor had been spent. The explanation was impossible to follow for this observer sitting without written notes before him, but what followed was incredible!

In the discussion it appeared that over the years the Committee had never bothered to check and see if assigned projects in maintenance and repair were ever started or completed!

Now this particular mess is precisely what is to be expected where an autonomous School Committee decides how much it wants to spend and in what manner and the taxpayers MUST dig it up and shell it out. There is no responsibility for raising the money so how can you expect responsibility in spending it? Easy come, easy go.

Like the spoiled child of the permissive parent the concern is only to get enough money to buy and try out its educational toys, with something less than full concern for the practical realities. In the 1970s this is no longer a viable procedure, if it ever was. In the last few years a most heavy, irrevocable burden has been fixed on the Newton taxpayers by the School Committee with no way to ameliorate it for many years to come — if ever. It is a present threat of financial strangulation to the city, and this will become more and more apparent in the next few years. It must be changed, and there is not much time to do so.

Therefore the proposed new charter must be defeated in November because it would give even more destructive power to the School Committee by giving it power to appropriate money for maintenance and repair when it has already shown itself to be so devoid of the simplest of managerial capabilities as to not even have sense enough to check up on the help.

Yours very truly,
John Gosfield

Answers McLaughlin

Editors Note — The following letter addressed to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin was received by the Graphic for publication in response to his letter to the Graphic of April 1st.

Richard E. McLaughlin:

At your request, I like many before me, reply to the letter you sent to all the Boston papers including even, The Jewish Advocate.

You have stated that you would like all physicians to notify those in charge of motor vehicles those not responsible enough, or capable, of driving on our Massachusetts roadways. You cited those with glaucoma, epilepsy, hypertension, etc., just like they notify the authorities about the drug addict, abortionist, etc.

Mr. McLaughlin, I would also like to put in this same category the driver who is drunk. You failed to list him — was this an oversight on your part?

You did say over a Boston radio station a while ago those people over 65 years of age — now you are speaking differently are you not?

May I say that if you think that your troubles are with the driver over 65 years of age, I would like to enlighten you, Sir, and say look a little at the teenagers on our highways, cutting in and out of traffic. They cause a lot of accidents and should be included as well. Just because it is the vogue of our era to give children a car, which I disagree with, does not free them to race on the roadways.

There are people who need cars to go to and from their place of work or business while many of the younger folks are just pleasure driving.

May I also say that the medical doctor has plenty to do today. I don't think he should be required to police careless or sick drivers for your department, why not use your help for this. May I also add that if a doctor had a grudge against anyone he could really make life rough for the person this way if he were to notify the Commission of the above listed problems.

Come on, do some reasoning. Get the drug addict, also as I stated, the drunk. They are the ones you should control. May I also state that all teenagers are not all at fault, as well as the elderly, but one must be reasonable and agree that we have good and bad in all age categories, don't we?

Our Bible states very clearly to one and all that God should be the judge of us when that time comes around.

I also feel that we pay enough taxes in our state as it is for such items as watching for the careless driver. This is a job for the State and not the physician, Sir.

If the driver receives an eye test when his license expires then have the driver take a physical examination at the same time if you want — that sounds logical.

In closing I would like to say, Sir, that you do not have the problem of being told to get off the road because of age as you are driven around by your own chauffeur are you not?

This is my reply to your letter of March 30, 1971, as you requested anyone to do. May I just end now, Sir, and say "Shalom."

Report Due On Training Cars

Questions concerning the present alleged misuse of two driver training cars, the whereabouts of two others, combined with complaints from parents about a long waiting list for in-vehicle instruction, led the Newton School Committee last week to request a School Department official to report soon on the need and availability of driver education cars. Assistant Superintendent of Schools for business services, John E. Gilleland, was asked by School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith to have ready at least a partial report for the committee's next session.

Recently, controversy has developed over police use of two vehicles in the seven-car driver education fleet. According to Gilleland, the two cars have "been assigned over the years to the Police Department for the work with the safety program in the various schools."

Concern has also been expressed concerning two other cars Gilleland has indicated they are not the same two used in the police safety program) in the driver training fleet that have unaccounted for.

A few weeks ago, Alderman Thomas P. Concannon, Jr. issued a resolution calling for the release of the two cars from police use to driver education use.

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS -

To be truthful, we thought we had the worst automobile insurance plan man had yet been able to devise. Then John Volpe spoke out boldly and bravely and said it was the best. Maybe Mr. Volpe knows something we don't know, but some insurance brokers still can't tell you what the law provides.

Automobile insurance experts in Washington say it really is a good law but that there are just too many crooks making claims for fake accidents which never happened and a fabulous amount of money is being paid to chisselers.

Apparently, there is some reasonable basis for this assessment because one person assigned to investigate automobile insurance fraud in the Bay State reports that the situation is so incredible as to be beyond belief which, of course, is why our automobile insurance rates are so high.

The possibility of enacting a federal no-fault automobile insurance law is being discussed in Washington. It does not seem likely one will be passed this year, but if it were, it would be much the same as the statute now in effect in Massachusetts.

However, attempts will be made to prod the defunct states into adopting a no-fault law, and eventually a federal law will be placed on the statute books.

Some Bay State automobile drivers are still not as convinced as the Washington observers such as Mr. Volpe that the no-fault law is the answer to the hopes and dreams of the average harassed car-owner.

But the Capitol Hill no-fault boosters assert that it eliminates arguments over automobile accidents and who caused them. It allows insurance companies to pay their own clients when an accident occurs, regardless of who is at fault.

Ordinarily, the members of Congress would stand apart from a controversy over auto insurance, but they have been deluged with complaints from their constituents about the cancellation of their car coverage. There's nothing that stirs a Congressman into action more quickly than a flood of letters from home.

If you are one of those who didn't know that we now have an automobile insurance law which should be a model for the rest of the country, join the great majority.

Liberal GOP Heads Pressure Nixon To Dump Spiro Agnew

There is some solid basis for the persistent reports that President Nixon may dump Spiro Agnew next year and pick another Vice Presidential candidate.

A group of prominent and influential Republican leaders are working on Mr. Nixon in an attempt to persuade him to drop Agnew. The President so far has not yielded to Spiro's critics.

It is not that those who want a different GOP contender for Vice President are as violently opposed to Agnew serving another four years as Veep as their actions would indicate.

What is causing their blood pressure to rise is the realization that if Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew make up the Republican national ticket next year and win a second time, Spiro would become the logical candidate for President in 1976.

That possibility appears to disturb some Republican leaders more than it does President Nixon.

His big objective is to achieve reelection to a second term as President next year. If Mr. Nixon believes that Agnew can help him reach that goal, then Spiro most certainly will be the Republican nominee for Veep in 1972, and the President will allow someone else to do the worrying about 1976 when he is preparing to retire to the practise of law.

To Boost Social Security Pensions 5 Per Cent Jan. 1

The ink is little more than dry on the statute signed into law by President Nixon which increased social security benefits by 10 per cent last Jan. 1.

Now reports, which apparently have a solid substance, are being circulated to the effect that a new 5 per cent raise in social security pensions for next Jan. 1 is in the works.

Many elderly persons, living entirely on social security pensions, are eking out a hand-to-mouth existence on a scale about comparable to that of people getting welfare assistance.

Both President Nixon and members of Congress are disposed to increase their pensions.

In order to do this, the basic wage which would be taxed for social security purposes probably will be increased from $7800 to about $9000 a year.

Increased costs of living have made it virtually impossible to maintain any kind of living standard on the amount of benefits paid by social security.

Transportation To Be Topic Of Popular Panel On Sunday

Transportation will be the topic discussed this coming Sunday afternoon by Channel 7's three-member panel who are gaining increased attention and popularity week by week.

It should be an interesting session for the three members—former Boston Mayor John F. Collins, former State Senate President Maurice A. Donahue and former Republican Senate Leader Philip A. Graham—say they will discuss both automobile travel and mass transportation.

Construction of the major arteries such as the Inner Belt and the Southwest Expressway ground to a halt some time ago even though in some instances buildings along the proposed routes have been purchased and torn down.

The erudite Collins, the blunt Graham and the well informed Donahue, all experts on State government, have proved to be an extremely popular panel.

Nixon Not To Replace FBI Head If Health Stays Good

Persons close to President Nixon declare that the President wants FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to continue in his important and critical position despite the furor over charges that the FBI has been spying on Senators, Congressmen and many thousands of other public and private figures.

Those in a position to know say that only ill health on Hoover's part could cause Mr. Nixon to replace him. The fact is, they assert, that the crusty and aloof Hoover is in robust health and is not likely to be disturbed in his job while Richard Nixon is President.

Towns Moved Like Pawns As New Congress Areas Planned

Word from Beacon Hill is that part of the district now represented by State Senator Robert L. Cawley may be shifted into the congressional district of Mrs. Louise Day Hicks.

Talk among those closest to the situation is that Ward 20 of Boston, comprising West Roxbury and a large part of Roslindale; Ward 18 of Boston, which takes in Hyde Park, Readville, Mattapan and a portion of Roslindale, along with the Towns of Dedham and Westwood will be added to the sector served by Mrs. Hicks in order to bring it up to necessary voting strength.

Some political observers believe this would make Mrs. Hicks virtually unbeatable in that district. Others think it would give Senator Robert L. Cawley a fighting chance against her. However, there are sections of the district where Cawley is not known.

Wards 18 and 20 of Boston as well as Dedham are now represented by Congressman James A. Burke. He is strongly entrenched in them and probably would not be at all happy about losing them.

Newton Symphony To Give Concert May 9

At the coming concert of the Newton Symphony Orchestra, on May 9, a featured work on the program will be a Boston premiere. Michel Sasson, music director of the orchestra, will conduct songs from Gustav Mahler's "Des Knaben Wunderhorn" with Pamela Gore, contralto and David Evitts, bass, the soloists. Miss Gore and Mr. Evitts are two of the busiest and probably the most sought after vocalists in the Boston area. This season they have made solo appearances with most of the major choral societies in Eastern Massachusetts. Their appearance with the Newton Symphony Orchestra for this premiere is greeted with enthusiasm and excitement.

"Des Knaben Wunderhorn" translated "The Youth's Magic Horn" was the title of a large collection of poems published by Ludwig von Arnim and Clemens Brentano in the early 1800's. In 1888 Mahler was inspired by the poems and wrote songs based on them over a period of fourteen years. The songs represent Mahler at his most lyrical. Although "Wunderhorn" uses a large orchestra, Mahler achieved a sense of intimacy by careful scoring of the Symphony instruments. Mahler was to develop the Wunderhorn themes with orchestral might, however, in other compositions. He used the beautiful song themes as the essence of his first five symphonies.

Other works to be presented at the orchestra's concert will be the J.S. Bach Concerto for Two Violins with soloists Max Hobart and Robert Koff. Gunther Schuller will be guest conductor of Five Pieces by Anton von Webern. Mr. Sasson will end the concert conducting a performance of Maurice Ravel's La Valse.

The concert will be held at the Meadowbrook Junior High School at 7:30 p.m. on May 9. For ticket information call 244-0011 or by writing to Box 64, Newton Highlands.

Church To Have Choral Service Program Sunday

On Sunday, April 25th, the morning worship service at The Newton Highlands Congregational Church will be devoted to a program of sacred music.

The Senior Choir, under the direction of Edward H. Hastings, will present Dietrich Buxtehude's cantata "Every Word and Thought" and Mendelssohn's motet "Hear My Prayer." The latter work will feature Marsha Vleck, soprano. C. Ray Bryan, tenor, will sing the aria "Sound an Alarm" from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus."

Organ music by Bach, Franck, and Vierne and Randall Thompson's anthem "The Last Words of David" will also be heard.

This will be the last musical program at the church to be directed by Edward Hastings, who completes his 12th year as organist and choirmaster in June. Next September he becomes director of music at the First Parish Church in Milton.

76 Exhibitors To Show At BC Event Apr. 30

Friday, April 30, marks the opening day of Boston's largest antiques show to be held at Boston College's McHugh Forum. Seventy-six carefully selected dealers from thirteen Eastern states account for a vast display of home decorator and collector's items including antique furniture, glass, jewelry, copper, pewter, brass, bronze, porcelains, paintings, prints, rugs and oriental items, art objects; and such collectibles as mechanical banks, paperweights, shaving mugs; and such hobbies as firearms, coins, stamps, buttons and postal cards. The show is sponsored by the Greater Retarded Children.

Using the accumulated knowledge of many years' experience in antiques dealing, the show features the largest display of authentic antiques to be seen in Boston this year. Tastefully arranged booths will give hints to the decorator in the arrangement and display of personal antique treasures.

Of special interest to those who wish to sharpen their own knowledge of antiques is a collection of printed material on antique items numbering over 1,000 titles and covering a wide price range in pamphlet, paperback, and hardbound editions.

The three-day show is open to the public from 1-10 p.m. on Friday, April 30 and Saturday, May 1, and from noon to 7 p.m. on Sunday, May 2. Snacks will be available and there is ample free parking. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Children, or at the door.

Mc Hugh Forum is located on the Boston College Campus, just off Commonwealth Avenue, in Newton. A reduced price admission coupon for the show appears in this issue of the Graphic.

The Newton Y.M.C.A. announces that a few openings still exist for Trips I and II of its new camp program, "Discover Y". Dealing for registrations will be May 25. Residents of Newton and the surrounding communities are invited to take in "Discover Y" which is the smallest travel camp operating in New England. This type of camping gives boys a new experience which cannot be found in any other type of camping situation.

Two trips with different itineraries have been planned. Ten boys between the age of 11-15 will have the opportunity to take part in each trip.

Trip I will leave July 6 and will return July 27 after visiting such places as Fundy National Park and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Trip II will leave July 29 and return August 19 after visiting Quebec City and "Man and His World" in Montreal.

Besides visiting these famous places, other side trips of interest are planned.

John A. Bolster, Camp Director, noted that "Discover Y" is not a travel tour but is a travel camp with a full camp program. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis. To assure not being closed out, register today.

For further information and camp applications, call 244-6050 or stop by at the "Y", 276 Church St., Newton.

Country Players Set May 7 For Show Production Date

A large, experienced production crew has been assembled for the Newton Country Players Spring offering, "We Have Always Lived in the Castle," a chilling, exciting mystery drama by veteran author, Hugh Wheeler, adapted from the novel by Shirley Jackson.

Directed by Joel Dorfman of Chestnut Hill, and produced by Cece Sloan of Newton, the show is slated for performance on two consecutive May weekends, May 7, 8, 14 and 15, at 8:30 p.m. at the Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

Tickets, theatre party reservations will be capably handled by Mrs. Malcolm Kates ("Cookie"), business manager for the show. Tickets and further information concerning reduced rates for sponsor groups are readily available by calling Mrs. Kates, 32 Stuart Rd., Newton Centre.

For experienced scenic designer David Wolf of Newton, "We Have Always Lived in the Castle" will mark the 11th production on which he has worked in this capacity. A noted patent attorney, Mr. Wolf's artistic ventures includes recent Country Players productions of "See How They Run," "Catch Me if You Can," and "Ten Little Indians."

Newcomer to the Players, Mrs. Ted (Sue) Bonner will be the stage manager. A speech therapist by day, Mrs. Bonner will make her technical debut with this production. Competently assisting her will be Miss Carol Abernathy of Wellesley. Miss Abernathy acted as Stage Manager for the Country Players children's show, "Tales of the Donkey" last fall. Her tasks for "Castle" will include a most complex series of weird sound effects.

Lighting technician for the show is a most reliable Newton South High School senior, James Sloane. In addition to designing lights for the experimental one acters performed at the Pomroy Playhouse this year, Mr. Sloane has "run" lights for "The Dastard," "An Evening of One Act Plays," "See How They Run," and "Showcase I," presented by the Drama Workshop at Newton Junior College.

Heading the set construction crew is a long - time member of the Country Players, Buckley Rosenberg. Assisting hands will be provided by Misses Mort Landy (Remember him as Clive in the Fall show, "See How They Run?"), Bert Krassin, Milton Lewinger, and Damon Crumb. Painting the set will be the chore of Debby Ochs, Linda Rome, Betsy Moore, and Estelle Sawyer.

Set decor will be creatively executed by newcomers

Gladys Fields, Nancy Davison, and Soni Tick.

Leading the prop crew is a first year affiliate, Mrs. Barry Shore. Helping to gather a rather extensive list of hand props are Mil Broadnax, Marge Laxer, Marial Breen, and Gittel Simons. Wardrobe mistresses are Soni Tick and Ellen Dikton. Make up will be handled by veteran Player actresses and past president, Pat Fellows.

House managing will be province of the dependable team of Mr. and Mrs. John Vitello. Usher chieftains are two high school participants in the Country Players, Debby Ochs and Linda Rome.

Taking up the heavy yoke of publicity will be new Newton resident Mrs. James (Fay) Tassoff.

In existence for the past 15 years, The Country Players encourage the participation and assistance of any individuals interested in all phases of community theatre. In addition to providing the community with good entertainment, the Players foster experimental, unproduced plays as a learning, Workshop experience.

For membership information, write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre or call the president, Mrs. Bertram Krassin, 969-9737.

Mayor Basbas expressed the belief that he could be reelected if he had decided to run again but said he felt six years in the office of Mayor was enough.

He said he has nothing definite in sight, that he does not know what he will do when he leaves the office of Mayor and that if nothing else develops he will return to the practice of law.

Mayor Basbas is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Boston University Law School. He held a party for Vice President Spiro Agnew in the fall of 1968 when Mr. Agnew came here to speak at a fund-raising dinner for President Nixon.

Basbas said last night that he is not ruling out the possibility that he might run again in the future for some other public office on either the state or national level.

This was generally construed to mean that Basbas might be a candidate for Congress in 1972 depending on the makeup of the new congressional districts.

The policy of the past several years of admitting some children up to 3 months younger than the standard admission age will be continued for this coming academic year.

The standard policy applicable to all children states that a child must be 4 years 8 months of age by September 1 before he may be admitted to kindergarten, and only if he passes a screening appraisal. Such children's birthdays must fall in January, February, or March.

Children born on April 1st are not eligible. Parents may obtain application blanks from the elementary school principal in the district in which they live for their children to be examined for possible early admission.

When the applications are completed, they should be mailed to the Division of Pupil Personnel Services, 88 Chestnut Street, West Newton.

Parents will then be given an appointment time to bring the child to the Division for appraisal.

The appointments will be made for August only, and all applications must be mailed to the Division before August 1.

Cong. Drinan In Move For Senior Folks Hot Meals

Congressman Robert P. Drinan (D., Mass.) has joined an effort in the United States House of Representatives to provide free hot meals for Senior Citizens.

In seeking to amend the Older Americans Act of 1965, Congressman Drinan pointed to several programs that have been tried already on an experimental basis. "Title IV of the Older Americans Act," he said, "made provisions for Federal money to study nutrition among the senior citizens of the country. Pilot hot meal programs have been tried, and the success of these programs has demonstrated the desirability of providing Senior Citizens with lowest-nutritionally sound meals. These meals could be served in Senior Citizens Centers, schools, or any number of places. They would, of course, result in better nutrition, as well as augment the amount of social contact that Senior Citizens have with their peers."

The Bill would be administered by the Department of Agriculture. The Federal government would pay 90 percent of the costs, with the rest coming from State or in-kind funds. "There are some 20 million Americans now over the age of 65. In a very real sense, Senior Citizens are among the most neglected minorities in America today. I have long supported the adoption of a Bill of Rights for Senior Citizens, to assure those Americans adequate means of living, comfort, and happiness after they have retired from the mainstream of American economic life. This Bill is a needed step in this direction."

Newton Native Promoted By Bausch and Lomb

Michael Doctoroff was recently promoted to manager of research, development and marketing for the Vacuum Coating Department of the Precision Components Division of Bausch and Lomb, in Rochester, New York.

Doctoroff, who joined the firm in 1970, was previously head of research and development of the Vacuum Coating Department. He has received numerous patent awards in the vacuum coating field.

Doctoroff, who received a BA degree with honors and an MA degree, both in physics, from Williams College, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham M. Doctoroff, of 41 Sheldon Road in Newton.

Sites -

The meeting was requested by Housing Authority Chairman Anthony Medaglia following the aldermanic Housing Committee's objection to the authority's plan to build on sites in the northern part of the city with none proposed for the southern portion.

Agreement on sites is necessary if any of the planned housing is to be built, as zoning changes and land purchases (the city owns at least two of the proposed sites) connected with the project have to be approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Although there is disagreement within the six-man authority itself over several of the proposed sites, north side locations chosen include one off Beaconwood Road southwest of the Beacon Streets intersection in Newton Highlands and an area bounded by Thurston Road, Circuit Avenue, Eliot Street and Columbia Avenue in Upper Falls.

Sites under consideration include some property close to the Myrtle Baptist Church and the front portion of Victory Field.

The proposed low-income projects provide for 25 units of family housing each. Also being studied by the authority is the idea to mix elderly and family housing in the projects and authority tenants are being asked for their views on that matter.

Medaglia indicated that, "if the Board of Aldermen refused to grant the zoning changes we've requested, our only recourse would be Section 77A, the state's anti-snob zoning law, and I think I can say that this authority has never gone against the Board's wishes in such a matter."

Medaglia also pointed out what he considered to be an "important and interesting development," that "only 60 families are on our waiting list for low-income or subsidized housing. There has not been the rush to apply for housing that many opponents anticipated."

YMCA To Offer Series For The College-Bound

Dr. Ronald L. Lycette, an assistant professor at Salem State College, will give a series of lectures at the Newton YMCA to college-bound students in a program sponsored by the Newton YMCA. In the twelve-hour program which he designed, Dr. Lycette will cover a wide range of academic and personal problems which a student must face in college. He will discuss such topics as note taking, lectures, scheduling of time, reading, examinations, term papers, the drug scene on campuses today, and how to know colleges and professors.

"We want to show the student that he can be his own boss and that he can do well in college," Dr. Lycette explains. "And we want to help the stu-

A 1964 graduate of St. John's University in New York, Dr. Lycette earned his Ph.D. at Purdue University. He has taught at Purdue, the Minnesota State College system, and at Salem State. Before he went into teaching he spent four years as a journalist in New York City and in Princeton, New Jersey. In addition to several book reviews, Dr. Lycette has published articles on American novelist Saul Bellow and on Jean-Paul Sartre. He has also written a college study guide on Bellow's "Herzog" and is currently writing a textbook for freshman English.

As a teacher, Dr. Lycette encourages students to produce films and television programs, and he has published material on the uses of film-making in the teaching of English. Dr. Lycette is executive director of "College, Learning, and You," made up of a group of New England professors who lecture to college-bound students, and he has spent the last three summers speaking to students on the problems of college adjustment.

The enrollment fee for the course is $20 which covers the lectures, printed handouts, and personal counseling. Additional information and registration forms may be obtained from the Newton YMCA by calling 244-6050.

State Law Could Renew Efforts On Incinerator

It legislation now pending in the state legislature — to allow direct citizens' suits in environmental damage cases — is ever approved, it may renew the effort which, for now, has been discontinued: to enjoin the city from operating the Rumford Avenue Incinerator until it can be operated within legal minimum clean air standards.

Recently, the Middlesex Superior Court turned down a suit by a group of Newton citizens calling for a prohibition of the incinerator's operations. It is assumed that it did so on the basis of the city's contention that the proper channel for pollution complaints is to the Attorney General's office via the city, as (the city argued) set down with the creation of the Metropolitan Boston Air Pollution Control District.

In its suit, the group noted the citations which the District had issued against the incinerator during 1969. Attorney Thomas B. Arnold, who presented the group's complaint in court, had stated recently, in connection with the injunction effort: "There'll be no appeal and it's all over."

Missouri U. Fraternity Honors Yukes

Richard Alan Yukes of Newton has been selected as the Summerfield Scholar of the Year by his brothers in Phi Kappa Psi at University of Missouri.

Along with this certificate goes a cash award of $100. Yukes' activities at the University included participation in Franklin College Varsity Football and University of Missouri Track. In his Fraternity he held the offices of Phi, and G.P.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Yukes of 234 Church Street, Newton.

Fine stated that first quarter 1971 results would be announced shortly and that the company expects to report profitable operations. 1970's losses were related to large start-up marketing expense and to expansion costs according to Mr. Fine.

Drowned Man Identified As Newtonite

The body of a man found last Thursday floating in the Charles River in Auburndale was identified a couple of days ago as Jerome W. McGrath, 32, of 292 Auburndale avenue.

Robert McGrath, the dead man's brother, identified the body for MDC police, who had removed it from the water after it was discovered by some boaters.

A medical examination indicated that the body had not been in the water longer than a week, but it is believed the family had been searching for the deceased for a greater period than that.

McGrath, who had worked at the Brae Burn Country Club in West Newton, had not shown up there for more than a month, according to a club official.

Newton Centre Assoc. Elects Officer Slate

Election of Officers for the 1971-1972 term, was the main order of business for the Newton Centre Improvement Association April meeting held Tuesday at the Bishop McKenzie Center at Newton Centre.

The following officers were named for a second term in office: Ned J. Scaltrito, President; Robert Cohen, Vice President; and Albert Rochette Treasurer. George M. Levy was named Secretary.

Directors for the ensuing year were named as follows: Hugh Boyd, William Bruce, Bernard Dressner, Richard Douglas, Walter Fineberg, Paul Gold, Ted Green, Celso Jalliet, Walter Kreske, Edward Lynch, Al Makrides and Ernest Siciliano.

Much comment was made on the great improvement in Newton Centre after the Clean-Up program discussed at a previous meeting with Mayor Monte Basbas and Public Works Commissioner Willard Pratt. Offenders in the clean-up program were notified that the MUST keep Newton Centre clean, and they certainly cooperated.

The next order of business will be the traffic situation at Newton Centre and its approaches. It is intended that Chief William Quinn and some of his advisors will be invited.

Mofenson Reports Support For Lobby Control Bills

Representatives David J. Mofenson this week disclosed that bills to place stricter controls on lobbying have received a favorable report from the Legislature's Joint Committee on State Administration. Mofenson, who is a member of the committee, says the bills have been sent to the Committee on Ways and Means for further consideration.

He declared that "the bills would restrict all state authorities to one lobbyist, require more extensive accounting of the expenditure of funds to influence votes, expand lobbying reports to include expenditures incurred in lobbying the executive department, and ban public authorities from spending any funds for lobbying purposes beyond the salaries of legislative counsels."

Also this week, the Newton legislator indicated that the State Administration Committee has begun an investigation into the Department of Youth Services and the implementation of the reorganization of that department.

In the course of its investigation, the committee plans visits to all youth reception-detention facilities in the Commonwealth. It recently visited the Judge John J. Connelly Youth Center in Roslindale, a 15-year-old facility serving as a temporary detention center for youthful offenders, 7-17 years-old.

Mofenson noted that "we found the facility terribly overcrowded. Designed to hold 88 persons, it held 140 boys and girls on the day of the visit. 'But I am concerned not the lack of trained personnel only with overcrowding but at the facility. These and other problems must be rectified,' he added."

According to Mofenson, the committee expects to complete its investigation by late spring.

Eger Plays Lacrosse

William Eger, son of Dr. and Mrs. William Eger of 31 Bemis St., Newtonville, is a member of the varsity lacrosse team at Alfred University. He is one of six freshmen selected for the squad at the university located in Alfred, New York.

The team has an 11 game schedule this year.

Newtonites Have Active Role In Accountants Day

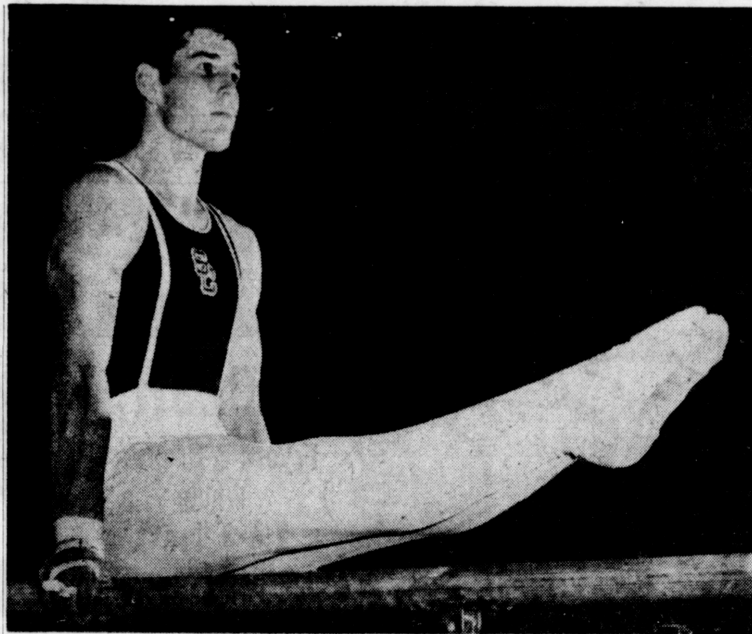

Several Newton residents are taking an active part in the activities planned for this coming Saturday's (Apr. 24) session of the American Society of Women Accountants' (ASWA) annual Metropolitan East Area Day. The event will be held at the Holiday Inn on Cambridge Street, Boston.

Miss Leslie Colby of 17a Charlesbank Road, Newton, is general co-chairman for the five-state meeting. She is also a past president of Boston Chapter No. 74, ASWA, which is acting as the hostess chapter for the all-day session which will be attended by members from Philadelphia, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and the Boston area.

The subjects for the Technical Program are Economy and Ecology, and two Newton men, prominent in their fields, will be featured speakers.

Dr. William H. Gruber of 30 Shaw Street, president of the Research and Planning Institute, Inc. and associate professor at Northeastern University will talk on "Accounting for Social Performance."

Bartlett Hague of 110 Roundwood Road, chief of the Planning Branch of the New England River Basins Office of the Environmental Protection Agency, will discuss "Planning: Accounting for Environmental Values."

NATIONAL GYMNASTICS CHAMP—Rick Haines, a native of Newton, was instrumental in leading the Chiefs to a second place national finish. It marked the second time in four years that the Chiefs of Coach Frank Wolcott had captured the runner-up position: Martin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Martin of 15 Bigelow Terr., is a graduate of Newton High School.

Finance Body Acts On Upper Falls Measure

Acting in accordance with the recent federal Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act, the Aldermanic Finance Committee last week passed a resolution calling for the furnishing of recreation payments to any persons displaced by the Upper Falls Intensive Code Enforcement program.

If the entire Board of Aldermen now approves the resolution, as well as a contract with the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, then the $176,000 of federal funds that have been earmarked for the Upper Falls project will be on its way to the city.

So far, according to the project director, Kenneth Colyer, no family has been relocated by the Upper Falls effort and it is anticipated that only one family will be so affected by it in the future.

He also noted that, since the federal government would handle the relocation costs and matching city funds are not required in order to receive the $176,000, the Board of Aldermen will most likely support the relocation resolution.

Newton High Drops D'mond Opener To Brockton 4-1

By BOB WORDEN

Newton High began their season on a sour note dropping their inaugural contest, 4-0, to co-defending champion Brockton at chilled filled Lincoln Park.

The Tigers had their problems all afternoon. Their bats were ice cold, lashing out only two hits. The pitching was poor and might have been worse if not for the two fine innings of scattered relief pitching by ace Jethro Mills. And the defense was shaky, totaling six miscues.

Brockton, playing without the services of Major League prospect (ruled ineligible) Mike Gordon, managed just fine without him. The Shoefitians stranded ten runners while banging out eight hits. Mike Szacholwitz collected two hits and knocked in a run in the chilly opener.

Carding the only two hits for the Tigers were Soph Ed Becker and Capt. Chuck Pendergast.

Brockton tallied single markers in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Szacholwitz brought Ken Petkunas home for the winning run on a single to right after Petkunas' reached on a walk and later advanced on a wild pickoff attempt in the second stanza.

DUGOUT COMMENTS: The Tigers inexperience will be a major factor as Ed Frachman chases his first crown as a head coach. The mound staff appears to be pretty weak. Mills seems to be the only reliable chucker. And if the Black and Orange are to make a charge at the crown they will have to tighten up their porous defense.

"We have a very solid squad this year but, we lack that outstanding 12 men in our lineup like we had last season in Bill Martin and Mark Brass," commented Newton High Tennis coach George Jessup after his team white-washed Cambridge Latin 5-0.

Steve Shulman playing the number one position (number seven on the team ladder) led the Tigers as he defeated Tahhan 6-2, 6-4. In other matches Soph. Richard Birmingham shutout Steve Phillips 6-0, 6-0 and in the third singles match Paul Windkeller romped 6-0, 6-1 over John Pratt.

In doubles action Jim Schpeiser and Freeman chalked up a 6-0, 6-1 and the tandem of Bob Schpeiser and Bill Lewitt completed the wipeout with a bombing of 6-0, 6-0.

Newton South Tracksters Are Young But Numerous

By Lewis Freedman

The best way to describe the Newton South High spring track team is that it is young and inexperienced.

However, there are 46 candidates, which is more than track has drawn in recent years and that should provide some depth for a change.

Coach Donald Sutherland is not optimistic. 24 of the competitors are sophomores, many of whom he has seen before. In addition, the lovely weather is inhibiting practice time. But the lack of experience is so acute that every missed day is disastrous.

South has three groups of performers. The first are the established runners and stars. Junior Howie Haines, one of the best in the state in the 300 indoors this year is the top candidate in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and will anchor the 880-yard relay. Haines ran a 34.2 this winter and won two awards in the Dual County League championships.

Co-captains John Seeler and Paul Nissen will probably alternate in the 440 and 880, with little back-up help. Seeler ran a 52.7 quarter-mile as a sophomore. Nissen started his track career as a pole-vaulter and may have to return to that job this season, in addition to his running role.

Senior Chuck Pottey is by far the Lions most capable distance man. He owns the school record in the 2.6 mile cross-country run in 13:19 and the indoor standard in the mile, 4:41.3 and two-mile, 10:25.8. Last spring he ran 10:24.8 outdoors.

Dave Peters is an outstanding hurdler who placed third then he will be the Lions leading high-jumper and second-best hurdler behind Peters.

The second group is a collection of competitors who have some experience and should provide depth. They primarily are middle to long-distance men who have run cross-country — seniors Andy Cohen and Ed Forman, juniors Howie Frutkoff and Matt Williams and sophomores John Mason, Jim Thorne, Charley Hoolika, and Tom Payne.

Others with experience are sprinter Dave Edelstein and discus throwers Bruce Brown and Lenny Adelman. The third group is an unknown quantity. It is a group in the Class B state meet in doors this winter over 45 yards. He also has experience in the high, long and triple jumps and will be in one in every meet.

Newtonites Get Degrees From U. of Wisconsin

Several Newton residents were among the students granted degrees by the University of Wisconsin recently.

The degrees were awarded on recommendation of the University faculty upon completion of the students' scholastic work.

The Newtonites granted their degrees were William B. Price, Jr. of 40 Curve Street, Master of Arts degree in French; Leonard J. Adams of 46 Marcellus Drive and Victoria H. Archabal, of 457 Centre Street, both Bachelor of Arts degrees in history; Kenneth J. Sparks of 75 Dartmouth Street, Bachelor of Science degree in construction administration.

Arman Koyoyian, bigger, stronger and more experienced, could be incredible in the discus throw this spring. As a junior, he established the South High record of 138-6 1/2. He could be near 150 feet this season.

Roger Cooper has thrown the shot over 46 feet. With more practice he will approach the 50-foot barrier.

Mike McKinney broke his kneecap during the football season and missed all of indoor track. If his leg is ready and if he can return to formation-mark group consisting of untied sophomores and upperclassmen out for track for the first time.

Comprising it are Leon Tighe, Tony Leonard, Rick Pease, Rick Resnick, Jon Sack, Rick Hill, Dave Lechhook, Bing Lem, Adam Nissen, Jim Paglia, Steve Bucavales, Dan Perlman, John Pershe, Jim Noymer, Rick Hahn, Jim Costa, Fred Lein, Jeff Stone, Ron Berman, Bob Sloan, Jim Keating, Evan Cohen, Harvey Kauffman, Tom Lane, and Bruce King.

Newton South opens its track season this Saturday with the annual running of the state class relays at Andover. The Lions start their dual-meet season on Tuesday versus Bedford.

Sponsor Hockey Program May 3

Robert McLaughlin, president of the newly founded Garden City Rink Association, announced today that arrangements have been made with the Board of Directors of the Newton Youth Hockey program to sponsor their award night.

The buffet supper and award program will be held at 6:30 on Monday, May 3 at the Newton South High School cafeteria. Presentations to several teams and door prizes will be made, with a guest celebrity doing the honors.

The Garden City Rink Association was founded by members of the Newton Community to actively formulate plans and work for the construction of an ice arena in Newton. The planned structure will be available for general skating, figure skating and provide an established home ice for the rapidly expanding Newton Youth Hockey Program and school teams.

Official Feels School Will Be Done On Time

Charles R. Herbert, the city's Building Department commissioner, this week noted optimistically that the new high school, currently about 40 per cent done, would be completed by its spring 1973 target date. The $18,400,000 structure is located behind the present high school on Walnut street in Newtonville.

Work on another Newtonville facility — a new Day Junior High School — is now approximately 50 per cent finished, according to Herbert.

The price tag for that facility, scheduled for completion in January of next year, has been marked at $5,273,000.

The commissioner indicated that work on both schools would probably move faster (barring any labor disputes) with the arrival of warm weather.

Art Association To Host Coleman Demonstration

Loring Coleman, the well-known artist, will give a demonstration for the Newton Art Association next Thursday (Apr. 29) at 7:30 p.m., at the Mason-Rice School, 149 Pleasant street in Newton Centre.

Coleman is considered a "Realist without apology" who sees the depth of beauty in old age, particularly in rural New England. His pictorial interpretations of the dying countryside express his feeling of a specific subject without being a literal copy.

The recipient of several awards, he has had many exhibits, such as his One Man Show at the Shore Gallery, and was well-represented this past year at Landscape I and II at the Dana DeCordova Museum in London.

Among the art associations he belongs to are the American Watercolor Society, Boston Watercolor Society, Allied Artists of America, Salmon Club and the St. Bonifacio Club. He is on the board of directors of the Guild of Boston Artists and the Concord Art Association.

His paintings are included in many private collections, including those in Boston's Museum of Fine Arts, the Butler Institute in Ohio, National Academy of Design, New England Merchants Bank in Boston and the First National Bank in Boston.

Local Man Is Chairman For Recent Event

The Brotherhood of Temple Sinai, Brookline held a gala celebration of Israel Independence Day on Sunday evening, April 18th at 8 p.m. in the Temple's Ehrenfried Hall, Charles Street and Sewall Avenue, Coolidge Corner.

The evening featured three professional Israeli entertainers: Boaz Avital, Josef Hudin and Batya Ponn, who performed Israeli songs and folk dances.

There also was a showing of a very recent film on loan from the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Entitled "Beyond the Mirage," this film was shot in Israel last summer.

The program was arranged by a committee chaired by Dr. Albert Soloway of Newton Highlands.

More can be cured of cancer, so give more to the American Cancer Society for research, education and service.

NEW YOUNG GOP HEAD CONGRATULATED—Newly elected President of Newton Young Republicans, W. Frederick Uehlein, being congratulated by Newton GOP Chairman, Julius L. Masow. Other participants in program are (l to r) Representative Theodore D. Mann, Guest Speaker; James Bilezikian, Vice-President; Uehlein, Diana Uehlein, Secretary; Masow; Robert S. Gaynor, Treasurer; Charles Miller, Executive Committee Chairman; and Charles E. Aucoin, President, Newton Republican Club. Plans were set for a meeting and reception at the Work Shop, Columbus Street, to take place Sunday afternoon, May 9. Feature of the event will be Wine Tasting.

D.A.R. Meeting Features Drug Talk and Awards

Declaring that the drug problem is "one of the most difficult problems in law enforcement," Lieutenant Thomas M. Dargan of the Newton Police Force spoke about drug abuse at the regular meeting of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, D.A.R., on Monday (April 12) at The Workshop, Newton Highlands.

Brandeis Hosts A 9-Day Jewish Arts Festival

A nine-day, multi-media Jewish Arts Festival featuring actors, dancers, musicians, singers, painters, sculptors and writers will open this coming Saturday (Mar. 20) at Brandeis University, with all events open to the public free of charge.

Many of Boston's talented young Jewish artists will participate in the Festival, which is being co-sponsored by Brandeis Hillel in association with "Response" magazine.

There will be folk singing, a festival of films, a concert by the Zimri Chorale of Boston, an exhibit of graphics by Israeli artists and a lecture by a Brandeis architecture historian. Crafts exhibits, theater, folk dancing demonstrations and workshops given by young Jewish writers will also highlight the Festival.

Marlene Salom, chairman of the Festival and senior anthropology student at Brandeis, said, "We are calling this the 'First Annual Jewish Arts Festival at Brandeis Hillel' because we would like to establish the Festival as a tradition here."

Miss Salom said the Festival was initiated "to provide an opportunity for people in the Boston area — especially students — to contribute their talents to a Festival in the spirit of Judaism."

"We wish to encourage these young artists, and to provide a means for them to share their talents," she said.

The week will feature activities in the areas of theater, dance, exhibits, music and lectures and workshops, with a finale in the form of a 12-hour film festival on Sunday, March 28.

Mechanics Needed — Washington — The U.S. air force has a current shortage of mechanics.

Crime Commission Member Commends Police Conduct

A member of Mayor Monte G. Basbas' Citizens Crime Prevention Commission last week sent a congratulatory letter to the Mayor in regard to the manner the large-scale drug sweep of Mar. 31 was carried out in the city by law enforcement officials.

Eliot S. Mover wrote:

"As a member of your Citizens Crime Prevention Commission and a member of this community, I would be remiss if I did not extend my congratulations to you and to Chief William F. Quinn for the outstanding effort of our Police Department in the dedicated handling of the arrest of many of our misguided drug involved young people."

"I visited the headquarters, along with other members of the Commission, to observe the activity and it is with a citizen's pride that I offer the following remarks:

"The humaneness of the action outshone its efficiency, but efficiency was secondary to a planned effort to guarantee dignity, due process and recognition of human rights."

"The effort made by the department to assure assistance to parents, families and friends of those arrested. Having a man to explain the charges and to assist parents in expediting bail procedures."

etc., along with the compassion that was apparent on the part of all of our officers, plus even hot coffee for all.

"To single out any person or officer would be unfair; all were outstanding. However, if anything has gone wrong or if the operation had been lacking in human understanding, the Mayor and Chief would have been blamed."

"So, I take this opportunity to congratulate all; Federal, State and our own officers, through the office of the Mayor and Chief of Police."

"I sign this with extreme pride as a member of a community that cares for its people."

tain of the cheering squad, captain of the Girls Basketball Team, a member of the Student Council, and a member of the Science Club.

A coffee hour preceded the meeting, with Mrs. Sterling G. Thomas presiding at the refreshment table. Those on the committee were Mrs. W. A. Hurley, Mrs. C. Warren Dillaway, and Mrs. Thomas.

Political Highlights

Westwood presently is in Congresswoman Margaret Heckler's district, and she would much prefer that it stay there. It is inevitable, however, that some towns and city wards will be shuffled around as the proposed new congressional district are put together.

No public furor over the shuffling is likely to explode as long as it appears it is being done honestly without deliberate attempts to help or hurt certain individuals.

Nixon Health Insurance Plan Not To Pass This Year

Unbiased political observers in Washington predict that President Nixon's health insurance plan will be defeated this year.

They report that it is too big for some conservative members of Congress to accept and too small for many liberals, among them Senator Edward M. Kennedy whose own plan also will not get anywhere in 1972.

Those who have studied the matter say that it probably will be another two years before a health insurance plan is put together which will be enacted into law.

When such a plan is pieced together, the likelihood is that it will be patterned more after President Nixon's than Ted Kennedy's.

Treatment of Bayh Like Royalty Causes Surprise

Eyebrows flickered up and down like shutters in a wind storm when Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana was invited to address a joint session of the Massachusetts Legislature.

Bayh is an unannounced candidate for President although to be more realistic he probably is actually hoping to wind up with the nomination for Vice President.

Visiting dignitaries, heads of foreign states, an astronaut back from the moon or a great general home from the wars in the past have been invited to address the two branches of the Legislature in joint assembly.

Rarely, however, has that honor been extended to a run-of-the-mill member of the U.S. Senate from another State.

Birch Bayh's great claim to fame, as far as Massachusetts is concerned, is that he was riding with Senator Ted Kennedy in the small plane which crashed on its way to the 1964 Democratic State Convention in West Springfield, nearly killing Ted.

Dist. Attorney George Burke Might Oppose Sen. Brooke

Norfolk County District Attorney George Burke is now being mentioned as the possible Democratic standard-bearer against Senator Edward W. Brooke in next year's election.

If Burke agreed to oppose Brooke, it presumably would be because he decided to take the long gamble that a powerful Democratic tide might be running which would carry him into office and sweep Senator Brooke down to defeat.

That is not likely to happen, but it is within the realm of political possibility, especially in a Presidential year.

Burke could afford to take that gamble better than most politicians because he would not be obliged to give up his position as District Attorney in order to challenge Brooke. His term in that office runs until 1974.

Social Security Information TELEPHONE SERVICE

The Roslindale social security office can handle "most social security business" without requiring personal visits to the office by the public, according to Anthony C. Chiota, social security manager for Roslindale, West Roxbury, and Hyde Park.

"We call it Teleservice," Chiota said. "With it, we can handle a great deal of the paperwork by phone that involves such social security matters as application for benefits, change of address for prompt delivery of monthly checks, and general and specific questions about social security programs, including Medicare."

With Teleservice, the manager said, social security personnel can, in many instances, fill out an application for benefits over the phone then mail the form to the beneficiary for his or her signature.

"We can also accept change of address information by phone from beneficiaries who are moving, so that delivery of their checks will not be interrupted," Chiota said. "And, of course, we can answer questions affecting workers' retirement, Medicare, disability, and survivors protection."

The social security Teleservice phone number for the Roslindale office is 323-0850.

Teens Run Job Mart For Youth

By WESLEY G. PIPPET

UPI — One day last fall, Barbara Walters and Shirley Brauer gloomily looked out of their tiny office window. It was raining and they saw the denuded block where almost overnight their neighbors had been bulldozed aside for a freeway.

Their brainchild, Teen Corps, a volunteer youth employment service, had been on a starvation diet since they started it a year earlier. They had found jobs for 7,000 youths, most of them black and from the ghetto. But they had been unable to get any help from the federal government.

"Barbara was so depressed," Shirley recalls.

Then Barbara glanced at the arrow painted on the wall of the office. The arrow pointed upward and the words "Teen Corps" were emblazoned across it. She got an idea: Why not go to the top?

She called Julie Nixon Eisenhower and invited her over.

Things Happen Things began to happen. Mrs. Eisenhower visited Teen Corps headquarters, located within sight of the U.S. Capitol in one of Washington's worst poverty areas. The three young women got along fine.

Today, Teen Corps is within reach of a $50,000 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity and the equivalent of $54,000 in job training slots from the United Planning Organization, a District of Columbia antipoverty agency.

You can glimpse the dome of the Capitol over your left shoulder as you walk up to the old two-story building that houses the Teen Corps in four small rooms at the top of the stairs.

Cassius Clay, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X are on the walls, along with posters warning about drugs. One reads, "Acid. Will it turn you on, or will it turn you off?"

In a long, narrow room that looks like a miniature lecture hall are 25 folding chairs and a blackboard on a stand. On it are written instructions for job interviews: "Do's and don'ts. 1. Be on time. 2. Be properly dressed. 3. Look pleasant. 4. Don't chew gum. 5. Go alone. 6. Don't use slang. 7. Tell the truth."

In another room, decorated with swirling designs of red and yellow and black, Irma Ellis, 35, wearing a navy blue pants outfit, sits at a desk. As youth supervisor she is responsible for the entire Teen Corps youth staff. She is a junior high student.

Youths who may have heard about Teen Corps through a counselor at school or, more likely, a buddy, come in to fill out applications for help in getting a job.

After getting such basic information as age and address, one of Miss Ellis' interviewers asks the youth: Have you dropped out of

Apply Now For Y Camp Massasoit

Camp Massasoit, sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. in Newton, is now accepting applications for boys and girls for the upcoming camping season.

New this season will be the opening of the enrollment to five year olds. The age range of the camp will now be five years to twelve years. This will enable many youngsters to be introduced to an exciting camping environment, as well as providing a rewarding and fun-packed summer for returning campers.

Once again our program will be a varied and well-planned, based on a solid camp day of activities, such as swimming - both recreational and instructional, archery, tennis, nature, arts and crafts, and various field sports, enhanced by such special events as trips away from camp, a carnival, movies, and sports competition.

The following is the schedule of periods for the summer: First Period - June 28 - July 9; Second Period - July 12 - July 23; Third Period - July 26 - August 6; Fourth Period - August 9 - August 20.

For more information and fees call the Y.M.C.A. in Newton at 244-6050 and ask for Camp Massasoit information.

school? Are you married? A parent? Are you on drugs? Do you have a police record? If so, for what? Can you type? Drive a car? Do you have special skills?

"We try to deal with their hangups," Mrs. Bauer says. "If the youth is a drop-out, he is encouraged to go back to school if he possibly can. About 200 have done so. If the youth is on drugs, he is referred to the right group. If he has a disability, he is sent to vocational rehabilitation."

Records Reported If he has a police record, the employer is informed because Teen Corps feels it is important to be completely honest and open. But almost never has an employer had problems with a Teen Corps youth hired with a police record.

In a third room, Dennis Dupree, 17, sits at a desk neat and tidy enough to compliment a top-flight executive. He is Teen Corps' job developer.

His staff of youngsters systematically go through the want ads of Washington's daily newspapers and the telephone book's yellow pages. And they fan out through Washington's various neighborhood business districts. All are looking for the same thing: Employers who will hire youths.

Eventually, Teen Corps tries to match the persons who apply with the jobs turned up in Dennis' office. In 14 months, Miss Walters says, 15,000 young persons have applied, and 7,000 have been placed.

Barbara Walters, 24, had been a job developer with the United Planning Organization for four years. In the summer of 1969 she went into the southwestern part of Washington and in six weeks she got 300 jobs for 300 teen-agers.

Her friend, Mrs. Shirley Brauer, 34, the mother of three and a correctional officer for the District of Columbia, went to help her. Together they called employers all over the city, got them to come to a job fair and persuaded youths to come for interviews. It worked.

Afterward, Barbara and Shirley, both of whom are black, talked about how they could do this on a large-scale, permanent basis. Teen Corps was born. And they had some ideas about their own staff.

"There are hundreds of youth programs all over the city," Barbara says, "but when you walk in you see adults. So we decided to have a youth staff."

In her little office, Barbara Walters shows off a color portrait. It is inscribed: To Barbara

Community Service Center Sets Up Teen Summer-Trip

With the appointment of Lawrence frame as Trip Director, the Newton Community Service Center will undertake its scheduled western trip for teenagers this coming summer.

In commenting on the program, Mr. Anthony J. Bibbo, agency Executive Director, stated that this activity has been developed in response to a number of factors.

Among these are the following: there is a scarcity of suitable camping services for teenagers; locally, teenagers need opportunities to assume more adult responsibilities and be treated as mature individuals; there is a significant value in exposing teenagers to the educational, cultural, social, and recreational experiences which a trip program can offer.

The trip will include 40 teenagers selected based upon applications and a personal interview. There will be one week orientation period preceding the six week trip program. Transportation will be provided by a national bus company with rest room facilities, etc.

A group structure will be used on the trip as a means of developing an opportunity for each "tripper" to assume maximum responsibility for his or her living group. All chores are shared and boys and girls work, shop, and cook together.

Among some of the areas to be visited include: Lake of the Ozarks, Alabaster Caverns, the Navaho Reservation, Arizona, Grand Canyon National Park, Mesa Verde National Park, Pike's Peak, Pershing State Park, Bear Cave Resort, and Sheraton Beaches, Ontario.

Interested parents or potential trippers are invited to attend one of two open meetings to be held at the Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry Street in West Newton on Tuesday evening, April 27th at 7:30 p.m. and Thursday evening, April 29th at the Rebecca Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge Street in Newton. Staff will be present to discuss the program.

For brochures or applications phone the Centers at 969-5906. Openings are limited, therefore it is imperative that interested persons make applications relatively soon.

Newtonite Earns Coin Society's 1971 Fellowship

Carl S. Berkowitz, a resident of Newton and currently a graduate student and assistant instructor at the University of Missouri, has been awarded the American Numismatic Society's Graduate Fellowship for 1971. It was announced by Miss Margaret Thompson, Chief Curator of the Society and Secretary of its Fellowship Committee.

The Society's fellowship is awarded annually to a graduate student who has demonstrated ability to utilize numismatic evidence in advanced research in the field of the humanities or the social sciences. Mr. Berkowitz attended the Society's 1970 seminar, at which he displayed the value of numismatic evidence for the study of Roman lighthouses.

The $3,500 award will enable him to undertake a program of research in the major European collections which will be incorporated into his doctoral dissertation project, "The Numismatic Evidence for Ancient Roman Lighthouses."

Mr. Berkowitz graduated from Newton High School in 1963 and completed his bachelor's degree at Tufts University in 1967. He received an M.A. in Classics from The Johns Hopkins University in 1968 and has been at the University of Missouri in the Department of Art and Archaeology since then, participating in seuba-diving campaign sponsored by his department off the western coast of Italy in the summer of 1969.

Ceylon Lures Tourist Trade - Bans Hippies

By MICHAEL LITTLEJOHNS

The Ceylon government has started a drive to bring tourists to this country where children in remote villages still run for an astonished look at white faces. The strongly nationalist administration desperately needs hard currency, like that which 46,000 tourists provided last year.

This year, close on to 1,000 tourists a week are expected to visit this 25,000 square mile former British colony off the southern tip of India.

Thousands of winter-chilled West Germans and other Northern Europeans have already been drawn here on low-budget package tours or charter aircraft. What attracts them is the balmy climate and warm sea.

Year around, the temperature averages 80

East German Censors Foiled in Escape Plan

By PAMELA REEVES

UPI — Karl Bley stood alone near a rail of the East German pleasure cruiser Volker Freundschaft last November, tensions of past months flashing through his head.

Suddenly, with a last quick look around, he leaped over the side into the Atlantic Ocean waters off Key West, Florida.

Three minutes later Karl, 24, was being helped aboard a motorboat by a brother he barely knew, except through letters.

Karl is in the Chicago suburb of Elk Grove Village, now, working in the machine shop owned by his brother, Eric. He thinks — he hopes — he has found freedom.

Whatever he has found, he owes it to his own determination, the resourceful devices of his brother, a code which foiled the East German censors, and a lot of luck.

And, of course, to the ticket he bought for a cruise to Cuba.

Karl had worked hard for it. The ticket costs 2,040 marks, about $557, or half his year's salary. He had to apply for it a year in advance. Then he had to get permission to take the trip.

first from managers at the state-owned factory where he worked as a machine tool operator, from the Communist party bureau at the factory, and finally from the East German Secret Police.

Means of Escape

Only persons who are not suspected of violating the party line are allowed to make such cruises, which have been a means of escape for many East Germans.

So Karl led a double life. In public, in the small town of Bitterfeld where he lived with his mother and two older brothers, he was one of the party faithful.

In private he had thought of escape since he was 18. He watched West German television — an illegal activity — from which he got ideas of the Western world.

He also corresponded regularly with Eric, 36, who had walked out of East Germany in 1955 before the Berlin Wall was erected because "living under communism with a free world right next door is no pleasure."

Karl said he had hated communism "ever since I have been able to think."

He said the east side of the wall is oppressed by big brotherism — a place where children "who have been brainwashed will turn in their parents to authorities if the parents are not Communist."

"Every communication is censored," the brothers said. "Listening in on a telephone conversation is common. If you ask them police 'How come you are opening my mail, listening to my phone conversations?' you go to jail. If you tell political jokes, you can also go to jail."

Karl said, "Most people have expressions on their faces like they are depressed. Everything is gray. It's a whole gray life."

Karl told no one of his escape plans because he wanted no reprisals against his family. Had his mother and two brothers in East Germany known, he said, they could have been arrested for not turning him in. As it was, Karl said, he has learned the family home was searched after his defection.

Karl and Eric still will not explain how they could plot the escape in letters passing through the censored East German mails.

"We could read between the lines," Eric said. "Having both lived under communism, we understood one another."

How well they understood each other was proved that day Karl stood by the ship's rail as it sailed close to the Florida Keys on the last leg of its journey to Havana. He knew the plan was working out when, with a thrill of excitement, he spotted a small plane come out of the sky and swoop down toward the vessel, buzzing so close "it must have blistered the paint."

It was the signal for him jump — 35 feet into Atlantic. "I couldn't think," Karl said, "all the tensions, all the months before, it was all blown away. I felt calm. I knew it was freedom I was jumping to."

The 22-foot charter boat Karl had seen from the ship pulled forward. Three minutes later it had all paid off and he was with his brother.

Unexpectedly, they had visitors. Three scientists on the ship, seeing Karl jump and the charter boat waiting, also took the plunge. They jumped impulsively, without planning, without knowing who was waiting in the small boat.

The two, they were hailed in to the craft, which Eric had hired for the occasion. Then there was the worry of whether the Volker Freundschaft, the cruise ship, would come after them.

"The danger was there," Eric said. "The boat made a 180-degree turn, so sharp that it leaned over quite a bit. But by the time it had turned 90 degrees we were out of their range. Then they went straight on to Cuba."

The scientists — two neurophysiologists and a microbiologist who said they had no freedom for their work in West Germany — left families there. They are in Miami seeking certification to work in their fields in the United States.

Karl returned to Chicago with Eric, overwhelmed at the welcome he received "starting in the Florida Keys and going all the way up to the President."

Misery By Installment For Kurds

By WARREN L. NELSON

After nine years of fighting in a forgotten war, a quarter of the people of Iraq — the Kurds — face "misery on the installment plan," according to their leaders.

Almost a year ago, the Kurds and the Baghdad government reached a peace agreement under which Kurdistan, in the remote mountains of Northern Iraq, was to enjoy limited autonomy under the Iraqi flag.

But little has come of the agreement yet, according to Emir Kamuran Aali Bedir-Khan and Shaffiq Qazzaz, who represent the Kurdish Democratic party KDP abroad.

U.S. sources in Washington versed in the Kurdish problem basically agree. They say the Iraqi government's record in fulfilling the agreement has been "spotty."

However, they do not see a renewal of the bloody war which lasted from 1961 until the March, 1970, settlement. One State Department source said, "Mullah Mustafa Barzani president of the KDP and undisputed leader of Iraqi Kurds does not want to press the issue at this time."

War Is Too Costly

The war was just too costly. About 500 villages were wiped off the map of Kurdistan, crops and animals were destroyed in the Iraqi bombing raids and a decade of education was lost since few schools could be operated.

Bedir-Khan came to the United States to seek aid to put the Kurds back on their feet.

Under the peace settlement, Baghdad was to aid in reconstruction. But little help has been given, the Kurds say, although the Iraqi government was able to find $1 billion from 1961 to 1970 to support its armed forces trying to suppress the Kurds.

Global Flight Over Poles By Swiss Pilot

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT

UPI — Georges Buttex plans to fly around the world the hard way — over the top and under the bottom.

He plans to do it in a small 350-horsepower single-engine plane crammed with canisters containing thousands of gallons of fuel. Takeoff time is set for exactly 8 p.m. next Dec. 10 from Geneva's International Airport.

Precisely 240 hours or 10 days later, if all goes well, Buttex will put down again on the same runway, having written a new chapter in aviation — the first man to have flown around the world by way of the North and South poles, a flight of 24,000 miles.

Georges Buttex is Swiss, 49 years old, married and with four children. He has the permanently crinkled eyes of a professional pilot and the soft, calm voice of most flying instructors.

Records Checked

"About three years ago I was looking at a book of flying records and I saw that people have flown around the world before but only around the equator," he said. "So I thought, why not up one side, over the North Pole, down the other side, over the South Pole and back up again to the starting point."

"One look at the weather charts soon told me the reason. If you fly around the equator the weather is more or less constant. But over the top and bottom you meet every possible condition."

"In fact, the South Pole is permanently swept by gales going up to 100 knots and the only time a light plane could make the passage is during 10 days in December. "So," Buttex said simply, "I decided to try it."

John F. Leonard

Funeral services were held Saturday for West Newtonite John F. Leonard of 346 Austin Street, who died last Thursday, (April 15). He was 68.

A native of Charlestown, Mr. Leonard was a graduate of Boston Latin High School and Bentley College. A former president of the Ross Knife Company of Boston, he had resided in West Newton for the last 25 years.

He leaves his wife, Ruth M. (Waldron) Leonard; a son, one sister and three grandchildren. The Rev. Ross Cannon, D.D., minister of the Second Church in Newton, officiated at the services, held in Wentworth Chapel in Waltham. Interment was in Woburn's Woodbrook Cemetery.

Thomas D. Haggie

Funeral services were held Saturday for long-time West Newton resident Thomas D. Haggie of 128 Parmenter Road, who died April 14.

A native of Cambridge, he was the son of the late Archibald and Mary Haggie. He lived in West Newton for 35 years, and until he retired a number of years ago, Mr. Haggie worked as a millwright with the Waltham Raytheon Company.

He leaves his wife, Evelyn (Nelson) Haggie; two daughters, including Mrs. Ethel Nelson of Newton; two sons, including George of Newton; two sisters, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Cremation was in Newton Cemetery.

Edwin W. Davol

A Mass of the Resurrection was sung yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Jean's Church in Newton for much-decorated veteran Edwin W. Davol of 27 Capital Street, who died Saturday in Newton-Wellesley Hospital. He was 58.

Mr. Davol, an Everett native, graduated from Newton High School. During the second world war, he served with the Army and was the recipient of the Philippine Liberation Ribbon, Bronze Star, Good Conduct Medal, ribbon with Bronze Service Star for the Asiatic-Pacific Theater campaign, ribbon with a Bronze Service Arrowhead and the American Theater Victory Medal.

He was employed with the Waters Printing Company of Brookline as an offset printer and had also worked at Newton National Bank and at the John L. McAdams Company, the latter for 30 years.

Mr. Davol belonged to the St. Jean's Ushers Club, the Church Council and the church's Cribbage Club. He was vice-president of its Senior Bowling League, secretary of the Junior Bowling League and was active in the Boy Scouts as well.

He is survived by his wife, Beatrice M. (Brooks) Davol; and two sons, Edwin W. Jr. and Robert H., both at home. Burial was in Newton Cemetery.

"SAFETY for SAVINGS"

The idea behind the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

Twenty-three years ago, we had an idea for a small economy car.

And it came out looking like a bug.

Twenty years ago, we had an idea for a giant station wagon.

And it came out looking like a box.

Then we had an idea for a sedan that combined all the economy of our bug with a lot of the capacity of our box.

So you'd expect it to come out looking half bug, half box. Right?

Wrong.

But by squaring off its back and adding a trunk in front, our little sedan can give you over twice as much carrying space as the biggest domestic sedan.

Years ago, we learned the important thing isn't the way a car looks on the outside, but how it works on the inside.

And so it's just as true today as it was then: You can't judge a Volkswagen by its cover.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton South High

By Janice E. Kaplan

Plans are currently underway for the second annual Walk for Development. The May 9 Hunger Hike, being organized by Lynnne Greene and Marcy Richmond, has aroused the support and interest of students throughout Newton South.

The twenty-five mile walk is under the auspices of the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation Inc., a non-profit organization. There will be walks across the nation on May 8 and 9, and all walks from this area will converge on the Boston Common at the end of the day.

Anyone who wishes to walk in the hike receives from five cents a mile. The hikers collect their pledges upon completion of the walk - the actual sum determined by how far the individual walked. Checkpoints, along the route promise all sponsors an accurate check.

Last year about thirteen hundred marchers collected some twenty eight thousand dollars for the hungry around the world. Hopefully this mark will be exceeded this year.

Forty-two percent of the money goes to a family life center in India, another forty-two percent works through a Hunger Project for the Passamoudaddy and Penobscott Indians in Maine. The remaining fifteen percent supports the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation.

Anyone who wishes to participate in the walk may walk, sponsor a walker, man checkpoints, or provide transportation for weary walkers. Walk cards are available in libraries and schools.

Paper Recycle Project May 1 Due At School

Saturday, May first is the date for the Underwood School's paper recycling project. Parents and children of the Newton Corner area as well as Newtonites from the rest of the city are requested to save and bundle their magazines and newspapers and to bring them to the school at the corner of Vernon and Eldredge Streets on that day.

Underwood and Bigelow Junior High students will help load them onto a semi-trailer truck in the school yard.

While it is hoped that the venture will pay for itself, money-making is not the purpose of the paper drive. Children and families concerned with ecology have started the collection so that the paper can be recycled and made into new usable paper after its first use is done.

Fishing Season Opens - Stocking To Still Go On

The Massachusetts fishing season opened last weekend with over 250 streams and ponds stocked with trout, and the state's fish and game people say the stocking program will continue until the middle of May, when the program is expected to be completed.

The Metropolitan District Commission has reported that Quabbin Reservoir - just last week covered with ice - is now about 90 percent ice-free and has informed boaters that impeding slush will be only sporadically met.

Among the first to capitalize on the freshly-stocked waters was 15-year-old Stephen Park of West Newton who, near dawn on Saturday, caught an 18 1/2-inch brown trout in Woburn's Horn Pond.

BLONDE, 19, HELD IN BOMBING OF U.S. CAPITOL
THE FIRST BREAK in the bombing of the U.S. Capitol two months ago came Wednesday with the disclosure that a blonde, 19-year-old antiwar protest organizer had been arrested as a material witness and possible suspect. In a series of fast-moving legal actions following disclosure of the arrest of Leslie Bacon, she was ordered to appear Thursday before a federal grand jury in Seattle, but then appealed and won a stay pending the outcome of that action. Miss Bacon, one of eight children from a middle-class family in Atherton, Calif., was charged only with being a material witness to the March 1 blast when FBI agents chased her to the roof of a house in the northwest part of Washington and arrested her Monday night. But in a hearing before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, FBI agent Daniel Mahan said Miss Bacon also was wanted on suspicion of having participated in the bombing. After hearing the government's case—based in part on an informer so secret he was called only "S-1"—Sirica refused to lower Miss Bacon's bail and her motion that the warrant for arrest as a material witness be dropped. But within minutes of his decision, Miss Bacon's lawyer, Philip Hirschkop, appealed his ruling and the U.S. Court of Appeals agreed to hold a hearing at 11 a.m. EDT Thursday. This automatically halted Miss Bacon's transfer to Seattle until the appeals court rules.

205 PROTESTERS ARRESTED BLOCKING DRAFT HEADQUARTERS
POLICE in Washington arrested 205 antiwar protesters blocking the entrance to Selective Service headquarters Wednesday, and 10 blocks away demonstrators served Internal Revenue service employees with pies, lemonade and "don't pay war taxes" appeals. About 50 District of Columbia policemen moved in at 7:49 a.m. to haul away demonstrators who had spent the night, rainy night camped outside the main doors of national draft headquarters, singing songs by the light of hand-held candles. Joined at dawn by other protesters, they lay face down as symbols of Vietnam War dead, forcing Selective Service employees arriving early for work to walk over them. The demonstrators went limp or walked peacefully with police to waiting buses. Most of them were booked on charges of disorderly conduct or blocking an entrance after they ignored two police warnings to disperse. Seventeen who scuffled with police and building guards at a rear entrance were charged with unlawful entry.

11 DEAD AS TWISTERS STRIKE THREE STATES
TORNADOS struck Kentucky, Illinois and Tennessee Tuesday night and early Wednesday, killing at least 11 persons and leaving more than 100 others injured. The fury of the twister was concentrated in Kentucky where 10 persons died. State police first reported 11 killed in Kentucky but later revised the toll to 10. At least five tornadoes swept across the three states. Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn, who toured the devastated area where the weather bureau confirmed at least three tornadoes had struck, said the damage was "much worse than we thought." He asked President Nixon to provide federal aid for six south central Kentucky counties.

ISRAEL REJECTS U.S. CHANGES IN CANAL PROPOSALS
PRIME MINISTER Golda Meir summoned U.S. Ambassador H. Waltham Barbour to Jerusalem Wednesday to inform him Israel rejects changes suggested by Washington in Israeli counterproposals to Egypt on reopening the Suez Canal, the Israeli newspaper Ha' Aretz said. An official announcement said Foreign Secretary Abba Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan took part in the meeting, which Israeli sources said set the stage for Secretary of State William P. Rogers' visit next week. No details were disclosed. But, according to Ha' Aretz, unidentified cabinet officers said Mrs. Meir and Eban described the U.S. position as "insufficient" and would tell Barbour that Israel cannot accept it. Rogers' trip to the Middle East is aimed primarily at trying to persuade Egypt and Israel to reach agreement on reopening the Suez Canal as the first step toward an overall Middle East peace settlement.

U.S. BOMBERS STRIKE ON 3 INDOCHINA FRONTS
U.S. A1F FORCE B52 Stratofortresses struck on three Indochina fronts Wednesday, blasting Communist targets in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. South Vietnamese troops pushed closed to the A Shau Valley near Laos and sharp fighting was reported in Cambodia. The B52 strikes were described as some of the heaviest of the war and the raids in South Vietnam and Cambodia supported ground troops trying to smash Communist strongholds. The missions in Laos attacked the Ho Chi Minh Trail—North Vietnam's military lifeline for Indochina.

1 DEAD, 13 HURT IN WAREHAM MULTIPLE CAR CRASH
ONE MAN was killed and 13 persons injured Wednesday in a massive chain reaction car crash on the eastbound lane of foggy Rte. 25 in Wareham. The dead man was identified as Joseph E. Fitzgerald, 59, of Wareham. Police said his small foreign car crashed into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck. Thirteen persons were treated at Tobey Hospital. Two were hospitalized in fair condition and 11 were treated and released. Police said about 20 cars were involved in the chain reaction accidents which occurred near the Charge Pond Road overpass. A heavy fog and smoke from the town dump nearby caused near zero visibility on the road, police said.

SARGENT CALLS FOR REVIEW OF STATE COLLEGE TUITIONS
GOV. FRANCIS W. SARGENT, saying low and middle income families should not be asked to subsidize education of the rich, Wednesday called for a review of tuition policies at state colleges. "I am opposed to any blanket, across-the-board tuition increase," he said. "But it is foolish to allow children of the rich to attend a state college or university for the same charges that are paid by the children of a factory worker. We cannot spend tens of thousands of dollars more for public education—as we must—and ask the middle-income taxpayer to subsidize the education of the rich, the governor told the student body at Salem State College. In calling for a review of tuition policies, Sargent also said, "We must stop offering bargain-basement rates—lower than those of virtually all neighboring states—to students from outside Massachusetts." The governor also said Massachusetts should consider establishing a single, unified state university system and will ask the Board of Higher Education to investigate the advisability of such a move. State colleges have been "treated as a stepchild of our public higher educational system and it is time to re-order the priorities of our higher education dollars in Massachusetts," he said.

School Lunch Program Seen Costly Headache

It appears as though a state law passed last year requiring that lunch be made available to all school children starting in Sept. 1972 is creating headaches for school officials and will probably force local taxpayers to dip even deeper into their pockets.

The Newton School Committee on Monday night approved the hiring of a consultant to help implement the mandatory program.

John Gilleland, assistant superintendent for business services, reported that the $13,725 to pay the consulting firm will come out of the revolving cafeteria account.

The Waltham firm of Crabtree, Dawson and Michaels, which designed the food facilities for the new Newton High and Day Junior High Schools, will study the facilities in each school, the possible locations for a central kitchen in the city, determine the logistics of the food distribution to the 24 elementary schools and generally analyze conditions so that the required food serves can be provided, Gilleland said.

The state law requires that each community file before mid June a statement noting any expenses that may be incurred. The city may be reimbursed up to 75 per cent for equipment but not for space, Gilleland noted.

He also stated that since Newton is already behind schedule in this matter he will seek a 30 day extension on the probably contact the state to filing of the report.

The consulting firm has indicated that 10,000 to 14,000 square feet of space will be needed for a central kitchen and "we don't have it in this city," Gilleland remarked. "We may have to go to the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen for the space," he added. In addition, three or four trucks will be needed to distribute the food, he said.

Committeemen Alvin Mandell and Vincent Stanton voted in opposition to the proposal to hire the consulting firm, and other committee members expressed misgivings regarding the undertaking.

Stanton said he objected because competitive bids were not involved.

"I gather the some type of study is required by law, but wonder if one or more of the vending firms that sell the equipment might not be capable of conducting this kind of study," he commented.

Stanton also noted that many of the problems that the program will bring to Newton such as the continuation of the short school day on Tuesdays and Thursdays have not yet been explored.

Gilleland stated that several private vending firms were contacted and do not have the capability of performing the overall study. He also noted that "we are working under severe time constraints."

"We need help or we are not going to be able to comply with the mandate of the law," Gilleland added.

Also elected to the Board of Trustees were William M. Breed, Jr., of Newton Centre and Max L. Frauninger of Newton. Elected to the Board of Corporation for five year terms were Mrs. Wallace W. Morse and Aubrey Shurman.

NCDF Seeks Permit For Local Housing

The Newton Community Development Foundation has filed an application with the Zoning Board of Appeals in Newton for a Comprehensive Permit to construct 367 units of low and moderate income housing on six privately-owned sites in the city.

The action is taken under provisions of Chapter 774 of the Acts of 1969 which permits the Zoning Board of Appeals to grant zoning and construction approval by issuing a Comprehensive Permit for building the homes.

The sites are the same ones which were included in the original NCDF proposal filed a year ago, with the exception of the additional city-owned parcels which were included in that proposal.

That plan failed by single vote to receive the required three-quarters approval of the Board of Aldermen last August.

The new plans call for the same number of three- and four-bedroom units on each site as in the earlier plans, though the number of two-bedroom units has been increased in order to make the undertaking economically feasible in view of the higher available land costs incurred by the elimination of city-owned sites.

Of the 367 total units, 50 are one-bedroom units, 190 are two-bedrooms, 65 are three-bedrooms, and 62 are four-bedrooms.

The plans provide for more than 70 percent of the total acreage to remain open, over 60 percent of it landscaped and planted, with the balance used for roadways and parking areas. The total acreage of all the sites combined is 23.95 acres and the average number of families per acre is about 15.

The designs were drawn up by the Paid Team, Inc., Architects, and are quite similar in appearance to those proposed earlier. The homes are of two-story town house design, built in clusters, scattered about the sites. One of the modules has two one-bedroom units, one upstairs

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Public Asks Welfare Reform Before Paying More Taxes

Francis W. Sargent in recent weeks has been treated rather unkindly by some State House observers who declare that his report card would be graded less than excellent for the four-month period he has served as Governor in his own right.

One newsman reports that Mr. Sargent answers the questions he is expecting at a press conference but dusts off those for which he is unprepared.

Another asserts that the Francis W. Sargent serving as Governor today is not the same Francis W. Sargent who sought election to the office last year.

This writer would offer a mild dissent and the observation that the Governor deserves a little more considerate treatment than he has been getting.

However, we view his new tax program with reservations and misgivings at this time.

Board Gets Outline Of Drug Abuse work

A pilot drug education program involving high school students working in elementary schools was outlined for the Newton School Committee on Monday night by staff members and three participating students.

The program, revolving around the issue of drug abuse, began in March of 1970. According to a written report by Irwin Hoogheem, drug coordinator for the schools, it "reflected a sincere commitment by high school students to contribute to their peers toward decision making around the drug issue."

In September, 38 students, Newton High School teachers Robert Malone and Katherine Harris, and an elementary consultant Gene Gray, met regularly. Often other faculty joined them, the report indicates. "All those who were involved omitted themselves in addition to their regular duties," Hoogheem stressed.

The program aimed at the development of lesson plans for the students by January 1971.

In December, a meeting was held with the parents of the high school students to present the program to them and test their ideas.

The high school teams developed their plans for each school. Each team worked with the pilot schools' principals, their teachers and advisors. In addition they conducted evening meetings with parents before they began in the

Noted "Street Priest" To Speak In Newton On May 5

Father Paul R. Shanley, nationally known and respected priest of the "street people," will speak at St. Philip Neri Parish Hall on Beacon St. Waban on Wednesday night May 5th at 8:00 p.m.

Sponsored by St. Philip's Christian Service Commission, Father Shanley will speak on his perspective of the problems of the church with the cultural forces surrounding it in terms of youth, relevancy, and the alienation that describe our turbulent times.

Father Shanley has been engaged in youth work for over twenty years and has been honored both nationally and locally for his outstanding service in youth work.

Prior to becoming a priest, he worked with retarded children in New Hampshire; orphaned and abandoned children in Kansas; delinquent children at the Boys Guidance Center; poor children at the Dorchester Settlement House and Sunset Point House of Catholic Charities, and black children at Camp Dorchester.

He had a full time appointment from the Archdiocese of Boston as Chaplain in the Ministry to Alienated Youth "on the streets" in Boston, working with runaways, hippies, drug abusers and other alienated youth in a Night Ministry.

After being forced to leave the street by adult violence and hate, he began the apostolate to communes of which there are thousands. But adults are making the very same mistake there that they made with runaways four years ago "leave them alone and they'll go home." "Not so," says Father Shanley. One in six is now heroin addicted.

There have been 140,000 drug related deaths (3 times the number of troops killed in Vietnam). A policeman a week is killed, a bombing a day," he said.

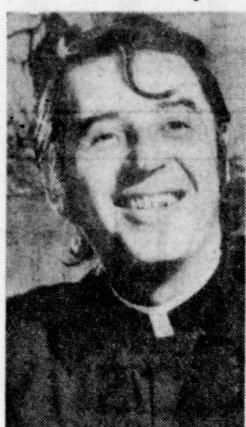

"Harassment (e.g. wear your black suit and Roman collar in the woods) has compelled him to despair of working with youth and he has left the scene overwhelmed by the spectre of Christians destroying their children in the Name of God, the priest said.

However, foreseeing that young professionals who work with drug using or alienated kids would soon experience the same violence from angry adults, he sought for a farm for adults where he could offer them rest and recreation before they all dropped out of the country, or joined communes, or turned to drugs.

"Everyone needs a vacation once a year. These people need one once a month," Father Shanley said.

The Benedictine Monks of Weston Priory, Vermont, responded enthusiastically with a farm house, barn and mountain (2844 ft.) a mile from the Monastery.

"So he is — still a Priest in god standing. No hassles — no rules — compatible people — isolated in the mountains, with a spectacular view. A good place for getting away for doctors, lawyers, teachers, social workers, welfare workers and other young professionals, young Priests, Nuns, staffs of hot lines, half-way houses, drop-in centers, street workers and drug counselor, adult city communes, and anyone working with alienated or drug users.

FATHER PAUL SHANLEY
ing youth," said Father Shanley.
The public is invited to attend and hear this remarkable Priest speak on our world.

and one downstairs, and another has two two-bedroom units.

The others are three- and four-bedroom town houses. Each has separate front and rear entrances for access to yards and play areas. Every unit has its own living room, dining area and kitchen, covered front entrance, private rear entrance, separate storage areas, individually controlled heat, and reserved parking.

Each unit has a sliding glass door which opens to a terrace or balcony from the living area.

NCDF has already filed its application to the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, through which State and Federal subsidies will be obtained to finance the housing and reduce rents.

Under MHFA financing, 25 percent of the housing can be made available to families whose income is higher than those specified in the Federal limits which were used as the basis of the original plans of a mean that many more city employees will be able to qualify for the housing.

NCDF has stated in its application to MHFA that it is planning to reserve a minimum of 75 percent of the units for Newton people and that it will give top priority to families living in substandard housing in Newton, and to city employees and their widows over other Newton residents and former Newton residents.

Under the provisions of Chapter 774 of the Acts of 1969 (the so-called "anti-snob" zoning law), the Zoning Board of Appeals can grant comprehensive approval for the housing.

The Zoning Board of Appeals is required by law to hold a hearing within thirty days of the filing of the application and to reach a decision within forty days thereafter.

In the event of an unfavorable local decision, the Housing Appeals Committee can overrule that decision if it is unreasonable in light of criteria stated in the statute.

MBTA Cites Newton In Proposing M&B Fare Boost

Newton is responsible for $309,407 of the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway Company's (M and B) operating losses of over one million dollars, yet pays only $94,911 in assessment, according to a report issued recently by the MBTA's Advisory Board Budget Committee.

This statistic was one of several reasons cited to explain why the MBTA subsidy for the M and B is so large, as the committee also recommended that a five cent fare increase be approved by the full, 79 - member community Advisory Board so that the subsidy could be cut.

According to the Committee report, it was informed by the MBTA's general manager that "a five cent general fare increase for the M and B System would yield approximately $90,000 in additional annual revenue."

A fare boost would therefore enable the MBTA to bring its subsidy level down to something near the million dollar mark. The $1,092,000 M and B operating loss figure is that which is projected for the June 1, 1971 - May 31, 1972 period.

The committee report mentioned as well part of the route - use information it has received "raises the grave policy question whether some of the service now operated by M and B and subsidized by MBTA should be curtailed, consolidated or discontinued."

For example, MBTA statistics show that a daily average of 1,132 riders use Route 20 (from Newton Corner to Roberts) most heavily used M and B route. This represents an annual subsidy cost of $42 each rider.

The M and B's Route 21, however (Endicott - River and Milton Streets), has an average daily load of only 38 passengers. This costs the MBTA $783 per rider, a total of $29,767.

Andrew Olem, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron M. Olem of 140 Allen ave., Waban, was cited for excellence in scholarship during the third term at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy where he is a first year student.

Richard Burton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Burton of 101 Adeline road, Newton, was elected vice president of the University of Tampa's chapter of Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity. Burton, a junior business major at Tampa, is a graduate of Newton South High School.

"It is a strange and irrational law," commented Committeeman Richard Douglas. "It subsidizes those who have the power to pay along with those who don't. It imposes on cities and towns obligations for some kind of capital outlay when we don't even have the money to keep up our buildings. It is a deplorable situation."

Chairman Manuel Beckwith pointed out that the law requires that lunches be made available for single sessions schools by Sept. 1972 and for double session schools by Sept. 1973.

Committeeman Edwin Hawkrigg commented saying "I hope the Newton taxpayers know what this will do to their tax rates."

Douglas added "It will probably cost half a million dollars plus the cost of the trucks."

David M. Wexler of 92 Cragmore road, Newton, an accounting major at Quinnipiac College in Hamden, Ct., received one of 5 scholarships of $250 awarded by the New England Chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors.

Meakin also lauded the Theatre Festival as "a unique program in which our nation's educators, artists, and businessmen are getting it all together." American Oil, along with American Airlines and American Express, contributed $225,000 to make the program possible.

Miss Flamm and Cohen received the award at a special ceremony attended by representatives of the college as well as community and business leaders.

A freshman majoring in elementary education, Miss Flamm is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Flamm, 22 Tennyson Road, West Newton, and a graduate of Newton High School. Cohen is a freshman in the honors program and is a graduate of Newton South. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cohen, 66 Solon Street, Newton.

He won the Harvard Book Prize, the Lincoln Medal for math, the Rensselaer Medal for math and science, was runner-up in the English competition by the National Council of Teachers; won 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes in regional French competitions; is a member of the math team and the National Honor Society.

He won a National Aeronautics and Space Administration Certificate of Outstanding Achievement, is a charter member of the Newton Chess Club and belongs to the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Boston Museum of Science.

Night Scope To Be Sold By Cramer

A Newton subsidiary of Raytheon Company, the Machlett Laboratories, recently appointed another Newton firm as national distributor for its low light level scope.

Formerly a military device, the scope produces bright images of objects and scenes too dim to be seen by the unaided eye or with night binoculars. Unlike infra-red equipment this scope intensifies available light and effects comfortable viewing by eye.

Cramer plans to market the scope initially to police forces, security companies and marine dealers where applications are obvious, according to Jerry Antonellis, Cramer product manager.

That Bicentennial

It isn't clear what role Boston will play when the nation celebrates its bicentennial anniversary in 1976. Not too long back, for the Hub, along with Concord, Lexington and other Bay State communities which shared in the Republic's birth 200 years ago, the approaching bicentennial evoked all kinds of ideas and potential plans.

Enthusiasm became deflated, however, when President Nixon designated Philadelphia as the site of an international exposition on the grounds that in that city the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution were drafted and adopted.

Boston and other communities were encouraged to develop significant but subordinate roles. The big show was to be in Philadelphia and starry-eyed planners there immediately got down to work on putting together the blueprints for a mammoth World's Fair—the greatest in history.

There will be a fair. It will be great.

However, for whatever it's worth by way of commiseration, for Boston and other historic communities, Philadelphia has no idea at this point, five years before the bicentennial, just what kind of a fair it will stage. At the drop of a hat you can get an argument about the plans on almost any Philadelphia street corner.

First plans called for construction of a site over the Penn Central railroad station by the use of air rights, along with all kinds of grandiose projects all over town. Total costs to be underwritten by the federal government were to be a whopping $1.2 billion.

"Forget it," was the gist of the federal government's response to that figure.

The planners were bitter but went back to the drafting boards. They found a 1000-acre lot of one-time agricultural land on the extremity of the city, 15 miles from the original mid-town site proposal. The federal cost estimate was cut to $555 million, plus some extra financial guarantees. Most of the rest needed for the still somewhat grandiose plans would come from U.S. and foreign exhibitors.

They went back to Washington. The response was favorable. "That's more like it," was the reaction of the Commerce Department without making any final commitment.

Back in Philadelphia there was another and quite different reaction. "Preposterous," "Monstrous," "Unthinkable" were some of the adjectives used. When members of the Bicentennial Corporation tried to defend their second draft, they were booed.

Now they are starting all over again with those plans.

Boston missed out on the Bicentennial World's Fair, but it apparently saved itself a lot of arguments. From this standpoint it would appear those grandiose plans some Hub enthusiasts advanced for making its harbor islands another Eden would have been side-tracked anyway.

Degrees

Within a couple of days after it was disclosed that Harvard and Princeton are conducting survey studies which could end up in cutting undergraduate programs from four to three years, the education committee of Connecticut's Legislature put its approval on a move to grant degrees without reference to formal collegiate studies.

The degrees would be awarded, under a proposed new law on a basis of what the recipients knew, not on how they acquired their knowledge. The recipients under the terms of the suggested law bill could qualify by passing an examination.

It was inevitable, of course, that the proposal should gain the appellation of the "College of Hard Knocks," bill. The chairman of the education committee apparently did quite a bit of research on the matter. He found that Yale's first graduate—a noteworthy named Nathaniel Chauncey—did so well in an examination that Yale felt it would be a waste of time for him to attend classes. Nathaniel had excellent tutors outside Yale.

Further, it was argued Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and the Soviet Union institutions of higher learning have long been granting such degrees. Beyond that, no June goes by in the United States without some non-college notable receiving an honorary degree at many of our institutions. The late Al Smith, for instance, was so honored at Harvard.

The four-year norm of American colleges is deeply ingrained. It would be probably several years before a lesser period could attain adoption, despite the fact that it has many eminent educators among its backers.

The Connecticut idea should not be laughed off. There was a day not too long back when lack of formal education beyond high school or even elementary school was no handicap for men and women who reached outstanding heights.

Abraham Lincoln could have qualified for the drop-out status of today. His biographers find no evidence that he could have found a country school available to him for even as long as a year during his youth.

Many changes have come to education in the United States since Harvard, Yale and Boston Latin School first opened their doors. There will be more in the future. When man ends his quest for knowledge by whatever means are at his command, his future will become a void.

Political Highlights

While some tax analysts assert that it is about as good a tax package as could be put together, the business and insurance aspects of it are open to serious challenge, not so much because of what they would do to business and insurance companies as what they would mean to policy-holders or persons seeking jobs.

The fact of the matter is that the people are not yet ready for the enactment of any new taxes or an increase in existing taxes.

They want some welfare reforms put into effect before they are called upon to dig down into their pockets for additional tax dollars.

Shocking disclosures in news stories and columns have made it plain that millions of dollars in the people's money are being poured down the drain.

Persons are collecting welfare funds to which they are not legally entitled. They go from office to office collecting welfare checks. They get extra allowances for special diets they don't need and don't use.

One political columnist even reported that young social workers are trying to destroy the welfare system by giving the people's money away to persons not entitled to it.

The taxpayers read in the newspapers that a part of the money they pay to operate the state's welfare system is being wasted and stolen, and they are not anxious to pay any additional taxes until those abuses are corrected. Who can blame them?

John McCormack Disappears In Obscurity On Retirement

No public figure in recent memory dropped out of sight more abruptly and completely than did former Speaker John W. McCormack when he completed his long and distinguished career in Congress and retired to private life.

An extraordinary aspect to the situation is that McCormack still maintains an office in Boston. But even that does not serve the purpose for which it was intended.

John McCormack remained in Washington in order to be near his wife who is confined to a nursing home.

His office still performs a measure of service, but it does so in a rather pathetic manner, seeking minor favors in the memory of a man who once stood in a position of tremendous power and influence but who now knows little or nothing of the things being asked in his name.

John McCormack was given an office and small staff by his colleagues in Congress last year so he would have a place in his home city where he could go in dignity to wind up the odds and ends of his business during the two years immediately following his retirement from office.

John W. McCormack was truly a great man who made his mark and impact upon the history of a nation he served with real distinction. Time unfortunately took its toll upon him, as it does on all of us. He has handed his mantle of leadership to other men and retired into obscurity, anguished by the illness of his wife but spending most of his time with her.

Federal Welfare Take-Over Would Cost Tremendous Sum

For a time it seemed as if it would be a wonderful idea to have the federal government assume all welfare costs, level off benefits so they would be the same in all states, thus discouraging applicants from traveling from state to state in quest of the biggest allowances and payments.

Then the bubble burst, and it became apparent that the idea is not practical and that leaders in Congress do not have any intention whatever of imposing the necessary taxes to raise the money to finance a federal takeover of welfare.

The cost would be enormous. Many billions of dollars in new revenue would be needed. (That thud you just heard was the Congressmen from the big welfare states such as New York and Massachusetts swooning in a group.)

Welfare allowances vary sharply in different states. They are much more liberal in Massachusetts than in Mississippi, for example. One reason for that, of course, is that it costs less to live in Mississippi than it does in Massachusetts.

Some Mississippi residents have moved to Massachusetts to get more generous welfare payments without taking into consideration the difference in living costs.

If the federal government were to take over the complete administration of welfare, there would be a leveling of allowances, and the Mississippi payments would be brought up to the Massachusetts standards. It would be absurd to assume there would be any possibility that Massachusetts payments would be cut down to the standards of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia or Louisiana.

Statement On School Maintenance

Editor of The Graphic:

Several questions have come up regarding a charge made in a letter to the editor from Mr. John Gosfield that "over the years the School Committee had never bothered to see if assigned projects of maintenance and repair were ever started or completed." This is too much to ignore. It is not only a misstatement but a gratuitous insult.

On the other hand, the School Committee at its meeting on April 12 evidently failed to establish a very basic fact—namely, that until 1970 the School budget never included a nickel for maintenance or repair. Until 1970, all such funds were carried in the budget of the Public Buildings Department and spent by the Public Buildings Department. The School Department could propose projects, but the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen alone were responsible for the appropriation and expenditure of funds. In 1970, for the first time, an item of $100,000 was included in the School Committee budget to be used primarily for "educational maintenance"—that is, for projects largely of making better use of limited space:

Example: converting an unused shower room to remedial reading space;

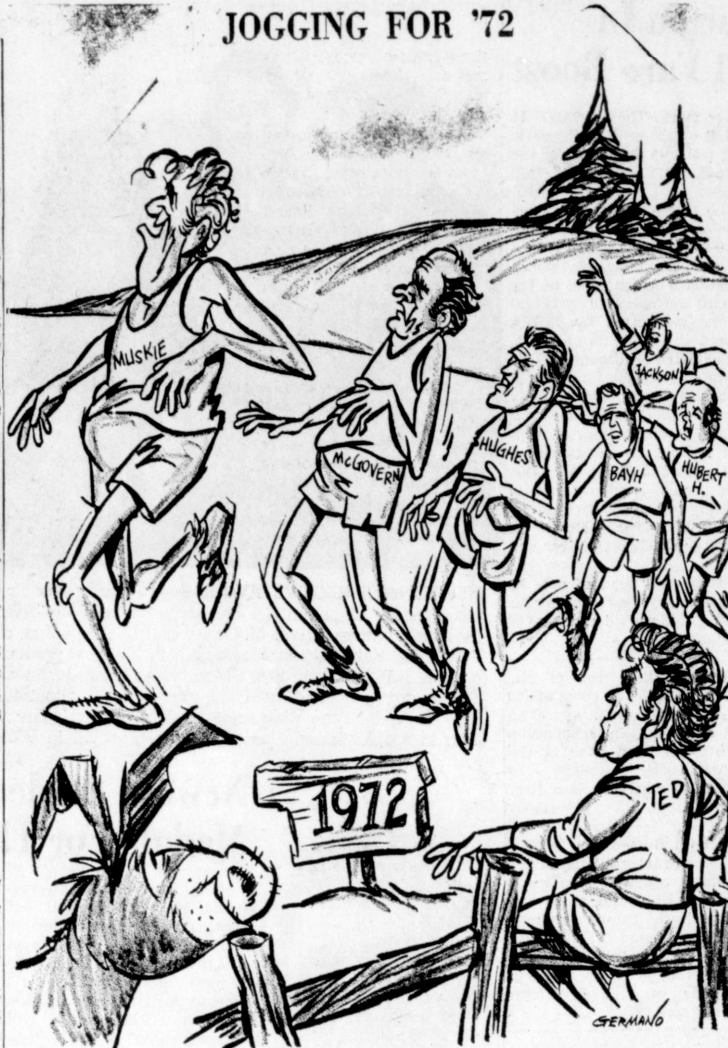

Example: partial conversion of auditorium space to a library at the Williams School;

Example: installation of partitions to increase classroom space at Warren Junior High School;

Example: fluorescent lighting, new plumbing, the installation of sinks, and the covering of exposed radiators.

Since the School Committee has never before had either authority or responsibility for maintenance or repair, and because it now has direct responsibility for 15 percent of the maintenance budget, the School Committee instructed Mr. Gilleland to provide it with more frequent reports on work in progress. I repeat: more frequent reports.

Because requests for educational maintenance and repair far outrun available funds,

While this would stop people from shifting from one state to another to get bigger allowances, it would result in a staggering increase in welfare costs which obviously would be paid from the pockets of the taxpayers.

A strange sort of belief exists that the federal government gets its taxes in some easy manner. If you look at your pay check and if you made a return on or about April 15, you know there is nothing painless about the way the federal government gets its money.

Mayors In Bold Ultimatum On Revenue-Sharing Issue

A number of Mayors of Democratic big cities have served notice that they will support President Nixon for reelection to a second term next year unless Mr. Nixon's revenue-sharing plan is approved by the Democratic-controlled Congress.

This does not appear to have struck the intended fear into the hearts of Democratic leaders in Congress who declare confidentially that Mr. Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal is dead for this year, if not for all time to come.

That leaves the intriguing question whether the Mayors actually will make good on their threat and support President Nixon if they do not get what they want from Congress which they probably will not.

One of the Mayors who joined in the ultimatum was a Democrat named Kevin H. White who is the chief municipal executive of a city named Boston.

It would be quite a paradox if he were out beating the drums for Richard Nixon in October of next year although it will not make much difference in whose interests he takes to the hustings unless he gets reelected Mayor of Boston in the meantime.

Another Mayor who sounded a call for the adoption of the revenue-sharing scheme on an "or-else" basis was John Lindsay of New York. Although Lindsay is a Republican and White a Democrat, it is a little easier to picture White on the firing line for Nixon than it is to visualize Lindsay out making speeches for President Nixon. Maybe our visualizer isn't in sharp focus today.

We do not find the name of Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley among those who fired off the ultimatum.

It seems that Daley does not believe in making scaffold speeches, in painting himself into a corner or in issuing threats he does not intend to carry out.

One of the rules of politics a generation ago was to do what you said you would do and to fulfill either a promise or a threat.

From what this political writer can ascertain in Washington, the President's revenue-sharing plan will not be enacted during the 1971 session of Congress. That poses the interesting question of whether the Democratic Mayors who made the threat to back President Nixon will actually do so when the chips are down.

No Hint Of Scandal In FBI In Nearly Half A Century

Controversial, embattled, imperious J. Edgar Hoover is not popular with the rank and file FBI members, according to Hoover's critics.

They claim that FBI agents, by and large, dislike Hoover and disapprove his tactics.

For example, they allege, Hoover on more than one occasion has delayed the time of an FBI raid, roundup or important arrest so that he could obtain more publicity for himself.

Hoover presently is a centre of controversy as a result of charges by Congressman Hale Boggs and others that Hoover tried to create a climate of fear by tapping the telephones of Senators, Congressmen and others and keeping them under surveillance.

What surprised this observer was that two former FBI agents now serving in Congress both rose in the national House and spoke out in defense of the crusty Hoover.

If these two ex-FBI agents were disenchanted with Hoover as a result of their experiences while working for the bureau he heads, it was not reflected in what they had to say as they defended Hoover and took issue with Boggs.

Hoover's actions would be reprehensible if he had done what Boggs accused him of doing.

But the evidence, quoted by Boggs to substantiate his allegations was flimsy and didn't stand up.

Boggs, for example, declared that the telephone company had found evidence that the telephone in his own home had been tapped.

However, a spokesman for the telephone company contradicted Boggs. He said a check was made of Boggs' phones last summer and that no evidence was found that his phones had ever been tapped.

J. Edgar Hoover apparently is crusty, cantankerous, arrogant, overwhelmed by the sense of his own importance.

But in the nearly 50 years he has directed the FBI with an iron hand, there never has been a hint of a scandal. That is quite a record. Hoover must have done something right somewhere along the line.

work is done according to a list of priorities while money lasts. The intent of my motion on April 12 was to improve reporting procedures as a way to improve communication with principals and parents.

Needless to add, however, principals and parents as well as the School Committee would also appreciate periodic reports from the Public Buildings Department on the other projects for maintenance on the other 85 percent, over which the School Department has no control.

Finally, I want to point out that the recommendation to enlarge the School Department's role in school maintenance came primarily from architects and engineers on the School Building Facilities Commission, from people who have been pointedly critical of existing practice for allocation and spending by the City; the proposal did not originate in the School Committee. The Commission worked unpaid for 14 months to try to do a task on which the City of Cambridge is spending $70,000 and the City of Arlington $65,000. Therefore, to claim the School Committee wantonly appropriates money and then blithely ignores how it is spent is merely to abandon every pretense of accuracy and any claim to fact. Probably the most serious question of fact to ask to all is whether any change in procedures will significantly improve the fabric or condition of these buildings so long as the annual expenditure for maintenance is only 1 percent of the total cost of replacement. The current tax crisis would seem to provide the answer: the schools will have to get by on the same level of expenditure for upkeep. But it does seem reasonable to suggest that the schools have a larger part in how much money is spent.

Suburban Jay-Walkers

Editor of The Graphic:

A recent newspaper account of some ramblings by Boston Mayor Kevin White reported that he said: "Jaywalking—in Los Angeles or Washington when you step off the curb away from an intersection you get a ticket. Do we want that kind of discipline, or is the lack of it part of the charm of Boston...?"

Continuing, he is reported to have said: "Look at them! All over the place, like ants. Do you blow the whistle or not? Five out of ten are not from Boston."

Maybe Mayor White had better look at some Boston Traffic and Parking Dept. figures regarding pedestrians. Last year 30 persons were killed by automobiles while jaywalking. This figure is the lowest recorded in more than a decade.

In 1965 Boston led the nation with 77 traffic deaths. In 1966 I was hired by Boston as a public relations consultant to administer the all-out Pedestrian Lifesaving Campaign. The effort was worthwhile because of the continuing educational programs that take place in schools and in housing centers for the elderly.

The point I would like to make to Mayor White is that the Boston public, especially the elderly, is quite educated about observing the pedestrian rules. It is the suburban commuter who poses the major problem for the police, and motorists, because he never gets the word in his hometown about safe street crossing habits.

Keep it up, Bostonians, that button you push helps save your lives!

The 18 students who actively went into the classrooms would meet at 8 a.m. at the high school, then give one or two sessions at the elementary schools and be back for their regular classes around 10 a.m. the report by Hoogheem points out.

Alice Goodwin, introduced as the high school senior who first suggested the project, maintained that the drug problem is affecting younger and younger children.

"We openly answered questions of kids. We wanted them to develop a critical attitude about drug information so they could handle what they heard on the street," she said.

"We decided that we must not condone or loudly condemn drugs with scare tactics. We decided to give them the facts," Alice Goodwin commented.

When queried about the concern of parents that such a program might whet the appetites and curiosity of children, Alice responded that "their appetites are already whetted by television from SCHOLARSHIP CONCERT PLANNERS—David Sella, Cellist, and Mordecai Shehori, Pianist, will be the featured performers at the Temple Emanuel of Newton Brotherhood Summer Scholarship Concert on Sunday, May 2nd at 8:00 P.M. in the Temple Emanuel Community Hall, 385 Ward Street, Newton Centre. which they receive much misinformation."

"They were ready to hear everything we told them about drugs. We made it a point that one should be critical of everything and search for facts and real answers," she said.

A second student, Madge Kaplan, explained her experiences with fifth and sixth grade classes at the Franklin School.

Gene Gray, the elementary consultant, noted that the development of the program brought problems of curriculum development, personnel and logistics.

The curriculum problems concerned the putting together of appropriate information for an elementary school and the best manner of presenting it.

Personnel problems involved working with a totally voluntary group giving of their free time for a variety of reasons, Gray said.

The logistics problems centered around getting the right people to the right places at the right times, he noted.

Newton High School teacher Robert Malone reported that beginning next year students may sign up for this course in the high school. No credit will be given though teachers will write a letter of commendation for the student's folder, he said.

He noted that the decision had been made to keep the program on a voluntary, no credit basis so that people who were interested and committed would go into it.

"I have never seen youngsters demonstrate so much insight with children. They were the most 'turned on' group. They didn't have to say to the children that they were concerned because they were there and that showed it," he concluded.

The School Committee adopted a resolution commending both the students and the teachers who have participated in this program.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE

On Saturday, April 24th at the Lenox Hotel there was a meeting held by the U.S.S.F.A. This meeting was called because numerous letters, telegrams and telephone calls had been received at the U.S.S.F.A. office, questioning the legality of the state elections held on February 28, 1971.

Not only was this election being questioned, but dissatisfaction has been indicated on the manner in which affairs of the Northern Mass. and New Hampshire State Soccer Association have been and are presently being conducted.

Because of this situation, teams, players and in some cases, entire leagues have broken away from the No. Mass. and New Hampshire Associations, and formed their own Association called the Mass. Soccer Association.

The M.S.A. went into the meeting with and presented to U.S.S.F.A. officials a book containing the By-laws of the Association, names of teams, players and members of the committees, together with the addresses and phone numbers. Everything done by the M.S.A. was performed in a professional manner, calm, cool and to the point.

The No. Mass. and New Hampshire Associations went into the meeting filled with venom and intent for character assassination. Mr. John Weil stated that he had received a registered letter from the secretary of the Northern Mass. and New Hampshire State Association, indicating that he had been suspended from that State association because of his being active in a non-sanctioned league.

Yet, this self-same secretary is a coach of one team and manager of another team in the very same league. So it stands to reason, if one person is suspended under this condition, then the other should also be.

The No. Mass. and New Hampshire, also stated that the Mass. Soccer Association did not want anything to do with the U.S.S.F.A. This is not TRUE, the M.S.A. has made application to join the U.S.S.F.A. and are now waiting for their decision.

The way I see it, the U.S.S.F.A. has only two alternatives, one, to hold a new election and two, to recognize the M.S.A. as the state association. I might add that the M.S.A. has over 100 teams within its framework, while the other association has a questionable 20 to 30 teams.

So now, it is up to the U.S.S.F.A. to decide what is to happen. They might decide to either have a new election or go along with the men (M.S.A.) or a bunch of spoiled brats and cry babies (No. Mass. and N.H.). Here's hoping they will go with the men. The committee conducting this investigation consists of Mr. Gene Edwards, Vice President, U.S.S.F.A., Mr. James P. McGuire, F.I.F.A. and Mr. Jack Flamhaft, Attorney for U.S.S.F.A. Good luck, gentlemen!

Director Mrs. Mary Sparks, teacher, Mrs. Richard Dell and student teachers will be in charge of a trip to the Children's Museum in April 26. A ride on the swan boat in the Public Garden after a MBTA "trolley" ride to the Public Garden and an outdoor picnic at the end of the year in June with their mothers and brothers and sisters will contribute to the nursery's goals of providing many varied experiences for the youngsters.

The nursery is presently concluding a unit on "Community Helpers" with visits to the Post Office, Public Library and a visit by firemen. Next year's program will have the theme "Creative Learning Amidst Diversity" with the goal of having a group of children who cut across racial, ethnic and religious groups to provide a natural environment for social understanding and individual development.

The nursery will continue to be a teacher-training experience for students from Perry Normal School, Mt. Ida Junior College and Garland Junior College. When student teachers are present the teacher-child ratio is one to five.

For more information about this nursery school call Mary Sparks, Director, in the morning at 244-2997, or write to the First Baptist Church in Newton, 848 Beacon street, Newton Centre, for a brochure about the school. Applications for the 1971-72 school year are being accepted.

Local Dealers To Exhibit At Antiques Show

Some 76 antiques dealers from 13 Eastern states start moving their displays into the McHugh Forum on the Boston College campus in Newton today, to prepare for the annual Greater Boston Antiques Show, which opens tomorrow, Friday for a three-day weekend exhibition and sale through Sunday. Show hours are 1 to 10 p.m. daily, closing Sunday at 7 p.m.

Featured will be a $650,000 collection of rare antique and decorative accessories for home planners and interior decorators.

The show is sponsored by the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Children.

Of special interest to older area residents will be a collection of over 50,000 postal cards depicting scenes of early Boston and practically all the other suburban towns and cities in Massachusetts. Indexed alphabetically by towns, the collection will be shown throughout the entire run of the show.

A number of Newton antiques dealers will be participating in the show, they are: Laurel Hammer, Ruth Sones, Ann Tallen, Constance Ballerene, Lois Ratzkoff and Virginia Clark. Their booths will feature antique jewelry, Oriental pieces, period furniture, fine porcelains, pattern, pressed and cut glass. In addition many home decorator items will be highlighted.

All exhibitors have been invited to display portions of their personal collections. These include antique furniture, pattern, pressed and art glass, heirloom jewelry, American, European and Oriental porcelains, copper, brass, pewter, prints, clocks, rugs, primitives, paintings, and silver; and such small collectibles as mechanical banks, paperweights, shaving mugs; and such hobbies as firearms, coins, stamps, buttons, earrings, and postal cards.

Tickets for the show may be obtained from any member of the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Children, or at the door. McHugh Forum is located just off Commonwealth Avenue on the Boston College campus in Newton. A reduced price admission coupon appears in this issue of the Graphic.

Taxpayers' Group Urges Housing Ordinance Parity

The Newton Taxpayers' Association this week recommended that any new ordinance dealing with lower-moderate income housing be drafted so that private developers could have equal opportunity to build as compared with tax-subsidized developers, and that a mix of families of relatively wide-spread incomes be ensured. Initial language implementing this view was delivered to the aldermen.

The Association also recommended that changes, if any, be made by way of zoning control rather than by permissive use. Noting that the presently proposed ordinances would ease construction, density and other restrictions (particularly in single family zones) for tax-subsidized developers only, and in fact would exclude people more fully privately financed from the low and moderate-income housing field, the Association's directors expressed disapproval of such an approach.

Instead they recommended that anyone who provides lower-moderate-income housing for not less than 25 percent of his project and who conforms to the land use, structural and other proposed criteria for the purpose, should be allowed to do so.

"The prime purpose of the law and moderate-income housing trust is to provide such housing," said Lorenz F. Muther, Jr., the Association's executive director.

"The 25 per cent provision we recommended not only will ensure a better spread of incomes within each project, but it bases its approach on what actually is an issue: the use of land in single-residence districts the density of the potential population of the project areas and the construction requisites - in short, on the housing itself, and not on whether the taxpayer does the major financing through the state and federal governments," Muther said.

"Also, coupled with the zone change control, such development in the city can be better planned in advance, and not be so subject to the ever-changing variables of whatever permissive uses may be sought," he said.

"To the objection that the city government has not adequate means to enforce the 25 percent provision against a subsequent owner or once a change is made, Muther explained, we reply that in fact the city does have the means—though at present some in the government may think it lacks the nerve. Moreover, any grant fundamentally will be made by the city and it is the city's responsibility to police its own grants."

Local Squash Tennis Team Wins State Championship

An outstanding squash season was enjoyed by Newton Squash and Tennis Club, Newton Centre, as the team was declared the winner of the Mass. State "B" Championships.

Playing some of the best squash in club history against teams such as Union Boat, University and Maudsley Clubs, Newton Squash compiled a strong winning record.

In a recent statement, George Volpe, club pro said, "This was a real team effort. The outstanding feature of this team was its balance. The fellows have been playing together for many years and on any given day the no. 5 man could be as strong as our no. 1 man. It was this uniform strength right down through the line-up that enabled us to win most of the matches and the Championship."

The team consisted of Gene Cohen, Syd Brass, Al Tofias, Ed Chyten, and Bill Horwitz, with Bert Rodman and Larry Bernbaum effectively filling in with some needed wins.

Recreation Dept. Awards Given For Swim Program

Macy Goldman, executive director of the Sidney Hill Country Club and volunteer students from Mt. Ida Junior College and Newton South High School, were honored at an award presentation recently at the Sidney Hill Country Club by the Newton Recreation Department.

John B. Penney, Recreation plaque award on behalf of the Sidney Hill Country Club for its outstanding contribution of making its swimming pool available free of charge, for the past nine years, to the Handicapped and Retarded Swim Program which was held at the Club three afternoons per week for most of the school year.

Special Class children from Newton North High School, Meadowbrook Junior High School, Hamilton, Oak Hill and Peabody Schools enjoyed this swimming program from October to April.

Each child enjoyed at least twelve sessions, taxicabs were used to transport the children to the pool which was provided by the Recreation Department. All volunteers received certificates of award from the Recreation Department. Commissioner Penney stressed that the volunteers, who have assisted now for nine years were instrumental in the success of this swimming program.

Volunteers receiving certificates were: Mark Shahan and Michele Gould of Newton South High School; Sue Walker, Loraine Manchester and Lynn Schwartz of Mt. Ida Junior College, also receiving a certificate was Mrs. Lynn Brewer who coordinated the program for the Mt. Ida students.

Gilbert Champagne, Safety Officer of the Newton Police Department, and the chairman of the Safety Services of the Newton Red Cross, was the instructor and was assisted by Howard Zibbell, recreation leader. Special Class P.T.A. mothers also assisted with the program.

Mrs. Charlotte Frank of the Sidney Hill Country Club was of great assistance. The program was under the general supervision of Robert E. Doherty, Recreation Supervisor.

3-Hitter, Early Runs Give Newton 4-1 Win

By BOB WORDEN

Paced by a three-hitter by ace left hander Jethro Mills, Newton High captured its first victory of the young schoolboy baseball season with a solid 4-1 triumph over Arlington, last Thursday at Lincoln Park in Waban.

The Tigers clinched the game on an early first inning offensive. Bob Chalmers singled and was pushed to second as Chuck Pendergast was hit by a pitch. Mills sacrificed, moving both Pendergast and Chalmers into scoring position. Then senior outfielder Bob Fabiano (just recovering from a case of mononucleosis) slashed a single to left field, sending both runners home.

With a 2-0 advantage Mills went to work, fanning nine Arlington batters while distributing only two free passes. The Black and Orange played an errorless game as they presented Coach Ed Frackman with his first victory as a head coach.

Newton carded two more markers in the third stanza to ice the victory. Mills walked, advanced on a Fabiano sacrifice and went to third on a Jim Fay single. Then Arlington pitcher Jim Marks' pick-off attempt was misplayed and the ball got by third baseman Steve Pompey, scoring Mills. Meanwhile Fay was coming to third and once again Pompey erred the play and Fay scored.

Arlington managed its only run in the sixth inning. Larry Prior walked and was brought around on a triple by Don Wiesman, who was then thrown out trying to stretch his hit into a four-bagger.

Dugout Comments: Newton's defense has improved a great deal but there just doesn't seem to be any depth in the pitching department (a la Red Boston Red Sox) Pete Melanson is erratic, tic, junior Steve Zimbel has a good arm but, needs the experience, and Mike Blauer could come through but, must be considered a question mark. Mills, an experienced veteran, with a curve that breaks two feet, will have to be handled right by Coach Frackman, as spot relief couples with starting might ruin his arm.

South Nine Takes Dual County Debut

A five - run rally in the sixth inning, compiled partly by the successful use of three suicide squeeze plays, gave the Newton South Lions what was needed — and some insurance — to win their first contest played in the Dual County League, as they defeated Bedford High, 6-4.

South collected only three hits off Bedford pitching but the bold base - running was what finally counted in the scoring. The five runs came on two walks, a single to load the bases, a walk to force one Lin across the plate, the first suicide squeeze, an error and then two more suicide squeezes.

Pitcher Bill Cormier, who settled down after being tagged for two early inning homers, went all the way to pick up the victory.

Tigers Start Roaring Back

The Newton High School baseball team which, eight days ago, had a dismal 0-4 record (0-3 in Suburban League play), has come on strong in the last week, posting three straight victories, including a one - hit pitching performance.

The nearly perfect game was thrown Monday by co-captain Jethro Mills against Brookline, a contest which the Tigers took handily, 8-0.

On Friday, last - inning scoring enabled Newton to overcome inter - league rival Boston English, 6-5, and two days before, in the game that started the streak, Mills was the victorious moundman against Arlington. Newton triumphed in that one, 4-1.

The squad had thus come up to the 2-3 mark in league play prior to yesterday's (Wednesday) game with Weymouth South.

Beta System Has New Capability

The Beta Instrument Corporation of Newton Upper Falls last week announced the availability of a new software capability for its

Beta COM 700, a computer-output-microfilm system which converts computer data on magnetic tape to visual images on microfilm and microfiche (a small card).

The new software formats both fixed and extracted eye-readable titles and data indexes on microfiche. Tinting and indexing data may be extracted from operator selected data fields.

This new capability is the first self-contained tinting and indexing package available for COM users. Input to the system is a standard print tape. The system accepts blocked records either fixed or variable. Character codes and carriage control from all major computer manufacturers are allowed.

This feature allows the Beta COM 700 user to eliminate the costly and time consuming large computer pre-processing run required by all other fiche tinting and indexing systems.

Trustees Elected, Report Read At Annual Meeting of Newton Y

The 94th Annual Meeting of the Newton Young Men's Christian Association was held at 7:30 p.m., April 21, 1971 during an open meeting of the Board of Directors at the "Y" building at 276 Church Street, Newton.

The Annual Meeting opened with a brief devotional message by Eldred M. Peterson.

Mr. Peterson is a past president of the Newton YMCA and has served for many years as Clerk of the Board and Chairman of the World Service Committee.

Those attending the meeting, presided over by President Charles E. Smith, next heard the Treasurer's report for the year 1970 which was approved as presented.

The Nominating Committee, chaired by Francis M. Staszkesy, presented to the members their nominees for directors of the Newton YMCA for three - year terms and trustees for four - year terms. Elected as directors were Nathan D. Bugbee, Mrs. Fred A. Hawkins, Newton G. Hinckley, Jack C. Hoover, Franklin D. Jerome, Bertram Martinson, Mrs. Stanley Miller, Robert B. Nickerson, and Francis J. Rice.

Trustees elected at the 94th Annual meeting were Frank A. Day and Anthony Jauregui.

In accordance with the constitution and by-laws of the Newton YMCA the members present re-elected Robert B. Nickerson as Treasurer of the association and Eldred M. Peterson, clerk.

President Charles E. Smith presented his annual report in which he noted that the year 1970 had been one in which, "a considerable amount of time had been devoted to study and planning for the future, but during which we have never allowed current needs to be forgotten."

In the year 1970, he stated, the Newton YMCA had once again served in excess of 8,000 members who collectively engaged in some 900,000 program hours. He spoke of the work done by the Planning Committee chaired by Robert G. Hennemuth and the Campaign Steering Committee chaired by Cooper Eastman, and cited these two men for their great interest and untiring efforts in behalf of the "Y".

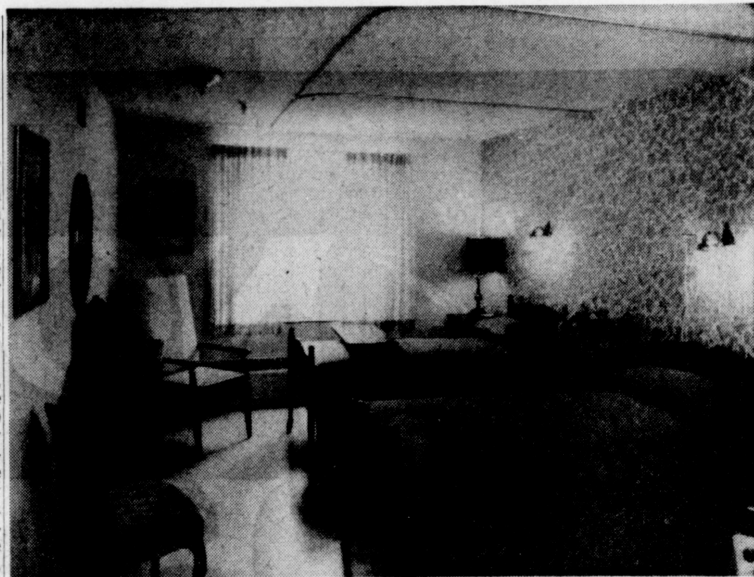

Executive Director, Chester L. Mosher, was called upon to recognize two directors retiring from the board after many years of faithful service. They were, first, Dr. Herbert G. Dunphy who joined the "Y" board in 1953 and served as chairman of the Nominating Committee and as a member of the Youth Committee and the Long Range Planning Committee, as well as advisor to the staff on matters concerning health and physical education.

The second retiring director to be recognized was Leon F. Marsh. A board member since 1965, Mr. Marsh served as chairman of the House and Grounds Committee and as a member of the Toll Road Committee and very often served the "Y" through his technical knowledge of engineering and construction.

A closing highlight of the 94th Annual Meeting came when Robert G. Hennemuth presented to the members the culmination of nearly two years work by the Planning Committee in the form of a beautiful artist's rendering of the proposed new building for the YMCA serving Newton and the surrounding suburbs.

All members of the YMCA will soon receive a copy of the 94th Annual Report in which this rendering will be depicted and shortly thereafter the plan will be released to the public.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Newton YMCA Board of Directors which followed the annual meeting the following officers were re-

GUEST ROOM SHOWS WARM DECOR—The Colonial warmth of the 18th century is expressed in the guest rooms of the Weston Manor Nursing and Retirement Home. Shown here, a regulation hospital bed carefully executed in traditional Williamsburg design. Cheerful needlepoint vinyl on walls and carefully coordinated Early American accessories make this a comfortable, livable room.

Nursing Home To Conduct Open House Sunday, May 2

Weston Manor Nursing and Retirement Home, New England's newest and most modern facility will hold Open House for the general public Sunday afternoon, May 2 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Located on the banks of the Charles River on Norumbega Road in Weston, Weston Manor is centrally located near the popular Duck Feeding Sanctuary on the Charles River, off Route 30 (Commonwealth Ave.)

"This lovely rustic setting in Weston was selected because of its strategic proximity to hospitals and yet only 15 minutes from downtown Boston via the Massachusetts Turnpike," stated Robert E. Smith of Weston, administrator of Weston Manor.

A total of 120 beds with 80 allocated to skilled nursing care and the other 40, located in a separate wing, for retired individuals who want a home-like atmosphere and still be assured of expert nursing care, if needed.

"When the home officially opens in mid - May and is fully operational, there will be more than 100 professionally - trained and experienced employees to care for the residents," said Mr. Smith.

In addition to a 24-hour nursing service by the professional staff, there will be licensed practical nurses, nurses aides, a staff doctor, plus therapists as well as kitchen, housekeeping and maintenance staff.

"Restorative services offered by Weston Manor include both physical and occupational therapists, dental and podiatry care," added Mr. Smith.

Mrs. Dorothea Maloney of Westwood is Director of Nursing and Mrs. Helen Hansen of Walpole is Supervisor of Nursing, he added.

In keeping with the Early American mood of decor, regulation hospital beds have been custom - designed in traditional 18th century Williamsburg motif.

In addition, there are a barber shop, beauty salon and an inspirational non - denominational chapel.

The Weston Manor staff also includes a licensed dietitian, a social service director and an activities director.

GOP Committee In Date Change Of May Meeting

In another change of dates, the Newton Republican City Committee finally set the date for its meeting as Tuesday, May 4, at 8 p.m.

Notices for the meeting at the Work Shop on Columbus Street have been mailed to the nearly four hundred members of all eight Newton Republican Ward Committees.

Julius L. Masow, Newton

GOP Chairman, said the shift to the earlier date of May 4 was made necessary by the crowded community program and the need to act promptly on items on the agenda. "We hope the change has not confused our membership and inconvenienced them. It was unavoidable and we know they will cooperate by attending May 4," Masow commented.

One item of business on the agenda is an evaluation of the Newton Charter Commission's Report being presented by the City Committee's Study Group headed by Mrs. Eugene (Charlotte) Hirschberg.

Special attention will be given to Ward activities with special reports made by the various Ward Chairmen. These are Adelaide B. Ball, Ward One; Wigmore A. Pierson, Ward Two; Henry Brown, Ward Three; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walsh, Ward Four; Robert Corbett, Ward Five; Michael Lipof, Ward Six; Mr. and Mrs. G. Nicholas Dawson, Ward Seven; and Melvin Clayton, Ward Eight.

City Checking On A Possible Land Intrusion

The Newton Building Department is currently investigating to see whether or not a Beacon Street car dealership, seeking permission to use land it owns for parking, has already been utilizing, without authorization, an adjacent property for parking purposes.

Victor J. Taglienti, assistant building commissioner, recently indicated that Volvo Village of 714 Beacon Street, Newton Centre, has seemingly intruded 15 feet onto 706 Beacon Street (land it owns and which it has asked the Board of Aldermen be allowed for parking) with an adjacent parking lot it now uses.

Taglienti noted that, should the city solicitor's office find that no permission has been given for parking on the 15-foot portion of 706 Beacon, he will notify Volvo Village of the alleged violation.

Several weeks ago, the auto dealer's request for parking authorization at 706 Beacon was turned down by the aldermen due, in part, to Alderman Michael Lipof's revelation (the later contacted the Building agency) of a supposed illegal parking intrusion.

Guzzi, Other Solons, Seek Voting Rules

Rep. Paul Guzzi has joined with four other members of the Committee on Election Laws in requesting the Attorney General of Massachusetts to rule on whether or not newly enfranchised voters under 21 years old will be able to vote in the 1972 presidential primary.

The request for this clarification coincided with the visit of Senator Birch Bayh (D-Indiana) to New England in an effort to promote the ratification of a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18 for all elections.

It also comes at a time when a variety of proposals have been made to reform the election process by which delegates to the national convention of both political parties are selected.

Title III, Section 302, of the Voting Rights Act Amendment of 1971, purportedly gave the right to vote in all elections to 18 year old citizens.

The U.S. Supreme Court then ruled that 18 years olds could only vote in federal elections. The question raised by these decisions centers on whether or not the presidential primary is a federal election.

Rep. Guzzi feels that it would be illogical to allow 18 year olds to vote for president in November of 1972 but to exclude them from the process of selecting candidates and delegates in April, 1972.

Country Players Present Mystery Thriller In May

The Newton Country Players play at a lot more than acting! Now in rehearsal for Hugh Wheeler's adaptation of Shirley Jackson's spine-tingling mystery, "We Have Always Lived In The Castle," the cast includes:

Maria Crumb - A sloe-eyed, sultry brunette, Maria is a Premedical student at Northeastern University. Sicilian born, she and her sister were raised in slum poverty by their widowed mother. The family's fight to vanquish the toll such poverty takes of human life will be carried on by Maria; as her ultimate professional goal is to set up total health care clinics in under-privileged areas.

A long the way, however, she has already managed to publish one short story and has written several novels, "for which she has a trunkful of rejection slips."

Active in theater since high school, her stage credits include that of the lead daughter in "Six Characters In Search of An Author," performed at State University of New York, and that of a dancer, in the Northeastern College production of "Pictures In An Exhibition."

There is no doubt that Maria will be a successful doctor. One look at her and everyone feels better! However she has no intention of giving up the theater. As she puts it, "The Arts are my pleasure, whereas the Sciences are my work."

Phillip Grossman - At thirteen, Phil is a seasoned actor whose adult sense of purpose is striking. A happy, outgoing person, his credo is, "You have to think positive, not negative - about everything."

He seems to apply this well. Despite active involvement with Boston's Children's Theater since age four, he is an A student at Newton's Meadowbrook Public School, where he is on the baseball, football and hockey teams.

Phil takes great pride in the

We have a great future behind us.

It took us 23 years to get this far. Obviously, we didn't make it on our good looks.

The Beetle we make today bears a striking resemblance to the 22 Beetles that preceded it.

That's because we invested all of our time in making a Volkswagen run better and last longer, instead of wasting our time making it look different.

To date, we've changed and improved our basic model thousands of times.

And some things we left alone. You can still squeeze a lot of mileage out of one gallon of gas.

Our air-cooled engine is still impervious to temperatures of 10 below and 110 above.

And when you part company with a Volkswagen, you still get something tangible to remember it by. Something green.

In fact, according to the NADA Official Used Car Guide, the same Volkswagen Beetle that sold for about $500 less than the average economy car three years ago, now sells for about $200 more.

So today, as we look at all the new economy cars trying to learn in one year what it took Volkswagen 23 years to learn, we can muse on something somebody said almost 200 years ago.

"The best index of the future is the past."

Because if that's true, we have a beautiful past to look forward to.

other members of this community.

"An experienced perspective on what is taking place in Newton education and what problems we face in providing the proper balance between divergent points of view is one of the qualifications I would bring to the School Committee," Mrs. Reichard said.

I am eager for the opportunity to devote my time and energies to working closely with the schools and the community."

A former nursery school and kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Reichard has been a resident of Newton for fifteen years. She was President of the Ward School PTA and is currently President of the Weeks Junior High PTA. Active in community mental health programs, she was appointed by Governor Sargent to serve on his Advisory Council for Mental Health and Retardation, and is both a vice-president of the Newton Mental Health Association and a member of the Newton-Weston-Wellesley Area Board for Mental Health and Retardation.

"Many citizens from different areas of Newton have urged me to continue to serve the people of Newton by becoming a candidate for a position on the School Committee," Mrs. Reichard said.

"A major problem facing the community is to find solutions to the growing divisiveness within the Newton community," the Ward 7 School Committee candidate said.

"We need to develop better methods of communicating with each other, school personnel, the School Committee, and other elected officials," she said. "All of us need to learn to listen to each other, and to respond to each other's needs. I am concerned by the number of citizens who feel alienated from the School Committee and administration."

"I think one way to bring people together would be to create citizen advisory groups that would include taxpayers, parents, teachers, students, elected representatives, administrators and school committee members, to help solve the many difficult problems of education."

Some of the problems Mrs. Reichard cites are discipline in the schools, drugs, kindergarten program and guidance. "We need to speak to the educational needs of individual children of all ages,"

DONOR DINNER — Mrs. Richard Weiner, left, and Mrs. Richard Needel, right, of Newton, are co-chairmen for the Temple Reyim annual Donor Dinner Wednesday, May 5 in the Ord's Social Hall, 1860 Washington St., Newton. Sherry hour at 6:30 will be followed by a gourmet dinner and fashion show.

she emphasized, "by providing both structured and unstructured environments as appropriate within each school."

"Our major task in Newton is to continue to provide high quality education without losing sight of the burden its costs places on the property owner. I am especially concerned for those people who are on fixed incomes," she said.

Another concern she cites is the possible curtailment of parochial school classes in Newton. "It will take considerable administrative planning and community cooperation to make sure that for children transferring from parochial to public school classes the transition is a good educational experience," Mrs. Reichard said.

In addition to her PTA and mental health activities, Mrs. Reichard is former vice-president and member of the Newton Citizens for Education, and a member of the Family Counseling Service Committee, the Associated Day Care Services of Boston, the Salvation Army Day Care Advisory Council, and Boston Young Audiences.

She is a member of St. Ignace Church, Chestnut Hill. She is a former president of the Massachusetts Mental Health Center Auxiliary, former president of the All Newton Music School PTA and current vice-president of the board of trustees of the All Newton Music School, and a member of the Regional Committee to Interview Fulbright Applicants.

She holds a B.S. degree from Simmons College and is president of the class of 1949. She completed advanced studies at the Merrill Palmer School, Vassar Summer Institute.

Professional positions she has held include instructor at Saint Joseph College, West Hartford, Conn., and teacher of four and five year olds in its laboratory school; teacher at the James Jackson Putnam Children's Center, director of the kindergarten camp of the Beaver Country Day School, and placement director of the Eliot Pearson School, Tufts University.

Her husband, John, is chief of psychiatry at the Faulkner Hospital, an instructor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, and a member of the psychiatry staff at Beth Israel Hospital. Their five children all attend Newton schools. Jody, 17, and Lise, 15, are students at Newton High School; Deborah, 14, is at Weeks Junior High School, and Suzanne, 12, and John, 10, are at the Ward School.

Ants Intrigue Entomologists In Australia

Reuter - Silent ranks of giant, tombstone-shaped anthills have given Australia's remote Northern Territory a reputation for being an entomologist's dreamland. Experts on insects come from wide and attracted by the macabre flair for home design of the area's termites, known as white ants.

A favorite spot in this dry region is known as "Cemetery Plains" because of the shape of the hills the local termites have built.

Entomologists can distinguish termite species by the shapes of their homes. Each species has developed its own individual architectural style and so presents experts with some frustrating riddles.

The magnetic anthill, for example, is shaped something like a giant axe blade, with steep, flat sides sloping up to a sharp edge along the top. This edge always runs almost exactly north-south. No one knows why.

Anthills range in height from a few inches to more than 18 feet. They can be rounded or pointed, sometimes resembling a gothic cathedral.

Depending on the site, they are red, brown, black or gray, and are built mainly on earth.

The termites match their skill as architects with their expertise as constructional engineers. They have their own special alchemy to make their homes as hard as concrete, which is another mystery for the experts.

If termites did not have to make openings in the walls occasionally, the hills would present an almost impregnable fortress against their natural enemy, the true ant.

When the walls are opened to release a flight of Queen and King Termites going to form new colonies, the ants swarm up the hill.

Blind soldier termites go into action, fighting an enemy they cannot see. Their weapons are twofold. Some have large fighting jaws which close with an audible snap while others squirt highly toxic form of acid from a nozzle out the front of their head.

Yet inside the hill lies one of the most advanced social systems in the insect world, rivalled only by bees.

There are three distinct social groups. The Royalty - a giant Queen and a tiny King - breed other termites in phenomenal quantities. The soldiers defend the hill, and the workers assemble the whole establishment.

The worker termite, although blind, builds the hill, feeds the soldiers and tends the Queen.

Five Newton Men To Serve On Heart Symposium Panel

Five Newton residents, including four physicians and lawyers, will serve on the faculty of a day-long symposium, "Malpractice Hazards in Cardiology," to be held Wednesday, May 12, at the Newton Marriott Motor Hotel.

The symposium, sponsored by the Medical-Legal Committee of the Massachusetts Heart Association, will use heart disease as a focal point to define medical malpractice and will highlight the areas where risk to patients is involved.

The morning session will include presentations on the viewpoints of the hospital administrator, the attorney for the plaintiff, the attorney for the defense, and the judiciary. Workshops in the afternoon will cover treatment of the heart patient in the emergency ward, the operating room, the coronary care unit, and outside the hospital.

The Newton men on the faculty are Dr. Elliot Sagall, Dr. Richard F. Gibbs, Robert G. Conley, Andrew F. Lane and Thomas F. Hennessey.

Dr. Sagall, chairman of the symposium, will open the program with the topic, "Definitions of Medical Malpractice in Cardiology." A board member of the Massachusetts Heart Association, he is assistant visiting physician at Beth Israel Hospital and clinical instructor in medicine, Harvard Medical School. He has served on numerous committees of the American and Massachusetts Heart Associations.

He lives at 178 Old Farm Road, Newton Centre.

Dr. Gibbs, who is senior anesthesiologist, Boston Hospital for Women, and instructor in anesthesia, Harvard Medical School, also holds a law degree. He will sit on the panel discussion on heart patients in the operating room.

Attorney Conley, of the law firm Ficksman & Conley, will give the presentation on medical malpractice from the viewpoint of the attorney for the defense. He lives at 187 Moffat Road, Waban.

Both Lane and Hennessey will participate in the panel group on emergency ward treatment. Lane, of 3 Otis Street in Newtonville, is with the law firm of Ely, Bartlett, Brown and Proctor. Hennessey is the general director at Leonard Morse Hospital. He resides in Newton at 58 Wendell Road.

Reservations for the symposium can be made and further information about it obtained from the Massachusetts Heart Association, 85 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass. 02109.

The Massachusetts Heart Association (MHA) is an affiliate of the American Heart Association, a national voluntary health agency devoted to reduction of death and disability from cardiovascular disease.

The fight against heart diseases is carried out with a three-pronged program of research, professional and public education, and community service. Activities and services are supported by public contributions to the Heart Fund drive.

The membership of the MHA, which has six chapters and one division around the state, numbers 2,200 physicians, 800 laymen and 350 paramedical personnel.

Seeks To Know Impact Here Of Voter KO'd Housing Rule

The man who, late last year, won an aldermanic seat following a campaign whose major issue were certain public housing proposals, filed a resolution Monday requesting the city solicitor to advise the Board of Aldermen of the effects on Newton of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling concerning federally assisted public housing.

Alderman Michael J. Antonellis wished to know, according to the resolution, "whether the City of Newton is now lawfully empowered to establish a referendum procedure by which voters in a community may block public housing projects, and if so, the procedure to be employed in establishing same."

Antonellis was reacting to a Supreme Court decision earlier in the day which upheld an amendment to the California constitution requiring voter approval in referenda for federally aided public housing. The 5-3 high court ruling is expected to have widespread impact on housing policies throughout the country.

Elected in a special contest last December to fill the vacancy created by Franklin N. Flaschner's resignation from the board to accept a judgeship, Antonellis was involved in a campaign whose chief issue was the Newton Community Development Foundation's (NCDF) housing proposals, which he was against.

The proposed new city charter, which is to be voted on this November, allows for a referendum process, although the Board of Aldermen is presently considering whether to put a separate initiative and referendum proposal on the ballot.

A total of 11 other states have voter checks similar to California's on public housing. Massachusetts, however, does not.

Commenting on the ramifications in the Bay State of the Supreme Court ruling, MacDonald Barr, deputy commissioner for the state Department of Community Affairs, noted Monday that, since the Massachusetts constitution does not provide for voter referenda on a housing issue, the court's decision is not applicable in the commonwealth.

He indicated, "We are not aware of any aspect of our appeals system which would relate to this matter," and added that the decision to permit low- and moderate-income public housing in localities is left up to the individual zoning boards and housing authorities.

The state's so-called "anti-snob zoning" law prohibits communities from using their

Presidents' Club Event on May 7

A number of Newton residents will attend the Presidents' Club of Massachusetts annual luncheon and Presidents' Reception next Friday (May 7) at the Holiday Inn in Newton.

Mrs. Alfred O. Weaver of West Newton will preside at the business meeting following the 12 p.m. luncheon at which election of officers will be held.

Guest of honor for this meeting will be Mrs. Raymond N. Peterson, President of the Mass. State Federation of Women's Clubs.

zoning ordinances to block limited amounts of low- and moderate-income housing. A developer whose proposals are turned down by a locality is entitled to an appeal for reversal to the state appeal board.

This is the action planned by NCDF if its application for a comprehensive permit to build 367 units of low- and moderate-income housing in Newton is rejected by the city's Zoning Board of Appeals.

NCDF's housing proposals were originally thwarted last summer when it failed, by one vote, to get the Board of Aldermen's approval for the plans. Its current application is being filed under the provisions of the "anti-snob zoning" law.

Land Use Committee Puts Off Controversial Issues

The Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen met Monday night at City Hall to discuss several matters, but all of them were ultimately postponed for consideration at a later date.

Deliberations on a couple of agenda questions — the creation of a public residence zone and the Newton Redevelopment Authority's proposal to rezone a parcel of land so that it could be used for commercial purposes — were not convened because of the late hour they were reached.

The committee took four hours to discuss, and hear public reaction to, questions like the request of the Fessenden School in West Newton seeking permission to construct a hockey rink on its property.

In this matter, which is opposed by some neighbors because of the traffic and noise they say the rink will produce (the school may let youth hockey groups use the rink when it is not), the aldermen decided to look at the proposed site of the facility and Fessenden's campus prior to ruling on the school's request.

A 19-unit apartment house proposed for 392 Cherry Street was at issue when the committee voted on a motion to deny the builder's petition. The motion failed and the committee then voted to hold for consideration the plans of Jack Melanson to erect the structure.

Melanson, who had originally proposed a 23-unit building, indicated he will attempt to revise his plans again to meet objections raised by neighbors and committeemen. He hopes to keep any revision "economically feasible," since changes will probably result in fewer units.

Also put off for later consideration was Alderman Peter F. Harrington's proposal to rezone from unlimited manufacturing to residence E the property of Security Mills.

The committee wants to wait for word from the city's Law Department on what the land could legally be used for if rezoned. Public opposition to the zoning change was increased recently, apparently because it is believed that the land will be used for low-income housing.

Technical High In Repair Meet

A team of two students from Newton Technical High School will participate in the 1971 Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest, which will be held in Canton on Thursday, May 20.

Winners in the contest, which will be one of about 100 scheduled throughout the United States, will receive trips to the National Trouble Shooting Finals in Indianapolis, June 14, 15 and 16 at the famed Indianapolis Speedway.

The contest consists of a written examination as well as the repair of a Plymouth car which has been deliberately sabotaged. Teams will race the clock and each other to restore the cars to normal running condition.

In addition, the Veterans and World Service Committee announced that eight afghans were made and distributed by them with more on the way. Christmas bags were filled for Veterans' Hospitals and over 34 pinafores and pant ysets were made for children with no means. This is a group that has worked since the beginning of the club and on for the underprivileged.

Lipof In Favor Of Change For Board Election

Alderman Michael Lipof announced that he will support a proposal for some change in the present method of electing the School Committee at-large.

"To me, the basic issue is really whether or not the people of Newton should be allowed to vote on this question in the 1971 Municipal Election. I believe that the Board of Aldermen has the responsibility to the Newton taxpayers and voters to bring forth referendums that will improve the accountability of elected officials. The citizens of Newton are paying the bills, they should have some say in overall policy making."

"I am sure there will be an intensive educational campaign as to the pros and cons of the revised charter, and I feel the average Newton voter is very capable of effectively evaluating more than one question on the ballot."

"Specifically, with ward representation combined with at-large members, the School Committee, I believe, will be more responsive to the fiscal outcry of the hard pressed Newton Taxpayers. At any rate the question should be brought to the people."

Newtonites To Take Part In Philharmonia Program

The Boston Philharmonia — which includes among its members six residents of Newton — inaugurates a series of concerts for music lovers, West of Boston on Tuesday, May 11 at 8:15 p.m. in Knight Auditorium of Babson College, Wellesley.

The Inaugural Concert is the first in a series that will include programs for both adults and children. It is being launched now because the Philharmonia is convinced that outstanding professional orchestras can and should perform outside the city in locations where parking is readily available and lower costs permit more reasonable ticket prices.

Among those playing with the orchestra on May 11 will be violinist Kay Knudsen, 4 Halcyon Rd., Newton; Olivia and Raymond Toubman, 11 Hemlock Rd., Newton Upper Falls; flutist Nancy Jerome, 388 Warwick Rd.; trumpeter Fordyce Pier, 1110 Boylston St., Newton Upper Falls; and Charlotte Marty, 28 Roundwood Rd. The Toubmans are the Philharmonia's only husband and wife team. M. He is principal oboe, and He is principal oboe, and she is member of the cello section.

Sponsored by the Wellesley Guild for the Boston Philharmonia and its host, Babson College, the concert is funded in part by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

Leon Kirchner, principal conductor of the Philharmonia, will conduct a program including Mozart's Symphony No. 39 in E-flat Major, K. 543, the Grand Concerto for Bassoon and Orchestra by the 18th century composer J. N.

League School Friends Plan May 26 Lunch

On May 26, the Friends of the League School will sponsor an exciting luncheon at Anthony's Pier Four to benefit the League School for seriously emotionally disturbed children.

In choosing Pier Four, the Luncheon Committee has since discovered an interesting coincidence which can leave no doubt that, along with the more evident advantages of lovely decor and excellent cuisine, this selection was most appropos.

Each letter contained in PIER represents the more significant aspects of the Friends major fund-raising event of the season. "P" obviously stands for Pier Four, the location; "I" for the Improvisational Theatre by the Proposition players, who will provide the entertainment; "E," most importantly, for the Emotionally disturbed children who, going on to the "R," may be Rehabilitated with the help the proceeds from the Luncheon will furnish.

Spokesmen point out that an analogy can be discovered in any given situation should anyone bother to delve deeply enough; but the fact that someone did serves to stress the importance for the continued support and the eventual growth of the League School.

Previous to its establishment six years ago, there was virtually no recourse open to the parents of these children in this area. Though the facilities are still limited, the League School represents the hope that, given the proper treatment and surroundings, many of these children will someday take their place in the community as normal, useful citizens.

Hummel, and Schoenberg's Kammermusik Op. 9.

John Miller, principal bassoonist of the Philharmonia, will be soloist in the Hummel. Next fall Miller leaves New England to be principal bassoonist of the Minneapolis Symphony which has recently been re-named the Minnesota Orchestra.

Tickets for the Inaugural Concert at Knight Auditorium are on sale at the Hathaway House Bookshop and the Music Box in Wellesley Square, and the Book Stall in Wellesley Hills.

They may also be purchased by mail directly from the Boston Philharmonia, 416 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass. 02115 (Tel.: 536-6311). On the night of the concert, tickets will be sold at Knight Auditorium.

This same program will be performed by the Philharmonia on Sunday, May 2 at 7 p.m. in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, and on Sunday, May 9 at 8 p.m. at Temple Ohabei Shalom, 1637 Beacon St. in Brookline.

Advisory Committee Now Aiming For Visibility

Having recently recognized that it needs public exposure if its advice is to carry any clout, the two-year-old Newton Citizens' Advisory Committee (NCAC) is making an effort to publicize its activities and become a sounding board for views concerning federally-funded projects in the city.

The initial publicity release, in fact, was handled by the Mayor's office and Monte G. Basbas, the city's chief executive, has indicated that an organization like NCAC is, of legal necessity, required to exist if Newton is to receive money from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Committee Chairman Hugh R. Arcese has explained that NCAC, which was formed to advise city agencies on matters dealing with projects eligible for federal financial aid, has, in the past two years, cited a "real need for low-income, scattered-site housing."

has assailed the Newton Housing Authority for inaction in that realm, has declared that the "Redevelopment Authority has not acted in good faith up to this point" in connection with the Lower Falls Urban Renewal project, and has suggested that Newton Corner possibly receive an intensive order enforcement project instead of an urban renewal program.

During that time, however, the committee has been working so quietly that few people knowledgeable of the city government can remember hearing any mention of the NCAC.

The committee plans to meet monthly and Arcese hopes that Mayor Basbas' successor (he has announced his intention not to run again this November) will continue to aid the group in maintaining the prominence it now seeks.

Other members of NCAC include Hugh F. Colliton 3rd, Thomas M. Dargan, Archibald I. Feinberg, Melvin Fine, Peter F. Harrington, Joel B. Leighton, Mrs. Louise Lobel, Nazzareno J. Mazzola, the Rev. Msgr. John M. Quirk, Robert Roderick, Lewis B. Songer and Henry J. Wilson.

Supper and auction, sponsored by the trustees of the church, will be held at the First United Methodist Church, Newton Upper Falls, on Saturday, May 1st.

Supper will be served at 6 p.m., baked beans and franks; the auction will get underway at 7 p.m. with Herb Downs as auctioneer. There will be a nominal charge, children under five, free.

Newtonites To Attend Rivers School Fete

Newton parents and friends of the Parents League of Rivers Country Day School will attend the 4th annual Riverboat Rambles Dinner Dance to be held on Saturday evening, May 1, in the school's Haffenreffer Gymnasium in Weston.

"The Hotel Lenox Jazzola Orchestra" under Dr. John Wells, and "High Society" under Arthur M. Love, Jr., will provide continual music. After walking the gangplank, guests will dine and dance amid a nautical setting of signal flags, Captain's wheels and ship's lanterns.

County Hospital Deficit Drops 33 Percent In '70

Thanks to a successful appeal for a raise in the day rate plus economy measures, the deficit at Middlesex County Hospital was 33.18 per cent lower in 1970 than in 1969.

The deficit was among the items discussed at the hospital's Trustees meeting. The County Commissioners, John F. Dever, Frederick J. Corners and John L. Danahy, serve as the Trustees.

"We are pleased that the 1970 assessments are being paid on schedule," commented Comm. Corners.

(The deficit is paid by the cities and towns of Middlesex County.)

The Commissioners reviewed the hospital's 1971 budget which is currently before the legislature. They also reviewed some proposals which have been suggested for use of some of the closed areas of the hospital.

No decisions will be made until after final passage of the hospital's budget, but the Commissioners are interested in seeing more of the hospital re-opened to meet the health needs of Middlesex County residents. The hospital is presently only about one-half open.

They toured the recently opened second chronic care unit. The hospital currently has 42 chronic care beds and 75 beds on the tuberculosis units. A third chronic unit is scheduled for opening in about six months.

Although the Commissioners were pleased with the lowered deficit for 1970, they agreed with Comm. Dever's concern to see it cut still further in 1971.

In 1969 the hospital's budget was $3,066,105 and its deficit was $1,802,282 — or 58.7 per cent of the budget. However, the day rate, which is a flat fee and includes all the medications and other items normally paid for by ancillary charges in other hospitals, was only $30.50.

For 1970 the budget was $3,101,615. The Trustees successfully appealed the low day rate before the State Rate Setting Commission. The rate was first set at $39.97, which was still below per patient costs, and late in the year it was raised to $48.54. In March the hospital's first chronic care unit was opened which raised the formerly dwindling patient census. The deficit for 1970 was $1,198,551 or only 38.6 per cent of the budget.

Gal Winemaker Finds Business Is the Berries

By CLARENCE ZAITZ

When Mary Reinke arrives at work each morning at 6:45 — seven days a week mostly — she is there to do battle with "the whims of nature."

Mrs. Reinke runs Oregon's only commercial winery in Salem and, as she sees it, "We have to rely on the whims of nature to make wine. The winemaker only guides it."

She was not born to winemaking and feels that, even after seven years, she is still learning.

Mrs. Reinke went to work for the Honeywood Winery as an office secretary in 1943 and recalls that "I knew everything about the workings in my office, but what I knew about winemaking you could put in a tumbler."

She assumed control of the small company in 1963 when it was about to go out of business. The stockholders asked her to run things temporarily. But when a buyer could not be found she acquired enough stock to assume permanent control.

Today the winery, which produces 200,000 gallons of berry wines a year, is run by only eight employees — half of them women.

"Each one of us is capable of doing each job," Mrs. Reinke explained. "Not one of us is afraid to go out and grab a mop."

She has a neat, small office at the front of the plant, but does not spend much time there. She's in the winery "at least once an hour" and often will pitch in for an ill workman. "Last week my gal who makes the wine jelly broke her leg — can you imagine? Right during our busiest season! So now I have to run jelly line, too. Sometimes I'll even pinch hit on bottling line. I can do every job in the plant except the heavy manual work."

As she was being interviewed her ears perked up suddenly as she heard a strange sound. She quickly analyzed it as sounding "like a pump is going out," and hurried off. Later she explained other noises as being "the men dumping barrels of frozen loganberries."

In the older days the winery would work full tilt during the berry production season, then slack off in the winter. Now thousands of Mrs. Reinke's husband, Donald, is a battalion fire chief and has little to do contributing ideas. He likes with the winery except for to spend some of his spare time in the small laboratory developing new conditions.

Recent Addition A recent addition to the roster of berry wines is a berry and grape wine containing six different essences which has been named "Turkenblut" and is being touted as a skiers' drink.

Bay Path Colonial Girl Scouts' Annual Meeting

Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council held its eighth Annual Meeting on April 27 at the Warren Center in Ashland under the chairmanship of Mrs. Vincent E. Ashton of Marlborough.

Following a cafeteria-type luncheon, Mrs. Nathan Bugbee of Newton, Council President, presided at the business meeting attended by 135 representatives from 29 towns.

Mrs. Arthur P. Olson of Walpole read the Secretary's report, Mrs. Thomas Dezott of Lexington, treasurer, gave the annual finance report and there were committee reports by Mrs. Werner Tanner of Marlborough for Program Services and Jason Korrell of Concord for Public Relations.

Mrs. Robert Turkington of Concord presented the Nominating Committee's slate for election of Board Members as follows: for three years: Miss Barbara Clifford of Bedford John Crosby of Newton, Mrs. Eugene Heft of Lexington, Mrs. William Kilgore of Falmouth, Mrs. George Todd Jr. of Hopkinton; for two years: Mrs. Arthur Miller of Bedford, Mrs. Raymond M. Russell Jr. of West Newton; for one year: Mrs. Peter Kostic of Stow.

Also elected were two members of the Nominating Committee: Mrs. Robert Greim of Natick and Mrs. Floyd Ritchie of Framingham.

Mrs. George C. Langdon of Marlborough, Council Cookie Chairman reported that in the 1971 sale just completed 443 troops sold 267,948 boxes and the profit amounted to $15,770 for troops plus $82,622 for the Council.

The featured speaker was Mrs. Robert L. Rosenthal of Lexington, Project Director of Intercultural Studies Group, Boston, an anthropologist and authority on the American Indian. She is also a Girl Scout leader in Lexington. Her subject was American Indian Relations in the Boston area.

The following volunteers were saluted by the Council President for their many years of Girl Scout membership: 50 years, Miss Harriet Phillips, Watertown; 45 years, Mrs. John Evans, Newton, winemaker is a familiar figure around the Oregon Legislature, where she has twice successfully lobbied for special legislation. Once it was to allow retail sales at her plant, and another time it was to allow a wine-tasting room.

Honeywood is now financially sound, Mrs. Reinke proudly declared, "and is growing 20-25 percent a year." She worries about getting too large, however, because "then it wouldn't be any fun."

Her wines are marketed in 12 states — "but we don't spend any money on advertising," she said. "We put all our money into the product."

Newton Residents Share Honors At Raytheon Fete

Many Newton residents were among the 200 veteran employees honored last week at the Raytheon Company's annual Quarter Century dinner.

One of them, John G. Stobo of 196 Waban Avenue, Waban, is a vice president for manufacturing at the firm's Lexington headquarters.

Raytheon President Thomas L. Phillips told the new 25-year veterans that when they joined the company in 1946, sales were $106 million and were 94 percent government.

That was the year Dr. Percy Spencer invented microwave cooking and the Radarange oven made its debut. The company also completed the microwave links to carry television signals between New York and Boston, and introduced the industry's first commercial radar for merchant ships.

Raytheon sales have expanded 12-fold since then, to one and a quarter billion dollars, Phillips noted, with 50 percent of that now in commercial sales.

Others reaching the quarter century mark with Raytheon are Hazel M. Bates, 11 Capital Street and Kathleen M. Rosemond, 9 Charlesbank Road, both of Newton; Daniel Kelly, 16 Kingston Road, Newton Highlands; and Alice P. Ames, 384 Watertown Street; Ruth A.

City Receives Award Payment

A fourth payment of $276.71 has been received by the City of Newton in the settlement of an anti-trust suit for price-fixing against ten copper piping companies. The remainder of the city's share will be paid in installments by 1972.

The anti-trust suit against the copper and brass producing companies was brought by Massachusetts and various other states and public agencies in 1967 in the U.S. District Court in Philadelphia.

Among the ten defendant corporations were Anaconda, American Brass Company, Calumet and Hecla, and Phelps Dodge Company.

In simpler terms, leave the family Monolith-3 in the garage. "We've tried to approach the whole design of the system with this in mind," Kimball said. "We have to offer basically an alternative that is attractive and desirable."

Approve Redistricting Of Overcrowded School Areas

Some redistricting to relieve overcrowding at Weeks and Warren Junior High Schools was approved by the Newton School Committee on Monday night.

As recommended by the school administration, those Angier School sixth grade students who will ultimately attend Newton South High School were redistricted from Warren to Meadowbrook Junior High School.

To relieve the overcrowding at Weeks, the School Committee approved the administration's recommendation that Ward School sixth grade students who normally attend Weeks Junior High School be redistricted to Bigelow Junior High School.

An exception to this will be a group from the Chestnut Hill area who would eventually go to Newton South High School. These pupils would retain the option of going to Weeks Junior High.

Superintendent Aaron Fink reported that a study indicated that enrollment at both Warren and Weeks would remain at least 200 students above "We may have to consider changes at Bigelow in two or three years. We may turn to open enrollment in the junior highs in any school that has room," the superintendent added.

Fink also stated that seventh or eighth graders who live in the areas designated in the redistricting may stay in their present schools but could transfer if they wish.

In a report concerning relief of overcrowding, Assistant Superintendent for Business Services John E. Gilleland noted that the enrollment projection report had indicated there are seven elementary schools with additional space needs; Angier, Williams, Claflin, Cabot, Underwood, Lincoln - Elliot, and Ward.

A recent meeting with the staff has explored a reorganization of program space assignments at Angier and this will adequately provide for the 1971-72 educational program needs, Gilleland's report stated.

For the next school year, exploration is being pursued regarding the use of the neighboring church facilities for art and music at the Underwood School.

At Ward efforts are being made to create an additional emergency classroom in an old basement play area. This will solve the problem for the school year 1971-72. Further examination of the problem will be conducted in the latter part of this year, Gilleland's report states.

The work done in December 1970 at the Lincoln - Elliot School "has materially improved the student traffic patterns. The parent and school choice of not busing youngsters out suggest that we must have a program that will cope with the problems of space and numbers. The action of the Board and Mayor is expected to have an addition moving in the very near future and alleviate some of the crowding presently experienced," the report notes.

School Budget Meeting To Be Held On May 5

Citizens of Newton and public school administrators and officials will have a chance next week to talk together about concerns and problems which stem from a common root — school budgets.

The Newton - Needham Chamber of Commerce, Newton Citizens for Education, Newton Taxpayers' Association, and the PTA Council are co-sponsoring the meeting. It will be held at the Mason - Rice school auditorium, Newton Centre, at 8 p.m., Wednesday, May 5.

"School Budget — Too Much or Too Little?" has been chosen as the title of the program.

Superintendent Aaron Fink, Assistant Superintendent of Business Services John Gilleland, Assistant Superintendent of Personnel James Laurits, John Cullane, Director of Pupil Personnel Services, and the school committee will participate in the program. Representatives of community groups and the public will be given a chance to question how the budget is drawn up to meet educational needs. Edward V. Hickey will be the moderator. The public is invited.

The MBTA has recently undertaken the job of completely refurbishing the trolleys on its Riverside division but a top official of the transit agency has warned that if vandalism of the cars continues as it has, the "refurbishing program will be for naught and our streetcars will return to their former sorry appearance."

MBTA General Manager Joseph G. Kelly also remarked: "Through the authority is making every effort to make our system more attractive to riders, we must still rely on our passengers' sense of responsibility to their fellow passengers to restrain them from destroying and defacing the cars."

Already, about 30 streetcars have undergone the extensive repair program and been put back on the line. Engines, carriages and suspensions have been reconditioned in the Watertown shops, and interiors and exteriors alike have been renovated: broken seats and handholds have been replaced, as have missing floor tiles and cracked or broken windows.

The MBTA hopes that by redoing the cars, which average 25 years in age, customer satisfaction, as well as the line's efficiency, will improve.

Newton residents, who are interested in helping lessen the solid waste disposal problem, will be able to participate in a pilot program of the Massachusetts Soft Drink Association, which will begin on Saturday, May 1.

Thirty-five soft drink bottling plants all over Massachusetts will accept glass containers every Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Containers will be crushed and sent back for recycling. Sacred Heart College Sets Plans For Workshop Series

This summer Newton College of the Sacred Heart will be offering a series of workshops for members of the community taught by members of the faculty of the college and by educators from the Greater Boston area.

These educational opportunities are designed to meet a wide variety of current needs and interests. Programs include two workshops in drug abuse in which resource leaders will include social workers, school curriculum directors, policemen, and members of self-help groups.

The purpose is to examine the underlying causes of drug abuse and to find out how communities are responding to the problem. The workshop on ecology is designed to develop an understanding of the structure and function of nature and the imbalances created by man.

The emphasis will be on learning through participation in laboratories and field trips in the Boston area. Those interested in ceramics (either beginners or more advanced students) will have an opportunity to use the excellent facilities of the college including a gas-fired kiln.

A workshop on reproductive biology will offer participants the opportunity to develop a thorough understanding of reproductive biology and of current discoveries in reproductive technology with a particular emphasis on the use of this information for sex education in the classroom.

There will also be a workshop on the integrated day, designed primarily for teachers and other persons interested in exploring the approaches to elementary education used in the British Primary Schools as an alternative to educational methods presently used in many schools.

The process of learning itself will provide a primary thrust to the style of the workshop. Further information and applications for these workshops may be obtained by contacting Dr. Robert G. Rogers, Director of Summer Programs at Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

Housing Agency Against Elderly, Low-Income Mix

The Newton Housing Authority last week indicated its opposition to mixing elderly housing with its proposed low-income housing projects but explained that it is in the process of polling its residents on the matter, anyway.

James A. Miller, the authority's vice chairman, told a joint meeting of the aldermanic Housing and Finance Committees and the housing agency, "All our statistical information indicates it (the housing mix) just doesn't work; it is a romantic notion, old people like children — but they don't like them in their gardens and waking them up early."

The session had been called at the request of Housing Authority Chairman Anthony J. Medaglia so that disagreement between the aldermen and his agency concerning sites for public housing could begin to be straightened out.

Not much accord was reached, however, although Medaglia noted afterwards, "I do feel that we have accomplished one objective — to display our sites and show that we are serious about building housing."

The aldermanic Housing Committee has been postponing approval of two sites proposed some time ago by the authority, on Crescent Street (near the Myrtle Baptist Church) in West Newton and Victory Field in Nonantum, until the authority can show sites in other parts of the city on which it would also build.

The Housing Authority, which needs city approval of the proposed sites because of some required zoning changes and property purchases, was criticized as well on two more proposed sites presented at the meeting: on Beaconswood Road in Newton Highlands and Columbia Road and Circuit Avenue in Upper Falls.

Housing Committee member Alderman Peter F. Harrington argued, "They didn't have plans or renderings for the sites. When other developers come before us, we expect them to have complete renderings and floor plans for the units — why should we treat the Housing Authority differently?"

B.C. Students Start "Back To People" Drive Today

A group of Boston College students are setting out to make Massachusetts state politicians more directly responsible to their constituencies. And once they are through untangling Massachusetts they will take on the country.

The organization is known as SIGMA — Students Involved in Government in Massachusetts — and its purpose is to bring elected officials directly before the people of the State to explain their programs and to answer questions.

Armed with a Mayoral proclamation from Monte G. Basbas of Newton declaring today April 29 as "Getting Back to the People Day," the group will hold its first program at Boston College today April 29.

Donald R. Dwight, Lieutenant Governor of the Commonwealth, will spend several hours on the campus, first talking with faculty and administrators in a closed meeting then spending 1½ hours on the campus green answering questions from students and residents of Newton.

Strong interest has been expressed by state officials in the SIGMA program. Already the student group has a definite commitment from Governor Francis Sargent to take part in a program identical to the one at Boston College, during the second week of May. (his program will include the students at Wheaton, Simmons and Emmanuel and the residents of that area of Boston.

SIGMA was organized this year by two Boston College Freshmen from Methuen, Kenneth Hyde and Armand Hyatt. "Students are cynical, distrustful and apathetic when it comes to politics," they have stated, "Once a student is antagonized or alienated it is hard to win him back. Our purpose is to foster an abiding interest in the government of Massachusetts by letting them hear and question first hand how the state is dealing with its many problems."

"At the same time, the opportunity for the elected officials of the state to ascertain some very prevalent campus views will, we hope, benefit their administration."

The official proclamation by Mayor Monte G. Basbas follows: "WHEREAS: A group of Boston College students have formed an organization called SIGMA (Students Involved in Government in Massachusetts), with the expressed purpose of trying to improve communications between government officials and all citizens, principally by providing opportunities for open, rational dialogue; and

WHEREAS: SIGMA is a non-partisan organization which has not arisen out of or attached itself to any one particular cause, but is concerned with the very general but important issues of quality and effectiveness of government; and

WHEREAS: This group hopes to establish chapters at campuses across the Commonwealth and, eventually to encourage the formation of similar organizations throughout our nation; and

WHEREAS: At 1:00 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, the twenty-ninth of April, 1971, SIGMA will hold its first open forum on the Campus Green at Boston College, with the Honorable Donald R. Dwight, Lieutenant Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as the guest government official;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, MONTE G. BASBAS, Mayor of the City of Newton, Massachusetts, do hereby proclaim Thursday, the twenty-ninth of April, 1971, as "Getting Back to the People Day" in Newton, and urge all citizens, students, or otherwise, to participate and take advantage of this opportunity to exchange ideas, comments and questions and answers with their elected officials by attending this and subsequent open forums to be held by SIGMA, and by acknowledging the concern and high ideals of its members who are working toward a goal we all share, that of the best and most responsive government possible.
